Grove Gives Only 2 Hits, Sox Blank Nats, 1 to 0

President, 31,000 Fans See Leonard Lose Opening Game Duel; Run Unearned

Feller Finally Does It

The Heartbreaker

By Shirley Povich.
A Staff Correspondent

Before 31,000 privileged spectators—privileged to see Lefty Grove attain the pinnacle game of his 15-year pitching career in the majors—the Boston Red Sox clamped a 1-to-0 defeat on the Nats in baseball's formal 1940 opening yesterday.

President Roosevelt threw out the first ball, the flag was raised in center field, the bands played, dignitaries were properly seated, and then Lefty Grove took over the show.

The 40-year-old southpaw, now gray of hair, but still supple of arm, bore down on the Nats with the remnants of his blazing fast ball, and surrendered only two hits to the Washington club. For Grove, the one run the Red Sox scored was sufficient. He made it stand up magnificently.

No Hits Until Eighth

Until one was out in the eighth inning, the old lefthander was conjuring visions of a no-hit game among the 31,000. Not a Washington batter had reached base. The less rabid of the Washington fans groaned audibly, in fact, when Cecil Travis finally produced a single against Grove in the eighth, to shatter the no-hit dreams.

For Dutch Leonard, Grove's pitching foe, it was a brutal defeat. Back in the second inning, the Red Sox scored the only run of the ball game, and it spawned not from a Boston hit, but from an error by Rick Ferrell, of all people.

Grove himself figured in the scoring of that run with one of the seven hits Leonard permitted in his duel with the Boston southpaw. He drove a line drive through the glove of Second Baseman Jimmy Bloodworth and precipitated the run that was to prove his margin of safety.

Walk Leads to Lone Run

Leonard dug his own pitfall with a temporary loss of control of his knuckle ball, walking Bobby Doerr to start the second inning. When Jim Tabor lashed a line drive into the box, Leonard knocked it down in a self-defense gesture and then pounced on the ball to throw Tabor out at first, but Doerr reached second on the play.

With the lower end of the Boston batting order to be faced, the situation did not look precarious for Leonard, and the tension eased considerably when Catcher Gene DeSautels popped to Ferrell for the second out.

But then along came Grove, whose batting average has never been any menace for worry among enemy pitchers. But Grove connected solidly with one of Leonard's pitches and Jimmy Bloodworth was unable to hold the hot liner that caromed off his upstretched glove. The ball settled in short rightfield and Doerr dashed for the plate.

Recovering the ball quickly, Bloodworth rifled a perfect throw to Catcher Ferrell and Doerr appeared doomed in his attempt to score from second, but to the amazement and undisguised panic of Washington fans, the ball skipped through Ferrell's legs for an error.

More and more grievous did that error by the Nats' catcher loom as

Dewey Enters Maryland Race, Challenges Taft

Asks Ohio Senator To Enter Primary Battle on May 6

Managers of District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey, of New York, candidate for the Republican Presidential nomination, last night served notice of intention to enter the Maryland G. O. P. Presidential preference primaries May 6.

The announcement challenged all other Republican candidates to enter the Maryland contest, with a special invitation to Senator Robert A. Taft, of Ohio, whose friends have laid claim to the 16 Maryland delegates.

Acceptance of the challenge by the Ohio Senator would bring the first primary duel between Dewey and Taft of the present campaign, and carry the contest for the Republican nomination into the backyard of the Capitol.

Likely to Accept

While Taft could not be reached last night, some of his supporters believed he was likely to file against Dewey. Several weeks ago he indicated to reporters he would probably accept a Dewey challenge in either West Virginia or Maryland, both within commuting distance of the Capitol, where he has Senate duties.

The West Virginia deadline for filing is now past and the deadline in Maryland, last primary State that candidates may enter, expires this week-end.

Dewey never has faced Taft in a primary.

Roosevelt Talk With Farley Held Crucial to Third Term

November Campaign Is Believed Discussed by President and Postal Chief Before Trip to Ball Game

Mr. Roosevelt Pitches Very, Very Wild, Indeed—Page 8.

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

Olive branch rustling was mixed with plain talk at the White House yesterday as the President lunched, chatted and watched a ball game as of old with his Postmaster General after months of political strain.

But whether the swift round of mutually friendly gestures between the political partners of 1932 and 1936 betokened peace or further friction in the Democratic Party of 1940 could only be surmised.

Postmaster General Farley flung only a hasty "nothing to say" to White House reporters as he picked up his wraps to accompany the President's entourage to the ball park. With his press conference canceled because of the game, the President likewise was silent.

Farley, personally opposed to a third term under ordinary circumstances, in advance of the conference was believed ready to support reelection of the President should Mr. Roosevelt decide the international situation was sufficiently seri-

Hopes Rise After Parley On Symphony

Union and Orchestra Association Study Formula to End Row

Hope for a settlement of the difficulties that threaten the National Symphony Orchestra's existence ran high again yesterday after representatives of the Musicians' Protective Union and the orchestra association board adjourned a four and a half-hour conference.

The conferees, gathering in the Labor Conciliation Service offices in an unexpected move, carried away with them a new formula of settlement which will be considered by the union and the orchestra association.

John R. Steelman, director of conciliation, brought in Samuel Rosenbaum, vice president and member of the board of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra, who sat as Steelman's adviser.

At the conclusion, Steelman said: "Efforts were made to devise a plan to be submitted to both parties for consideration. While some progress can be reported, the conference adjourned to meet again upon call of the conciliation director."

Officials of the union and the association board left the conference

D. A. R. Moves To Pay Debt On D. C. Hall

Change in Election Of Vice Presidents Asked; Reception Held

By Lucia Giddens.

Proposed action to pay off the remaining $100,000 debt on Constitution Hall by October 11, to make a change in the election of vice presidents general, and to set up a different retirement system for D. A. R. employes were discussed by Daughters of the American Revolution last night.

The president general's reception at Constitution Hall last night, largest social event of the Forty-ninth Continental Congress, brought an interlude in the business matters which will be resumed at this morning's session.

Mrs. Henry M. Robert, jr., Annapolis, president general, in her formal report to the congress yesterday pointed out the three proposals. She said:

"It is fitting that at the Golden Jubilee in October the National Society of the D. A. R. face the world with no debt."

"The national board of management has therefore recommended to the Congress a resolution providing for the payment of $100,000 in Constitution Hall notes by the fiftieth anniversary on October 11."

Although she did not go into details on the method of payment, it was expected that donations would figure largely in it.

Proposed changes in the election of vice presidents general are expected to come up for action at this morning's session.

Under the suggested plan, six instead of seven women will be elected to three-year terms in this office each year. In addition to this total of 18, three others will be elected as first, second and third vice presidents general for three-year terms.

The amendment providing for these three officers with definite rank would insure an "automatic succession" which would "assure greater security" in case of vacancy in the office of president general, Mrs. Robert pointed out.

The total number of vice presidents general would remain the same as at present, 21.

In her report, Mrs. Robert said "the only unsound feature of the society's financial system is in the character of provisions for the retirement of its employes."

The congress of 1935 voted to set aside $10,000 annually for that fund,

Plunging into organization work for the Presidential nominating conclave in Philadelphia, June 24, the committee on arrangements of the Republican National Committee also selected five principal convention officers and then adjourned until May 16.

National Chairman John D. M. Hamilton, remarking that "there is a lot of sentiment against long speeches," announced arrangements committee advocacy of a precedent-

FCA Head Accused Of Lobbying

Representative Reed Assails A. G. Black For Franking Wallace's Notes

By Felix Cotten.
Post Staff Writer

A. G. Black, governor of the Farm Credit Administration, was accused last night by Representative Reed (Republican), of New York, of violating Federal antilobbying statutes by trying to drum up farmer sentiment for the Jones-Wheeler farm credit bill.

Reed made public copies of a letter by Black and a memorandum from Secretary of Agriculture Wallace which he said Black had mailed, postage free, under date of April 10 to 630,000 Federal Land Bank borrowers.

The letter, he charged, "was in defiance of two statutes prohibiting political or lobbying activities by Federal officials."

"Subtle Pressure" Seen

The letter and memorandum, he declared, "show on their face that they were a subtle effort to influence borrowers to bring pressure to bear on members of Congress in support of the Jones-Wheeler bill."

The activity by Black and Wallace, he declared, is an argument in favor of restoring the Farm Credit Administration to its former independent status, as is provided for by the Gillette-Kleberg bill pending in Congress.

He said the letter indicated that "the temptation for the Department of Agriculture to play politics was too strong to be resisted in a campaign year."

The Jones-Wheeler bill, which he declared would destroy the existing cooperative farm loan system and place Government farm loans under control of the Secretary of Agriculture, appears, he said, to be an effort by Wallace to "distract" the attention of farmers from the Administration's failure to solve the farm income problem.

"Shocked" By Letters

"I am shocked by these letters," Representative Reed said. "Every proposal contained in the memorandum of Secretary Wallace is embraced in the Jones-Wheeler bill. The letter sent out by Gov. Black not only admits that it breaks a precedent, but expresses his intention of continuing to do so from time to time by sending out other letters of this character."

He quoted Gov. Black's letter "to stockholders of National Farm Loan Associations," as saying:

"This letter probably breaks a precedent, but here goes: I know of no better way of stimulating thought and discussion than writing to you. In fact, I plan to send you from time to time pertinent information about the farm loan system.

Loan Hazard Criticized

"Secretary Wallace and I have talked over repeatedly many of the problems confronting the Farm Credit Administration. I take it that you as a borrower and farmer also are interested, so I am passing on to you one of his memoranda in which he asks some very pertinent and far-reaching questions.

"I hope this will stimulate your own thought, that there will be discussion of these problems among the farmers, and that many farmers will have things they will wish to contribute to our thinking on the subject."

Representative Reed cited Section 201, of the Criminal Code, which says:

"No part of the money appropriated by any act shall, in the absence of express authorization by Congress, be used directly or indirectly to pay for any personal service, advertisement, telegram, telephone, letter, printed or written matter, or other device, intended or designed to influence in any manner a member of Congress, to favor or oppose, by vote or otherwise, any legislation or appropriation by Congress . . ."

He also cited Section 6 of Public 160, act of June 30, which states in part:

"'. . . on or after July 1, 1939, no executive department or independent establishment of the Government shall transmit through the mail, free of postage, any book, report, periodical, bulletin, pamphlet, list, or other article or document (except official letter correspondence, including such inclosures as are reasonably related to the subject matter of the correspondence . . .) unless a request therefor has been previously received by such department or independent establishment . . .'"

Norse Ask Quick Aid; Bisected by Nazi Ruse; British Calling 850,000

German Soldiers, Thought by Norse To Be Their Own, Sent Across Nation

By the Associated Press

Stockholm, April 16.—Executing another audacious coup, German invaders today sped a Nazi-packed troop train through Norwegian-held territory, past the very muzzles of a Norwegian-manned fortress to cut Norway in half.

Advices reaching Stockholm said Norwegian railway employes, supplied with false information that the train bore their own forces, gave right of way to the Germans, who reached Storlien Heights, 3 miles from the Swedish frontier and 50 miles east of Trondheim, port on Norway's west coast.

As the train progressed eastward along the Trondheim-Storlien railway, the Germans posted strong guard units at all bridges and stations, giving them complete control of the railway.

Hegra fortress itself remained in Norwegian hands, a deep snow hampering the Germans there.

Still another German ruse, it was reported, caused the Hegra fortress to fire on a Norwegian train. A German agent at Trondheim telephoned to the commander of the fortress, telling him, in the name of "a Norwegian patriot," that the last cars were filled with Germans.

Oslo Nearer Normal

A statement issued by the legal Norwegian government urged the utmost caution concerning the acceptance of rumors because of the "treachery" of persons who are furthering German designs.

It said German warships had succeeded in passing Agdens fortress in Trondheim Fjord because Norwegian fishing vessels were on both sides of the fleet and the fortress commander feared Norwegians would be killed by his fire.

Reports from Oslo said the German occupation in the south had been extended to the city of Notodden, about 60 miles southwest of the Norwegian capital in the Telemark district.

Oslo, ruled by a new, German-approved "government commission," was nearer to normal than at any time since the invaders marched in a week ago.

Schools and banks were reopened. A moratorium was declared on the payment of bills, however, and bank withdrawals were limited to 500 kroner (about $110) a week.

The new "government" in Oslo, headed by Ingolf Elster Christensen, 60-year-old former Norwegian cabinet minister and a member of the Conservative Party, issued a proclamation demanding that all citizens of Nazi-occupied territory show loyalty to it and to the German military authorities.

New Rule Indorsed

All national organizations of commerce, trade, shipping, culture and trade unions in Oslo indorsed the "government's" order.

The chief justice of the Norwegian Supreme Court also approved the new commission. The court's sanction provided the basis for the

Germans Massing Huge Air Armada At Trondheim

Stockholm (Wednesday), April 17 (INS).—Germany today was believed to be massing a tremendous air armada at Trondheim on Norway's west coast, possibly for a vast campaign from the skies against Allied landing forces and British home bases in Scotland.

A seemingly incessant stream of German planes roared toward Trondheim from the Kastrup air field near Copenhagen and from other airdromes in north Denmark.

War Orphan Gets an Uncle

U. S. Will Establish Relations With Iceland's Government

Spreading recognition of Greenland as lying within the scope of the Monroe Doctrine, was accompanied yesterday by announcement that this country has agreed to direct relations with Iceland, deprived of foreign-relations cooperation with her Nazi-held sister kingdom, Denmark.

Hitherto, Iceland's relations with this country have been conducted through the Danish legation here and through a special trade commissioner in New York.

After the German invasion of Denmark, however, the Icelandic Parliament voted to conduct its own foreign policy.

Secretary of State Hull announced last night that he had received a telegram from the Prime Minister of Iceland, Hermann Jonasson, saying that the Icelandic government was anxious to enter into direct relations with the United States.

Hull replied that the "American Government is agreeable in the existing circumstances to the establishment of Icelandic representation," and hopes itself to open a consular office at Reykjavik, a capital of Iceland, in the near future.

Further differentiation between Denmark and Iceland came when Jesse Jones, Federal loan administrator, said that although credits of $10,000,000 allocated to Denmark might be held up, credits of $1,000,000 allocated to Iceland were still available to that country if she chose to use them.

The Treasury Department held yesterday, also, that an order preventing the withdrawal of Norwegian and Danish wealth in this country would not apply to Iceland.

Earlier in the day Lord Lothian, the British ambassador, said neither Britain nor Canada would move into Greenland or Iceland unless it seemed certain Germany was about to attempt to seize the islands.

Lothian made this statement to reporters at the State Department after a talk with officials there.

"Greenland might make a good air base for Germany," he added,

Speedy Assistance Sought

By James B. Reston
Copyright by New York Times

London, April 16.—The Norwegian Minister, Erik Colban, called at 10 Downing street today and urged Prime Minister Chamberlain to send Allied troops immediately against the Germans in south Norway, where he said help was "urgently needed."

It was confirmed here that British and French troops have made contact with the Norwegian troops in the vicinity of Narvik, and that staff talks are now proceeding to coordinate the activities of the two forces in the region, but in the south, the Germans are consolidating their gains and the disorganized Norwegians are still without effective Allied aid in that region.

Speed Emphasized

Colban stressed the necessity for speed in attacking the German forces around Trondheim. The Germans, he said, evidently are intent on dividing southern Norway into a number of isolated pockets by a series of quick encircling thrusts, as they did in Poland. Therefore, it is essential, Colban said, that if possible a landing should be made by the Allies in the south.

The urgency of relieving the Norwegians in the south is recognized by military officials here, and it may be that some of the large convoys of troops which have already left, will attempt to storm one of the ports now in Nazi hands, either directly from the sea or from one of the adjoining fjords.

27-Year-Olds Called Up

By the Associated Press

London, April 16.—An unexpected mobilization order for Britons 27 years of age tonight swelled to 850,000 the men who will be called to the Union Jack in April and May, while the British army silently perfected plans for extending operations in Norway.

Three new classes—the 27-year-olds May 5, the 26-year-olds April 27 and the 25-year-olds, called April 6, will make the 850,000 figure, and by June, neutral military men say, Britain will have just under 2,000,000 men under arms for use on two—or more—fronts.

Moreover, these sources say that Canadians, Australians and Indians now "standing to" will bring the empire's fighting forces to nearly 2,500,000.

Canadians, French Present

The British Broadcasting Co. said tonight it was "now officially confirmed" that Canadian, French and British troops are in Norway. The war office, however, declined to say this was so.

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

GILT OFF THE DOME

ROMEO & JULIET: Behind the struggle to scuttle the NLRB, young romance seems bent on creating a modern Montague and Capulet situation.

Harlan Miller

The son of Congressman Howard Smith, batwing-collared investigator of the Labor Board, is keeping company with a young lady who is one of the confidential secretaries at John L. Lewis' CIO headquarters, definitely enemy territory.

So far neither the Congressman nor John Lewis have interfered.

But two husbands intimately associated with the work of the imperilled Labor Board were flabbergasted the other evening to discover that their wives had started bank accounts at the bank controlled by hostile Congressman Smith in Alexandria, across the Potomac.

* * * *

NAZIS IN FRISCO: About 400 German sailors off the scuttled Columbus are still "in custody" at Angel's Island, in San Francisco Bay, waiting for a chance to dash across the Pacific and home via Russia. . . .

They have been there well over two months. The Nazi Consulate in San Francisco pays $1 a day apiece for their board and room, total cost of which has passed the $50,000 mark.

* * * *

Patriotic fears that these men might slip away for espionage and sabotage so far seem groundless. They haven't been allowed to do much sightseeing, but they can get permission to go to town occasionally to see a dentist.

Probably they're enjoying the war more than any other 400 Germans.

"—here comes Wendell Willkie!"

NAZIS IN MOSCOW: Americans just back from Moscow report that hotels there are so jammed with German military men, engineers, transport master-minds, technicians, farm specialists and industrial experts that many other foreigners are lucky to wangle a couch at a friendly compatriot's apartment.

* * * *

So trusting are the Bolsheviks of their new Nazi friends that they have assigned an Ogpu secret agent to shadow each Nazi expert, following them virtually into their bathrooms while shaving, and all but sleeping with them.

Berlin is trying (perhaps through expert dieticians) to induce Moscow to ration the hungry Russians so more food can go to Germany.

* * * *

THERE GOES WILLKIE: The sudden upsurge of Wendell Willkie as a G. O. P. dark horse has been accompanied by an amazing ubiquity; he seems to be everywhere.

You run into him at intellectual soirees which are slightly left wing, as well as among financial bigshots.

* * * *

This gift for getting around reminds me of the famous New Yorker Magazine cartoon in which two coal miners, at work in a remote tunnel, are suddenly electrified by the approach of Mrs. Roosevelt. The cartoon can now be redrawn with the caption:

"Here comes Wendell Willkie!"

ORATOR'S THANKS: Often the House is somnolent, and does not listen very attentively to its orators. But there are always plenty of interruptions from members who want the orator of the moment to "yield" them a few of his precious five or ten minutes.

* * * *

A Pennsylvania orator was racing through a three-minute speech when another member interrupted.

"Does the gentleman from Pennsylvania yield?" he demanded.

"No," said the Pennsylvanian, "but I'm glad my colleague is awake."

EDISON'S JOKE: The Secretary of the Navy's apartment is across the square from the White House. Often he waves to Mrs. Edison or signals her as he crosses the square.

When Mr. Edison was called to the White House after the death of his predecessor, Mr. Swanson, he arranged with his wife to signal her whether or not he got the Cabinet post.

* * * *

But he is a great practical joker. As she watched from her window, she saw him emerge, pull his hat over his eyes, his shoulders drooping sadly, and shuffle across the square. Wifelike, she began to console him as he came through the door. Then he burst out laughing. "I got it!" he exclaimed.

Van Nuys Asks U. S. Schools Be Probed

GAO Report Stirs Demand for Hearing By Senate Committee

A public hearing by a Senate committee was asked last night to inqure into the conduct of institutions of higher education with campuses in 15 Government departments and agencies.

The call came from Senator Frederick Van Nuys (Democrat), of Indiana, chairman of the Committee on Expenditures in Executive Departments, to which a detailed analysis of the operation of Federal employe schools by the General Accounting Office was referred.

The Senator said he had not had an opportunity to study the analysis, a 74-page report sent to Congress Monday by Richard N. Elliott, acting Comptroller General, but on the basis of newspaper accounts of it, he declared:

Funds Are Debated

"I believe the people and Congress should be advised of the scope of these activities. I want to hold public hearings. As chairman of the committee I have that power."

The report charged that the schools which provide university courses for thousands of Government workers lacked full authorization from Congress and had failed to account to the General Accounting Office for funds collected in fees and tuitions.

Representative John J. Cochran (Democrat), of Missouri, chairman of the Expenditures Committee of the House, which also received a copy of the report, branded it as "plain political bunk."

Dr. A. F. Woods, director of the Department of Agriculture's graduate school, largest of the Government "universities," described as "misleading" the comptroller's statement on failure to account for funds.

No United States Money Involved

Accounts of receipts and expenditure of the school, Dr. Woods said, are submitted monthly to an administrative committee of the department, headed by Roy Hendrickson, director of personnel. No Government money is involved in operation of the school, and, therefore, it had not been felt necessary to submit an accounting to the G. A. O., Dr. Woods added.

"Our books are open for examination by the General Accounting Office at any time," said Dr. Woods, former president of the University of Maryland. "In fact," he added, "the office had five men going through our accounts for three weeks, and when they got through they complimented us on their accuracy."

In this connection, Dr. Woods' records disclosed, graduate school rolls carry the names of 36 employes of the General Accounting Office, of whom about 25 are accountants. Every agency of the Government, including members of the White House and Congressional secretarial staffs, sends students to the school, Dr. Woods revealed. He estimated at 1,500 the enrollment in regular courses from outside agencies.

"Internships" Questioned

The implications of one phase of the report were evident in Elliott's statement that "many" courses appeared to go beyond "the strict training of employes" and that there had been no accounting to the Government for "considerable" sums collected, including $35,705.95 in the graduate school.

Another phase dealt with the establishment of "interneships" in Interior and other departments by which university students are permitted to study the operation of the Government at first-hand as a part of their college training.

The report pointed out that Abe Fortas, general counsel of the Bituminous Coal Commission, who was listed as one of the "faculty" supervisors of Tucker Dean, Chicago University interne, had been carried by the Dies Committee on Un-American Activities as a member of the American League for Peace and Democracy.

The National Institute of Public Affairs was cited in the report as a possible benefactor of the system. The report named the following institute trustees: Louis Brownlow, chairman of the President's reorganization committee; Eugene Meyer, publisher of The Washington Post, and Attorney General Robert H. Jackson.

Other board members are Henry L. Stimson, former Secretary of State; Robert Woods Bliss, former Ambassador to Argentina, and Dr. George F. Zook, former commissioner of education.

Civil Service Is Cited

Sixty-one former "internes" of the institute, the report said, are at present employed in the Federal Government while 30 more have found jobs with State and local establishments.

Dr. Henry Reining, the institute's director of education, pointed out that the "great majority" enter Government service "by the same route as the others—the civil service."

Kansas Leans G. O. P., Missouri Democratic In State-Wide Public Opinion Tests

By Dr. George Gallup,
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

Princeton, N. J., April 16.—Kansas, which went Democratic in 1936 even though it was the home State of Alf M. Landon, shows signs of returning to the Republican fold in a State-wide survey by the Institute. The trend away from the Democrats there has been so sharp that, in any political dope sheet, Kansas would have to be listed as a Republican State at this time.

GALLUP

It's next door neighbor Missouri, continues to lean Democratic by a substantial margin, however. Despite the recent setback to the Democratic machine in Kansas City, Mo. sentiment is nearly as strongly Democratic today, the study finds as it was in the past Presidential election and in the more recent Congressional election of 1938.

Only Six are G. O. P.

Kansas and Missouri are the twentieth and twenty-first States in which the American Institute of Public Opinion has completed previews of party sentiment in recent weeks. The results have shown six of these 21 States leaning Republican, and 15 leaning Democratic at the present time. A round-up report on all of the 48 States will be published at the end of the week.

The Kansas and Missouri study, based on the question,

Kansas Voters
Favoring Democrats ... 44
Missouri Voters
Favoring Democrats ... 58

In both States approximately one voter in every eight said he was undecided at this time what party he favored.

Sharp Shift in Kansas

The Missouri results indicate that there has been some shift of sentiment away from the Democrats, but not a large shift. Roosevelt carried the State four years ago with 61 per cent of the major vote—or 3 per cent more than the present Democratic percentage in the survey. In 1938 the Democratic vote cast for Congressmen in the State was 59 per cent, and for Senator (Bennett Clark) 61 per cent.

In Kansas, however, the shift away from the Democratic Party has been dramatic. Roosevelt carried the State in 1936 with 54 per cent. Two years later the Democrats were in the minority in the voting for Governor, Senator and Congressmen, polling 44 per cent in the senatorial race, and only 41 per cent in the Congressional balloting. The present Democratic strength—44 per cent in the Institute survey—is a full ten points below the Democratic vote in 1936.

A sharp difference of sentiment in Kansas and Missouri on the third term for President was found in the study.

In Kansas, 63 per cent of voters polled said they would vote against President Roosevelt for a third term. In Missouri, on the other hand, a small majority (53 per cent) said they would vote for him.

Political Box Score to Date

In a preconvention preview of the 1940 Presidential race the Gallup Poll is asking voters in each State: "Which party would you like to see win the Presidential election?" Following are the results for 21 States reported thus far:

Witness Asks SEC to Redraft Investment Bill

A Senate Banking subcommittee witness urged yesterday that proposed legislation to regulate investment trusts be sent back to the Securities and Exchange Commission, where it originated, for redrafting in collaboration with members of the industry.

Asserting that the industry desired enactment of regulatory legislation, Paul Cabot, president of the State Street Investment Corporation of Boston, suggested that the committee cutline the broad principles it wished to have incorporated in the bill and then let the SEC and representatives of the industry chosen by the committee work out details.

Cabot and Mahlon E. Traylor, president of the Massachusetts Distributors, Inc., of Boston, testified as members of the "open-end" section of the industry. In open-end investment trusts, shareholders have a contractual right to withdraw the proportionate value of their investment at any time.

Both witnesses criticized primarily what they said were too-broad discretionary powers which the pending legislation would grant to the SEC.

Traylor said the bill would subject the business to "objectionable censorship, red tape and bureaucratic control."

"The discretionary powers and delegations of legislative authority given to the Securities Commission are dangerously broad," Traylor asserted. "If the bill is passed in its present form Congress will be giving the SEC carte blanche to regulate the investment trust industry in virtually any way it sees fit."

Cabot asserted that in some parts the pending legislation provided for unnecessary "snooping" by the SEC, and that its restrictions on directorships would make it necessary to fill boards of directors with "idle architects, musicians, doctors and the like" instead of experienced financiers.

Colored Judge To Be Sought

A request signed by 22 local and national colored organizations asking that "a competent colored attorney who has been in active practice" be selected for the vacant Police Court judgeship, will be presented to Attorney General Robert Jackson today.

The formal request will be presented by Frederick Weaver, a clerk in the office of the Recorder of Deeds, who is editor of the publication sponsored by Omega Psi Phi, national undergraduate fraternity for colored students.

Beat Chains With Service, Merchant Says

By the Associated Press

The owner of a small chain of retail grocery stores in Kentucky told a House Ways and Means subcommittee yesterday that any independent merchant could compete with chains "if he attends to his own business, serves his customers well with good quality merchandise at reasonable and fair prices."

Opposing the Patman bill to tax interstate chains, Lewis W. Cole, Louisville, Ky., owner of the Seiden Stores, said his 32 units, all located in Kentucky and most of them in Louisville, operated in competition with the Nation's two largest retail grocery chains "and still manage to do very well."

"The individual merchant," he said, "cannot make a success of his business if he spends his time trying to find legislative panaceas for his own shortcomings, or if he is depending upon legislation to meet his competitive problem."

Farmers Oppose Bill

The measure was opposed also by Frank H. Brown, manager of the Vermont Maple Cooperative, Inc., of Essex Junction, Vt., and by Walter S. Schmidt, of Cincinnati, representing the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

Brown, whose cooperative is an organization of Vermont farmers, said the chain store "comes nearer being the answer to our marketing problem than any other kind of distribution."

"Put our chain customers out of business and you put us out of business," he added.

Rail Labor Leader Asks 'Fair Chance'

Roads Are Suffering From Federal Subsidies To Competitors, He Says

George M. Harrison, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks, yesterday called on Congress "to give the railroads a fair chance to compete for the transportation business."

The railway labor leader, who said he spoke for 1,300,000 workers, asserted that Federal road-building expenditures for highways and inland waterways afford a direct subsidy to competitors of the railroads.

"If these forms of transportation cannot be maintained without subsidies, the Government might as well take over all transport facilities and operate them as a social function," Harrison told the Temporary National Economic Committee.

The witness stated that technological advances have wiped out 622,426 jobs in the rail industry since 1921. Labor's share in the railroads' receipts is constantly diminishing, he said. In 1920, he stated, labor received 55.4 cents out of every dollar taken in by the railroads. In 1938 the figure had fallen to 44.4 cents.

Railway labor favors the use of lightweight equipment capable of giving more frequent service, as a means of combatting the industry's competitors and increasing employment, Harrison continued, "while the railway management of today still believes in the heavy power age of 20 years ago."

"Our industry has been beset by depression, development of other modes of transportation and discriminatory Federal legislation," he asserted. "The Government has not only helped our opponents but gone into direct competition with us in the parcel post and inland waterways."

Harrison suggested that Congress might "make a start" on the railway unemployment problem by reducing the present work-week and spreading existing employment further.

Attack Fails, Senate Passes New Judge Bill

Measure, Voted 47-21, Creates 3 Circuit, 6 District Justices

Routing a three-day attack by Senator Reed (Republican), of Kansas, the Senate yesterday passed, 47 to 21, a bill creating three new circuit and six new district judgeships.

In fact, despite Senator Reed's assault against the House-approved measure, the Senate enlarged the bill by adding one circuit judge which the House had not provided for, and by raising the salary of the district judge for the Virgin Islands from $7,500 to $10,000. The bill now goes to conference.

The measure adds one justice to the United States Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit (Ohio, Michigan, Kentucky and Tennessee), and two to the Eighth Circuit (Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, Nebraska, Arkansas and the Dakotas), and one district judge in California, New Jersey, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, New York and Florida.

Persistent efforts of Senator Reed to knock out one District judgeship after another were defeated yesterday by voice votes and one roll call of 41 to 18. A minor flurry was caused when, just prior to the final vote, Senator McCarran (Democrat), of Nevada, introduced his amendment to increase the salary of the judge for the Virgin Islands.

Pointing out that the salary of all other Federal district judges, including one in China, was $10,000, Senator McCarran advocated an ending of the "discrimination" against the Virgin Islands.

Judge Herman E. Moore, the incumbent, who is colored, has carried on his work expeditiously and to "the credit of the Federal court," McCarran said.

Lime Group Opposes Marble Limit

Legislators from the "limestone States" yesterday assailed a House resolution sponsored by their colleagues from the "marble States," which would make use of marble mandatory in building new homes for the War and Navy Departments.

Limestone advocates were heartened by the reading of a letter from Gilmore D. Clarke, chairman of the Fine Arts Commission, advising that it would be "unsound policy" to create a virtual monopoly.

Representatives Crowe and Ludlow (Democrats), of Indiana, leading limestone States, and representatives of the Hoosier industry, led the assault.

126 in House Sign Pension Bill Petition

Rankin Confident Bill for Veterans' Widows Will Pass

By John B. Oakes,
Post Staff Writer

A bill granting pensions to dependent widows and orphans of all World War veterans gained momentum on its way to the House floor yesterday as its sponsor, Representative Rankin (Democrat) of Mississippi, predicted certain passage within two weeks.

The measure would cost the Governmenternment an annual sum estimated at from $8,000,000 to $48,000,000.

Defeated in his effort Monday to slide the bill through the House by unanimous consent, Representative Rankin immediately offered a petition to blast it out of the Rules Committee and on to the floor of the House. By yesterday afternoon the petition had received 126 signatures, more than half the required 218.

Confident of Passage

"There's no doubt whatsoever that the signatures will be obtained and that the bill will pass," declared Representative Rankin yesterday. "There won't be 12 votes against it."

Rankin, who is chairman of the World War Veterans' Legislation Committee, estimated the annual cost of the bill at "between six and eight million dollars;" but Representative Costello (Democrat), of California, leading opponent of general pension legislation, declared that the bill would eventually cost the Government over $48,000,000 a year.

In blocking Rankin's attempt to obtain unanimous consent for the bill, Costello—the only man in the House to vote against last year's pension measure—was joined by Representative Miller (Republican), of Connecticut, a legless veteran of the World War, and by Representative Kean (Republican), of New Jersey, holder of the Distinguished Service Cross.

Costello warned the House that the bill was a "stepping stone" for universal pensions for veterans. The measure opens the way, he said, to a $60 a month pension for all veterans, which would cost the Nation a total of $20,000,000,000 between now and 1996, when the last World War veteran could be expected to die.

Representative Rankin, on the other hand, said the bill granted only a "small pittance" to the widows and orphans of World War veterans, "many of whom probably died of disabilities growing out of World War service."

Pensions Restricted

He was seconded by Representative Rogers, of Massachusetts, ranking Republican on his committee, who declared that the bill would not cost the taxpayers any more than if the pension recipients were on relief. She pointed out that the measure grants pensions only to those widows who have an income of less than $1,000 a year.

Meanwhile, the Senate Finance Committee ordered a survey of proposed alterations in the social security system. Senator George (Democrat), of Georgia, was named chairman of the subcommittee conducting the inquiry into: provisions of the Social Security Act relating to old age assistance, Federal old age and survivors' insurance benefits, and Federal insurance contributions; bills on social security introduced in the present Congress; and proposals dealing with similar subjects, which may be submitted to the subcommittee during its study.

Others named in the Federal indictment were Drs. Edward Hipsh, Phillip Saper, Carroll P. Hungate and Joseph Getelson. The indictment charged the physicians issued "prescriptions for narcotic drugs, not for bona fide patients."

Called 'Thomson School Bard,' Girl, 10, Just Likes to Write

Betsy Korson Turns Out Poems and Plays And Has a Novel

BETSY LOU KORSON

They call her "the Bard of Thompson School."

Pretty little Betsy Lou Korson is just 10 years old, but as long as she can remember she has been writing—poems, plays and stories.

"I just like to write," she said yesterday. "Whenever I think of a thing, a poem comes out."

Betsy Lou started reciting poems on her third birthday and as soon as she learned to write she began to compose plays, often acted out by came to Washington from Pennsylher class in school. Last May she vania and entered Thomson School, where she immediately wrote and directed the spring play, "Day in Holland."

Since then, she has been specializing in poems illustrating points her teacher in Grade 5-B makes in school. "Whenever Miss Hilton asks me to do a verse, I think a few minutes, then write it down and recite it in class," she said modestly.

Last summer Betsy decided to write a book and, with the help of her mother's typing, completed a 5,000-word novel called "Murder on the Fourth of July." You would never expect such gruesome subjects from the talented author of poetic fantasies.

She admires Louise Alcott and thinks her "Little Women" the best book she ever read.

Her father, George Korson, of 1301 Fifteenth street northwest, is also a writer, having done several books on American folklore. He envies Betsy's ease of writing. "She can compose a first-class poem in 15 minutes and often writes full plays in an evening," he said with a sigh.

Typical of her work is a poem she wrote yesterday, called "God's Art:"

"Cherry blossoms, oh so pink,
Cannot be drawn by pen or ink.
For only God's pen can express
Their beauty and their tenderness.
A mortal no matter how hard he may try
Cannot paint a picture as lovely as sky.
A statue though tall and stately it may be
Can never compare with God's beautiful tree.
Many great artists will rise and will fall
But God still remains the greatest of all."

Guffey Accused Of PuttingPressure On Postmasters

Harrisburg, Pa., April 16 (AP).—Edward J. Thompson, manager of the campaign for Walter A. Jones, opponent of Senator Guffey in the Democratic primary, today sent to the Federal Civil Service Commission a letter he said went from a Guffey lieutenant in Sullivan County to a postmaster asking for a contribution to the Guffey campaign.

This, Thompson asserted, was "subjecting Federal officeholders to political pressure" and as such, in his opinion, was a violation of the Hatch Act.

The Guffey State chairman, Luther A. Harr, said his organization knew nothing about the incident.

Thompson also said:

"We have also received complaints that in some counties all postmasters have been requested to contribute 5 per cent of their annual salaries to the Guffey campaign fund."

Pharmacists' Auxiliary Aids Blood Bank Fund

A check for $80.10 was presented to the Children's Hospital blood bank fund yesterday by Mrs. W. H. Whittlesey, president, and a committee representing the District Pharmaceutical Association women's auxiliary. The money was raised at a party given by the group April 3 in connection with the city-wide campaign sponsored by The Post and WJSV to support the blood and serum bank. Mrs. Whittlesey was accompanied by Mrs. Samuel Waddell, Mrs. Roger Lusby, Mrs. Jack Schneider, Mrs. Raymond Watson, Mrs. Ernest Gore, Mrs. F. N. Gold and Mrs. I. Goldberg.

China Thanks U. S.

China's gratitude for the $45,000,000 in credits made available by this Government since 1938 was expressed to President Roosevelt yesterday by Dr. K. P. Chen, Chinese purchasing agent. Chen was accompanied by Secretary Morgenthau and the Chinese Ambassador, Hu Shih.

Roosevelt Asks Rail Bill Action, June 1 Recess

President Roosevelt yesterday informed Democratic Congressional leaders that he was anxious for Congress to adjourn by June 1.

Surveying the legislative situation with Vice President Garner, Senate Majority Leader Barkley and House Majority Leader Sam Rayburn, the President expressed hope action would be forthcoming soon on the Wheeler-Lea railroad rehabilitation bill, now in conference.

Barkley said President Roosevelt discussed the relief bill. Thus far, the Kentuckian said, the President has yet to make any recommendation to increase the appropriation over the $985,000,000 requested in his original budget.

Rayburn said that the bill would be brought before the House in the first week in May.

Mrs. Edith Mayo Named 'American Mother for 1940'

New York, April 16 (AP).—Mrs. Edith Graham Mayo, of Rochester, Minn., widow of the famous surgeon, Charles H. Mayo, of the Mayo Clinic, and mother of eight children, today was named "The American Mother for 1940" to represent the Nation's mothers here on Mothers' Day.

She was selected by the American mothers' national committee of the Golden Rule Foundation, which sponsors the annual award of a medal to the woman "representative of the best there is in womanhood."

Mrs. Mayo also has an adopted daughter and a foster son. Among her children are Dr. Charles W. Mayo, surgeon at the Mayo Clinic; Mrs. Edith Rankin, wife of a surgeon at Lexington, Ky., and Mrs. Esther Hartzell, wife of a physician and surgeon in Detroit. Another son, Dr. Joseph G. Mayo, was killed accidentally in 1936. Daughter Louise Mayo Trenholm, of Rochester, is active in politics and noted as a sculptor.

FBI Agent Tells of Plan To Arm 'Front'

National Guard Captain Had Orders to Supply Ammunition, He Says

By the Associated Press

New York, April 16.—The star Government witness in the sedition trial of 16 men testified on cross-examination today that the Federal Bureau of Investigation had asked Capt. George Barker of the National Guard to cooperate with him in making ammunition available to the accused plotters.

The witness, Denis Healy, who moved among the alleged conspirators as an ostensible friend but actually as an agent for the FBI, has been described by defense counsel as an "agent provocateur."

"This man (Capt. Barker) was told to do anything you wanted?" asked Defense Attorney Walter Thayer.

"Anything within reason," said the witness. The testimony tied in with his unamplified declaration yesterday that a National Guard officer had given him a machine-gun belt and "about 50 rounds of 30.06 shells."

He acknowledged, as the cross-examination proceeded, that he never had seen any of the ammunition which the Government claims had been stolen from Government stores, adding, however, that William Gerald Bishop, a defendant, had told him he had received two machine-gun belts of ammunition from Capt. John T. Prout, jr., National Guard, another defendant.

This ammunition, Prout's counsel brought out, could have been bought at a total cost of about $9.

Earlier, Healy testified that John F. Cassidy, another defendant, told him "the Christian Front would not openly advocate shooting the Congressmen who had voted to amend the arms embargo act."

"But in his opinion they should be shot," Healy said Cassidy declared at a basement meeting in the Healy home last November 4.

"Gen. Van Horn Moseley" was expected to become "dictator" of the United States after the Government had been overthrown by violence, Healy said.

"Gen. Moseley's" name, he testified, cropped up in the role of a potential American dictator during a dinner at Healy's home last December 5.

It was not brought out whether the witness meant Gen. George Van Horn Moseley, U. S. Army, retired.

Healy said Prout and Bishop attended the dinner.

When the Line Is Busy, You'll Understand Now

Washington leads the world's major cities in number of telephones per population, it was revealed yesterday in statistics released by the American Telephone & Telgraph Co.

The District's 239,668 telephones represent 40.14 per 100 population, almost double the proportion of New York City, which is 22.26 per cent of the population, or 1,632,348 telephones. San Francisco, Stockholm, Denver, Los Angeles, Seattle, Omaha, Minneapolis, Chicago, Toronto, Vancouver, Zurich, and Copenhagen all have a higher percentage of phones than New York City.

Statistics also disclosed that the national average is 15.4 telephones for every 100 inhabitants, as against 1 per 100 in the rest of the world.

Cities Scored For Failure To Aid Youth

Local communities are "falling far short" of meeting youth problems, the National Youth Commission, headed by Owen D. Young, charged in a sharply-worded statement yesterday.

Assailing the "general failure of local communities to distinguish the youth problem from unemployment as a whole," the statement read in part:

"The situation calls for organized local action, not in a few scattered cities and towns, but in every substantial proportion of all American communities."

Urging leadership in a fact-finding, Nation-wide survey of youth problems—urban and rural—the commission cited three outsanding reasons why the problem is not being met:

Failure of the vast majority of communities to provide in their public schools adequate vocational guidance or training adjusted to the needs of the local labor market.

Inadequate provisions for the apprenticing and training of new workers, making it increasingly difficult in many communities for youth to get a start.

Lack of coordination in youth programs already established.

The commission accordingly recommended that a public work-study program be made available to every unemployed boy and girl out of school.

Navy Officer Sued for Balm By Statistician

Miss Mulford Asks $10,000 Damages Of Comdr. Sanborn

Mary Mulford, Government statistician, of 3051 Idaho avenue northwest, sued Lieut. Comdr. Alden Ream Sanborn, U. S. N., for $10,000 damages for breach of promise in the District Court yesterday.

Commander Sanborn, a staff officer of the aircraft scout force, is due to dock at Norfolk this week. Miss Mulford's complaint said that June 14, 1939, he promised to marry her. Later, her complaint said, Sanborn changed his mind, and February 11, 1940, wrote his regrets, saying "if man could only be a bigamist it would all be so easy."

A few weeks later, Miss Mulford's complaint said, she read in a San Diego, Calif., paper an extensive account of the wedding of Sanborn and Marjorie Stewart Storay, of San Diego. A copy of the article was attached to the complaint by Attorneys Julius I. Peyser and Aaron W. Jacobson, who represented Miss Mulford.

Miss Mulford, in 1932, was married at Ellicott City, Md., to Roger William Yeomans, who has been an officer of the Bituminous Coal Commission and now is a liaison officer on the staff of the executive office of the President. Her age was given at that time as 32.

Chief Justice Alfred A. Wheat, of the Dirstict Court, granted her a divorce June 28, 1937.

Lieut. Comdr. Sanborn is 40 years old and was graduated from the Naval Academy in 1922. He received his present rank in June, 1937.

Woman Asks Court SilenceChurch Bell

New York, April 16 (INS).—Miss Ruth Baxter went to court today to stop the neighborhood church bells from ringing so she can sleep.

She asked Magistrate Hoppin to summon the Rev. Tuciarone of St. Sebastien Church because the church bells awaken her at 7 a. m. on Sunday and 8 a. m. weekdays.

The judge refused to issue a summons but said he would have a talk with the priest and see what could be done, reminding Miss Baxter: "Churches and church bells are a necessary part of our life."

D. A. R. Moves To Pay Debt On D. C. Hall

Change in Election Of Vice Presidents Also Proposed at Session

representing "about 7.5 percent of the total pay roll of the national society, a percentage far in excess of that found posible by industrial organizations."

She said that the "potential obligation" now approached $20,000, or approximately 16 per cent of the annual pay roll.

Mrs. Robert said the present plan, if continued, would endanger the future security of the society.

Three resolutions designed to establish a sound retirement system are being proposed by the national board of management, for adoption by the Congress.

Retirement Plan Fund

One of the resolutions provides for the use of the $100,000 originally pledged as a liberty loan to become, the basis of the permanent foundation for placing the retirement of the employes of the National Society upon a sound actuarial basis.

The society will decide whether to use for the retirement plan this fund, originally established through voluntary contributions of members, to provide income for pensions for "real daughters" and for Spanish-American war nurses. As this need diminishes, the fund would be free for other uses.

Mrs. Robert said that D. A. R. members in the past year had seen a change in the opinion of "many who have formerly doubted the justification of the society's position in urging that the menaces to our free institutions and our American way of life be brought into the light."

"However," she said, "there are still those who misunderstand, who think our membership and our policies are antiquated."

Treasurer Gives Report

The report of the treasurer general Miss Page Schwarzwaelder, yesterday showed that the society's receipts last year amounted to $431,309.24 and disbursements were $223,653.24.

Receipts from events at Constitution Hall totaled $34,004.54, with $17,239.02 required for operating expenses.

The report of Mrs. George D. Schermerhorn, organizing secretary general, pointed out that in the first part of the past year "there appeared to be an alarming number of chapters disbanding." But she said that efforts of State regents had helped to restore chapters "which were on their way toward collapse." During the past year, 27 chapters were organized and eight disbanded. This net gain of 19 was one more than for the previous year, she said.

The report of the registrar general, Mrs. Frank Leon Nason, showed that 6,209 applications for membership were verified in the past year, with an additional 1,182 supplemental papers verified.

Mrs. Leland Stanford Duxbury, historian general, in her report at yesterday's business session, said that 413 chapters have reported Golden Jubilee projects connected with historical work.

The 1940 Junior Assembly, for which 276 members have registered, was held yesterday afternoon in Continental Hall.

2,500 Greet Officers

Last night a throng of D. A. R. members, estimated at 2,500, streamed across the stage of Constitution Hall to be greeted by their president general and other national officers.

The receiving line, stretching the entire length of the stage, made a vivid picture, with corsages and arm bouquets of roses added to multi-colored evening gowns.

Mrs. Robert, president general, at the head of the line, wore a filmy white dress, studded with pearl beads, with a corsage of baby white orchids and purple orchids. Next to her, stood the honorary presidents general, then the vice presidents general and other national officers.

State Regents Receive

The United States Army Band Orchestra played lively music, as the crowd filed through and dissolved into smaller groups in the flag-marked boxes where the State regents were receiving. A number of Congressmen were present.

The girls, serving as pages for the congress, attended a ball at the Mayflower Hotel last night after they had been greeted by Mrs. Robert and the other officers at the start of the reception at Constitution Hall.

Mrs. Julius Y. Talmadge, of Georgia, served as chairman of the reception committee last night, and kept the crowd moving steadily across the stage. Among the vice chairmen, assisting in handling visitors, was Mrs. William H. Pouch, of New York, who has been endorsed by her State delegation, as candidate for president general in the 1941 election.

'Well, Have a Job,' Missing Boy, 15, Writes Mother

"Dear Mother: Do not worry . . . I am well and have a job," was the letter Mrs. Jayne Weiselogel, 1443 Spring road northwest, received yesterday in what she believes to be the handwriting of her son, James Arthur, 15, who disappeared last Wednesday night and had not been heard from since.

The widowed mother appealed to The Post after she had received no word from the boy.

The postmark on the letter was too obliterated to read, Mrs. Weiselogel said.

The youth disappeared after going downtown to see the movie, "Young Tom Edison." Mrs. Weiselogel wants her son to know he will not tbe punished if he returns home.

Louisiana Defeats 4 Long Proposals

New Orleans, April 16 (AP).—Louisiana today formally elected Sam Jones its Governor and swept to defeat four constitutional amendments proposed and indorsed by incumbent Gov. Earl K. Long.

The vote was interpreted as full indorsement by the people of the program of Governor designate Jones, who smashed the 12-year-old political dynasty of Huey P. Long in the Democratic primary in February.

Jones was opposed today by W. W. Tuttle, the first Republican candidate in many years, but of the first 11,000 votes counted Tuttle got only eight.

Washington's Early Birds Club, which meets at the unrivaled hour of 8 a. m. each Tuesday, last night turned its program topsy-turvy by banqueting at the Willard Hotel beneath a flurry of flying napkins.

Staid business etiquette was forgotten as 80 members and guests let their hair down in good fellowship.

The gathering represented a cross-section of Washington business and fraternal club leaders headed by William Edelblut, president, printing official, who is also head of the Cosmopolitan Club. Honor guest was J. Harry Cunningham, secretary of the Gridiron Club, who was first president of the Early Birds.

Bill Proposes 'Plucking Board' To Weed Out Unfit Admirals

By John G. Norris

Provision for a Navy "plucking board" to meet here this summer and select two or three rear admirals for retirement, was written into a naval bill yesterday.

Senate and House conferees on a long-deadlocked naval personnel bill reached full agreement on disputed terms of the measure and prepared to report back to their respective houses. Early approval of both is expected.

Major provision of the measure beside the "plucking board" for admirals is a suspension of the Navy's forced retirement law in the case of eight World War aviators who were scheduled for transfer to the inactive list June. They will remain in service until 1944.

Under the terms of the bill, a special board consisting of the three ranking officers of the Navy, the chief of naval operations, commander in chief of the United States Fleet and the commander of the Battle Force, would meet each year that normal losses in the rank of rear admiral are less than nine. Then they would select the least fit professionally and physically of the officers of that grade for enforced retirement to bring the vacancies to nine.

Officials said last night that contemplated vacancies among admirals this year are three short of the requirement, which would require that number to be "plucked" if no admirals died or applied for retirement before this summer.

Somewhat similar provisions were contained in a bill passed two years ago, but proved ineffective as far as the Navy was concerned. The bill was applied to the Marine Corps, however, and Brig. Gen. James J. Meade was retired a year ago under its terms as physically unfit.

Friends took Meade's case to Congress, and the Senate wrote a provision into the pending bill restoring him to the active list. Opposition in the House balked an agreement on the measure for more than a year. Under a compromise reached yesterday, General Meade and any other "plucked" Marine general or Navy admiral will receive the retired pay of a senior rear admiral, $6,000 per year.

In agreeing to retain the eight World War aviators, the conferees dropped a House-approved proviso which would have retained on active duty all officers ruled "fitted" but not "best fitted" by the annual boards and scheduled for retirement due to lack of posts available for officers of their rank.

A maximum of 12 other World War aviators who might be scheduled for retirement before 1944, would also be "saved" by the provision, it is said. The eight aircraft pioneers affected are:

Commander David Rittenhouse, winner of the 1923 Schneider Speed Trophy in England, now a Navy inspector at the Grumman Aircraft Factory.

Commander Harold J. Brow, commander of the Almeda, Calif., Naval Air Station.

Commander R. D. Lyon, holder of a seaplane endurance record in 1926 and now an instructor at the naval flying school at Pensacola, Fla.

Commander Cyrus Simard, operations officers at the San Diego, Naval Air Station.

Commander B. J. Connell, pilot of first plane to fly from United States to Hawaii, now engineering officer at Naval Aircraft Factory, Philadelphia.

Reich Claims Cruiser Sunk With Bombs

'Flying Battleship' Reported Destroyed; British Deny Story

By the Associated Press

Berlin, April 16.—Germany tonight reported the bombing and sinking of an unidentified British cruiser and the destruction of a British "flying battleship" as her "pacification" of Norway continued at a pace apparently satisfactory to the Nazis.

The high command announced that the cruiser was struck by bombs yesterday off the Norwegian coast. The ship listed sharply, it was reported, and later sank.

There were no details in the announcement on the destruction of the British "Sunder amphibian flying battleship."

(In London, there was no immediate statement from the admiralty on the cruiser, but the air ministry asserted no flying boat was missing.)

The reference to a "Sunder amphibian" apparently was to the huge Sunderland flying boats used by Great Britain. The authoritative Jane's "All the World's Aircraft" does not list a "Sunder amphibian."

Meanwhile, various items published here indicated that resistance was being broken effectively in Norway.

Also, Germany apparently had found a Norwegian government to its liking, for official relations were established between the German minister in Oslo, Kurt Brauer, and the interim government headed by Ingolf Elster Christensen, former Norwegian army captain and one-time cabinet minister.

Haakon Apparently Destroyed

King Haakon VII apparently ceased to exist as a contact point for the German minister and the question whether he will sanction the provisional cabinet appointed by the chief justice of the Norwegian Supreme Court seemed immaterial to the Germans except as it affected the King's personal status.

Germans have insisted the new government was established in accord with the will of the Norwegian people and without any German pressure.

DNB said the Germans had strengthened their antiaircraft defenses at occupied centers, especially Bergen, Throndheim, and Stavanger.

The agency also said light and heavy antiaircraft artillery units have reached Norway from Germany.

An unannounced number of Norwegian civilians were killed, DNB added, during a British air raid on Stavanger last night when a number of houses were struck by high explosive bombs. Damage to the Stavanger airport was repaired quickly, the Germans added.

An indication that German troops had penetrated westward from Oslo to the city of Notodden, about 60 miles southwest of the capital, was given in a DNB report that Nazi troops blew up the Norwegian broadcasting station there. DNB said the station had been disseminating anti-German broadcasts.

CAA Report Clears Lample In Plane Crash

Wife Also in Wreck With Assistant Chief Of Airway Engineers

A report exonerating Chris M. Lample, acting assistant chief of the airways engineering division of the Civil Aeronautics Authority, in connection with a plane crash at Baltimore last September 5 was filed with the Authority yesterday.

Oswald Ryan, member of the Authority, who heard the case as a trial examiner, said the evidence "seems to indicate that he suffered from what is described as 'retrograde amnesia.'"

"Dr. William Horsley Gantt, an eminent authority on psychiatry at Johns Hopkins Hospital, defended 'retrograde amnesia' as a loss of memory with respect to events preceding an accident, and stated that it may result from brain concussion," Ryan added.

"Mrs. Lample also testified that she had no recollection of the period prior to the accident."

Lample and his wife, then his fiancee, were returning to Washington from Newark at the time of the accident. Lample landed the plane in a garden in the Gardenville section of Baltimore.

Ryan said it was "difficult to conclude" that a man of Lample's experience and reputation as a careful pilot "would have been flying at a hazardously low altitude in a Government plane with his future wife beside him with no other motive than that of exhibitionism or the reckless desire to attract the attention of persons on the ground."

Mind Own Business, Nazis Tell Roosevelt

Berlin, April 16 (AP).—Commenting on President Roosevelt's recently expressed disapprobation of the Nazi invasion of Norway, authorized German sources suggested bluntly today that he would do well to mind his own business.

"All we ask," these sources said, "is that American history be examined from the viewpoint of necessities at various times for national expansion. We believe that fair-minded Americans will then realize there are striking parallels between American needs in the past and German needs at present."

Mexicans Uncover Nazi, Soviet Agitators

Mexico City, April 16 (AP).—Informed government sources said today Mexican secret police had evidence of undercover activities of Nazi and Communist agents seeking to foment an uprising to divert American nations, particularly the United States, from any move to enter the European conflict.

They expressed confidence any such movement would be nipped at the start.

Swiss Council Acts to Bolster National Defense

Berne, April 16 (AP).—The Swiss Federal Council today announced it had "taken necessary steps for the security of the nation."

The announcement followed reports from Basle that 15 German divisions had returned to their positions in the region north of Switzerland's frontier which they had held before they were withdrawn when Germany invaded Norway and Denmark.

The council's communique said details of its action would be announced later.

Simultaneously the Swiss army general staff called up for active service on April 19 two battalions and one regiment of mountain and reserve troops.

British Defeat Nazis in France

Paris, April 16 (INS). — British troops on the Western Front today beat back a heavy German onslaught inflicting "serious losses" on the attackers, the French war office announced tonight.

It was the first pitched land engagement on the Western Front between considerable German forces and the British holding the western sector of the front lines just south of the Luxemburg border.

Heavy shellfire from German guns preceded and covered the German infantry advance upon the British line, but British machinegun and hand grenade fire apparently broke the attack, the communique said.

Envoy Doubts Norwegians Sold Out

Hints at Secret Action By Germans Living In Norway

A troubled Minister from Norway yesterday made personal reply to reports from Scandinavia that key Norwegian leaders committed treason to help German forces enter their country.

"I personally cannot believe that any Norwegian would do such a monstrous thing," Minister Wilhelm Munthe de Morgenstierne said in an interview as he motored from the Norwegian Legation to a New York-bound train at Union Station.

"I just cannot believe it," he declared.

"I have cabled my government for fuller information. As soon as I hear from them I will make a statement in the name of Norway. But my personal feeling is that it just cannot be true."

It was the Minister's belief that "Germans must have done it."

Many Germans Live There

He explained that many German businessmen, shopkeepers and professional people live in Norway and might have secretly acted as advance agents for the German government.

Discussing reports that German warships were aided by traitorous Norwegians in landing at Narvik and penetrating Oslo Fjord, the Norwegian Minister admitted that these successes would not have been possible unless the Norwegians had been ordered not to fire. Oslo Fjord, he said, is easy to defend, especially where it bottlenecks near Horten.

The German Embassy had a full explanation of the reported "cease fire" orders at Oslo Fjord.

"Undoubtedly they were caused by confusion in the minds of Norse soldiers and not by treason," said Heribert von Strempel, First Secretary of the Embassy.

"There have been so many Norwegian governments during the last few days that the Norse soldiers probably did not know which one to obey," explained Von Strempel.

Merchant Fleet Problems

Going to New York with Minister Morgenstierne was Capt. L. Villars-Dahl, a lawyer and officer in the Norwegian army, who recently was appointed to the legation to handle shipping problems.

Care of Norwegian shipping has been forced upon the legation, Minister Morgenstierne explained, because the vessels have been receiving wireless orders—supposedly faked—from their "owners," to put into Italian and Spanish ports.

On the fire now for consideration by Villars-Dahl and Morgenstierne is the question of transferring the entire Norse merchant marine to American registry.

The Maritime Commmission said transfer to American registry was unlikely.

Russian Press Attack Dies, U. S.

Copyright by New York Times

Moscow, April 16.—The United States is the object of two attacks in the Soviet press today—one in the newspaper Vechernaya Moskva dealing with the Dies Committee, and the other in the Prevda referring to Mexico.

The first attack is directed against the Dies Committee's demand that the Communist Party produce its books, accounts and list of members. The writer says of the committee: "Its very first steps revealed it to be the tool of capitalistic, reactionary elements, whose purpose is to terrorize class-conscious trade unions and progressive organizations."

The second attack accuses American imperialists in Mexico of trying "to force the Mexican people to their knees."

Polish Aviator Bags 2 Germans

Paris, April 16 (AP).—A Polish flier shot down two German warplanes and dropped to safety in a parachute after his own craft was hit, it was announced today in an official account of a Polish squadron's first action on the Western Front.

The announcement said the Polish flier attacked a German squadron yesterday and accounted for two bombers but was wounded by fire from German pursuit planes and fell in the French lines.

Norway Asks Allies to Rush Army to South

Minister to London Emphasizes Need For Speedy Landing

not strictly an official agency for the dissemination of news. It prepares its own news reports from the product of the regular news agencies and newspapers, on the whole.)

One official spokesman, in declining to comment on the reports, said the news of who, precisely, is in Norway would be "of greater interest" to Germany than to people in the United States.

Despite the official secrecy, it was learned from a reliable quarter that Britain is pushing plans for further expeditions to the north with all possible speed.

One person said that nothing being forgotten, that there even were pack saddles for reindeer in the equipment for Norway.

The army, it was emphasized, could not, however, use all the plans prepared for the 100,000 Allied troops which had been made ready for fighting in Finland for the expedition to Norway, because methods of landing, the character of the country and the type of warfare are so different.

However, London newspapers and military experts complimented the army on landing a fully equipped expedition in a week's time. They said it was one of the greatest feats of quick organization ever accomplished by British military strategists. (In Berlin, spokesmen continued to deny that the Allies had landed troops in any part of German-held Norway.)

Stavanger Bombed Seventh Time

The nation's air arm bombed German-held Stavanger, Norway, for the seventh time in five days, while the army was reported prepared to set up antiaircraft batteries on Norwegian shores to protect landing forces from the German air force.

The seventh raid on Stavanger was called "successful" by the air ministry, with pilots reporting that they were guided by the light of two extensive fires on the bomb-pocked terrain. Two British planes were lost over the North Sea yesterday.

British News Agency reports, lacking official confirmation, said there was a new naval battle in the Skagerrak, near Marstrand Island.

[There was no official mention from either Britain or Germany of naval operations today, and British sources ignored a German announcement that a British heavy cruiser was sunk yesterday off Norway.]

A government spokesman said a British expeditionary force had landed in Denmark's Faroe Islands, north of Scotland, and the admiralty released a recapitulation which put the total of German merchant ship losses at 363,930 tons and claimed that 11 German transports and naval auxiliaries had been sunk and scuttled and four merchant vessels captured since war moved into the northern seas.

British submarines were declared to have torpedoed seven of the German naval auxiliary and troop ships and to have sunk at least 18,000 tons of German merchant shipping.

The lone British merchant marine loss last week was said to have been the steamer Stancliffe, 5,511 gross tonnage, torpedoed off the north Scottish coast last Friday with a loss of 24 men. Four neutral vessels and one Norwegian ship were sunk during the week.

However, a parliamentary report from the shipping ministry said 81 British merchant ships, including 17 trawlers, had been sunk by German U-boats up to April 10. Lloyd's lists 172 British vessels sunk since the start of the war from all war causes.

Prime Minister Chamberlain, who likely will refrain for the rest of the week from making a statement on the northern land operations, because of military secrecy requirements, told the Free Church Council that Germany had made many miscalculations, but "none greater than the invasion of Norway and Denmark."

But he warned: "No people, however meek, however peaceful, however harmless they may be, can be safe until this mad dog is destroyed."

With Nazi, Red Ships Poised, Rumania Acts to Guard Ports

Bill Asks Power to Take 'Extraordinary Measures' in Danube and Black Sea Cities in Move to Prepare Nation for War

By the Associated Press

Bucharest, April 16.—Rumania moved to put her Black Sea and Danube ports under navy rule tonight as the first step in an intensive program to prepare the nation for the possibility of war.

With units of the Soviet navy reported at Odessa, and Nazi gunboats ready to dash down the Danube, Gen. Teodorescu, minister of navy and air, introduced a bill in the Rumanian Chamber giving the government immediate power to take "extraordinary military measures" in all ports and territorial waters.

At the same time "strategic" factories working for national defense were ordered to immediately build up a 15-day emergency supply of gasoline and fuel oil which may not be touched unless there is general mobilization. The government decree also specified that all defense factories must immediately construct extensive underground storage tanks.

The Teodorescu bill is the latest in a series of swift government proposals. Others banned the embargoed oil shipments out of the country, and ordered foreign oil companies to deliver great stocks of gasoline to the state, as royalties, in lieu of cash.

This may mean that British and French producers will contribute about 70 per cent of at least 350,000 tons of oil which will be turned over to the government in royalties for the seven months ending April 30.

This quanity is believed sufficient for the immediate needs of Rumania's army and railroads.

The French and British interests, which have refused since January 1 to sell a drop of oil in any form to Germany, are expected to lodge objections, but the powers of the national oil commissioner are so sweeping their compliance is regarded as inevitable.

Germany has demanded heavily increased oil shipments from Rumania.

In an effort to cut internal consumption of oil products, the government was reported unofficially to be planning a tax of from 50 to 75 per cent on gasoline sales.

It was expected that use of all private automobiles would be restricted beginning May 1 and all private traffic banned on Sundays.

German Fleet 'Mutilated,' French Told by Reynaud

By P. J. Philip.
Copyright by New York Times

Paris, April 16.—"The first great battle between Germany and the Allies has been a naval battle, and the Allies have won," Premier Raynaud declared today in a "profit and loss" statement before the Senate describing the events of the last eight days.

On the profit side he set down "a massive and irreparable mutilation of the German fleet."

The French admiralty, he said, compiled the following figures:

In the battles off the Norwegian coast, Germany had 30 per cent of her battle fleet damaged, 20 per cent of her cruisers sunk, 25 per cent of her destroyers sunk and 15 per cent of her torpedo boats damaged, without counting several submarines sunk.

At the same time, Reynaud continued, 78,000 tons of German merchant shipping has been sunk, scuttled or captured. During the same period the Allies have lost no merchant ships.

The second result obtained, Raynaud continnued, was that the Swedish iron route has been cut. Narvik has been occupied.

"And you know also that the activity of the German metal industry increases and decreases in proportion as the Swedish ore arrives," the premier said.

The third result was that Germany would be now obliged to fight on a new front. "Allied forces have already landed on Scandinavian territory and others are on their way. Allowing for the uncertainty of battle, one thing is certain on this front. The enemy is using his airplanes, burning his oil supplies, expending his artillery and men, while the divisions which we are sending there are finding as companions in arms the Norwegian troops who have already inflicted serious losses on the common enemy."

The fourth result on the asset side, Reynaud claimed, was "an immense moral check for Germany."

President's Remarks Cited

"Hitler," he said, "has gone further along the road of crime. And in addition he has made a mistake. He believed that no neighboring country would resist the threat of his bombing planes and his tanks. He mistook the King of Norway for a Hacha . . .

"When a great voice rises like that which rose from the White House yesterday denouncing the abuse of force, no one asks 'who is he referring to?' It is everlastingly true, as President Roosevelt said, that countries which live on hate are destroyed internally by that hate.

"These eight days of battle have had another victim besides the German fleet—German propaganda. No one will ever be able to say that the British people are not contributing their full share in the common battle."

$45,000,000 More Sought For Warships

Stark Declares War Shows Battleships Still Rule Waves

President Roosevelt will ask Congress for an additional $45,000,000 before adjournment to launch a 66-ship, two-year warship program costing $1,200,000,000, Chairman Walsh told the Senate Naval Committee yesterday.

His revelation of the extent of the supplemental naval defense plan decided on at a recent White House conference came after Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations, declared developments of the European war have shown the battleship still rules the waves.

"Air power has not seriously affected British control of the sea lanes of the world," he testified. "It has, in a restricted area, comparatively close to its home bases, become of increasing effect against ships and shipping within range of these bases.

"After seven months of war, in which the immediate major objective has been the reduction of the sea strength of Great Britain, relatively small damage has been done by air attack from German advance bases located 480 to 560 miles from the British fleet bases."

Stark predicted, however, that "unless the British counter-action becomes more effective," damage to commercial shipping in the North Sea would continue and "perhaps increase."

The Navy chief also testified that American-built warplanes have shown in combat abroad to be superior to comparable Nazi and Allied types, and that the bombsights and bombing accuracy of our Army and Navy aviation were "considerably in advance" of foreign countries.

The hearings are being held on a $655,000,000 bill to authorize an 11 per cent increase in the fleet. It carries no appropriations. The $45,000,000 to be asked for starting the 22 warships in the bill and 44 others previously authorized but not yet laid down would be provided either in the $963,000,000 1941 supply bill now pending in the Senate or a supplemental appropriation measure.

Thirty-four Keels to Be Laid

Admiral Stark said plans called for "starting" all 66 ships now authorized or carried in the pending bill within the next 12 months. The keels of 25, plus 19 carried in the 1941 appropriation bill, will actually be laid during this period.

The Naval official urged the committee to approve the full five-year program originally proposed, expanding the fleet by 25 per cent in place of the two-year 11 per cent enlargement voted by the House. The latter will provide a 5-3.4 ratio with Japan instead of the 5-3 ratio contemplated under the larger bill and by long-time American policy.

"At present," Stark said, "we are getting uncomfortably close to 5-5."

Stark Points to Reich

Senator Tydings (Democrat), of Maryland, offered an amendment to the bill to authorize modernization of the guns of the battleships, New York, Texas and Arkansas at a cost of $5,000,000.

In his statement covering the battleship-airplane developments, Admiral Stark pointed to the fact Germany—the greatest air power—recently completed two battleships and is building four more.

"It is British preponderance of naval power that has gained control of sea-borne trade and denied this trade to Germany," he said. "It is German preponderance of air power which threatens Allied and neutral trade in comparatively restricted zones near German bases.

"Neither of these facts point to the obsolescense of surface men-of-war or the superiority of air power. They merely point to the restricted effectiveness of unbalanced military or naval forces."

Britain Plans No Blitzkrieg On Stage Nudity

London, April 16 (U.P.).—The powers-that-be decided today to take steps against but to stage no blitzkrieg on the strip-tease and related arts of the stage.

Conferees discussed for 105 minutes in St. James' Palace the alarming growth of nudity on the stage in an England craving surcease from its wartime troubles.

The lord chamberlain, guardian of public morals, and theatrical producers, agreed at the conference that steps should be taken. But so far as the subsequent communique revealed they held in abeyance any harsh measures and hoped for the best.

The public had been sure that the conferees would curtail drastically, if not ban entirely, such numbers as "Strip Ahoy" and "Strip, Strip, Hooray."

Mrs. Harriman Says Situation Is Brighter

But Norway Needs Gasoline, Food Badly, Minister Declares

By International News Service

New York, April 16.—A white-haired, 70-year-old widow, one of the original New York "400" now turned diplomat, was sticking tonight to her job as Minister to war-torn Norway, determined to follow the Norwegian government wherever it goes.

She is Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, who scooped the world by flashing news of Germany's invasion of the Scandinavian country and now has relayed to the United States word that King Haakon, ruler of Norway, never will turn either himself or his people over to the invading Nazis.

Haakon in Norway

In a telephone conversation from the Swedish border town of Salen, where Mrs. Harriman went to report to Washington on conditions in Norway, she told an interviewer: "King Haakon is definitely in Norway. He is with his troops. I cannot tell you exactly where he is. I have seen him recently . . .

"He has told me he will never surrender himself or his people to the Germans. And I know from what I have seen the King and the Norwegians never will give up."

Mrs. Harriman stated that relief was needed badly in Norway and urged that American organizations rush food and gasoline, the supplies of which are exceedingly scarce.

"Never Felt Better"

The situation in Norway today was a little brighter, she reported, adding:

"There's no doubt the British have landed at Narvik and are in possession of it. They also have landed troops at several other points on the Norwegian coast. The Norwegian army is fighting now—and fighting very well—and I think they may be holding the Germans at some places."

Asked if she was tired, Mrs. Harriman replied:

"Not at all; never felt better in my life. I'm going back into Norway and stay there, except for these expeditions to Sweden to report. I'm sticking to my job and I'm following the Norwegian government wherever it goes."

"but they could never maintain it. We could give them a knockout blow there without any trouble."

The ambassador expressed his belief that Gheenland "comes clearly within the Monroe Doctrine, being in the Western Hemisphere." He said the status of Iceland was probably different.

Secretary Hull, citing President Roosevelt's description of Greenland as a Western Hemisphere land, implied that the Danish possession comes within the scope of the Monroe Doctrine.

Asked about the Monroe Doctrine angle, Hull told his press conference that the President had thus indicated the slant of opinion of this Government.

To a question as to whether the United States would extend a protectorate over Greenland, the Secretary of State said he knew of no plan in that connection.

$15,000,000 for Relief

In another war-linked development, authorization of a $15,000,000 relief outlay to alleviate suffering in the invaded countries of Europe and Asia was recommended yesterday by the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

The President would be empowered to spend the money upon being satisfied that it would reach the persons for whom it was intended. Legislation approved by the committee also specified that Administration of funds should remain in the hands of U. S. Government representatives.

Chairman Bloom (Democrat), of New York, said the measure would make it possible for the President to send medical supplies, food and clothing to the suffering of Finland, Denmark, Norway, Czecho-Slovakia, China or "any area where there has been occupation by outside forces."

The legislation was advocated by former President Hoover.

Roosevelt Talk With Farley Seen as Crucial

President Believed To Have Been Queried On Third Term

ous in its likely effect on this country.

Friends believe he went to the White House hoping to discuss the third term outlook frankly with the President for the first time. Farley frequently has indicated his belief that the President would not run, but has never hinted any word to this effect from Mr. Roosevelt. If the President decided to run again to meet an international crisis, friends believed Farley would want a part in the reelection show. Similarly, the Postmaster General long has sought the President's attitude toward his own candidacy if Mr. Roosevelt's third term answer is "no."

As was the case last July 23 when the President and his Postmaster General talked intimately at Hyde Park of their own and the Democratic Party's future, Farley is expected to leave whatever statement is made to his chief.

Turning Point Seen

Significance was attached to the luncheon conversation, as it was the first time Farley had conferred alone with the President since reports—later emphatically denied by the President—that Mr. Roosevelt considered him unavailable for the Vice Presidential nomination.

Farley subsequently tossed his hat into the Democratic Presidential ring "without reservation," made a swift speech-making swing through the West and South and on Monday was reelected chairman of the New York Democratic State committee.

Yesterday's conference was watched from the outside as a possible turning point in the long political relationship between the two, for better or worse. Farley was known to be as anxious for a clarification of his status at the White House as he was at Hyde Park last summer, and as anxious as the President to preserve a united Democratic front in the coming campaign.

There was no surface indication of a Farley-Roosevelt rift as the two sped to and from the ball game in the same car and posed side by side for pictures in the same box. They have done the same thing before at many opening games. But some spectators thought they noted fewer smiles and a more thoughtful note in their companionship.

Intact Front Favored

Friends of the Postmaster General think he feels he has demonstrated his right to recognition in his own right should the President not run, but that he is desirous, with other Democratic leaders, of maintaining the Democratic front intact against Republican attack.

Farley went to the White House in a position to pass on to the President details of Monday's New York Democratic State committee meeting, which reelected Farley chairman without opposition and adopted resolutions praising the President, Farley and Gov. Lehman. He had an opportunity at the New York and the President's strength in the New York Democratic delegation.

Only Monday the President had conferred with Farley's First Assistant Postmaster General, William W. Howes, who resigned his post to go back into politics and to support Farley's candidacy.

Interest Mounts

Increased campaign interest had been apparent all along the line after Federal Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt obtained the President's consent to a three-week leave of absence to stump for his own nomination, on the presumption that the President will not run. No friendship has been lost between Farley and McNutt.

A three-way truce between the President, Farley and Vice President Garner over the same table frequently has been suggested by conservative Democrats as the one prerequisite to a united Democratic Party. Garner, who, like Farley, is a candidate "without reservation," also journeyed to the White House yesterday. But the Vice President talked to the President only during the regular conference with Congressional leaders.

A White House gesture of peace to Garner was noted when the President recently was reported to have disapproved of Administration participation in the third term movement in Texas, Garner's home territory.

Rayburn Backs Garner

Further pressure to call off the Texas drive, and accompanying ill-feeling, was exerted over the week-end by House Majority Leader Rayburn, in a telegram to Texas "draft Roosevelt" leaders.

Queried by Mayor Tom Miller of Austin and former Texas Secretary of State Edward Clark for his views on the third term and Garner candidacies, Rayburn reasserted his loyalty to the Roosevelt Administration and his friendship for both the President and Garner. But he strongly urged that Texas send a Garner delegation to the Democratic convention.

Praising Garner as an "outstanding, able and loyal Democrat," Rayburn wired Miller and Clark that the Vice President's "fellow-citizens of Texas should honor him by sending a delegation to the national convention instructed to vote for him for the Democratic nomination for President."

Dancers at Folk Festival To 'Klomp' in Wooden Shoes

8 High School Girls From Holland, Mich., To Perform in Traditional Netherlands Costumes Before Constitutional Hall Audiences

A sound new to Washington audiences will be heard for the first time at Constitution Hall next week. It will be the "klomp-klomp" of wooden shoes, to be worn by Dutch girls when they dance at the National Folk Festival opening April 25.

The dancers hail from Holland, Mich., about 90 per cent of whose population is of Dutch descent. Of the eight high school girls who will appear at the festival, four will wear the white starched caps and brilliantly hued costumes of their Netherlands cousins. The others will dress in the vivid blouses, wide trousers and visored caps of Dutch boys. They will dance in wooden shoes, hand-hewn from poplar wood.

The Netherlands' national footwear, "klompen," are worn as protection against the same moist climate which produces the country's equally famed tulips. They keep the field workers' feet dry during the day, and, because they can be slipped off so easily, prevent mud from being tracked across spotless kitchens.

In winter the shoes, always several sizes larger than the wearer's feet, can be stuffed with straw to keep out cold. For Dutch children, the wooden shoe serves as a boat to sail in the canals, and as a weapon with which to settle arguments.

During tulip time, annual eight-day festival staged by residents of the Michigan town, 300 wooden shoe dancers perform on Holland's streets. In accordance with Dutch custom, they must not appear until the streets have been thoroughly scrubbed with soap and water. This task is executed by volunteers armed with brooms and with shoulder yokes from which hang pails of water. Presumably this preliminary scrubbing will not be required at Constitution Hall.

A different program has been planned for all six matinee and evening performances of the National Folk Festival. As in previous years, many persons have bought tickets for more than one performance. Tickets are on sale at The Washington Post. Prices range from 50 cents to $1.50.

'Eye Undimmed, Force Unabated,' Says Chamberlain

London, April 16 (AP).—Prime Minister Chamberlain let the world know today that he feels like sticking to his post for the "duration."

Speaking before the National Free Church Council, he said with a wry smile:

"The press continually reminds you and me that I have passed the three score years and ten (he is 71).

"Nevertheless, my eye is undimmed and my natural force unabated.

"I feel encouraged to carry on the task in which I am engaged until our purpose is achieved."

formation of the ruling body, since officials said the Supreme Court was the only state authority left in Oslo after the departure of King Haakon and the regularly constituted government.

Nothing was known in Stockholm concerning reports from Berlin that King Haakon and the Government of Premier Johan Nygaarsvold had fled across the Swedish frontier.

Heavy Gunfire Heard

In the south, advices from Swedish correspondents said the Germans had entered Kongsvinger, 20 miles from the border and 50 miles northeast of Oslo, but that heavy gunfire was heard near the town.

Additional German parachute troops were reported to have parachuted to earth at various points in Norway, but many were said to have been wiped out.

In Monday engagements, the Norwegians said two German planes were shot down and that the fate of several others was uncertain.

In Oslo the president of the Norwegian supreme court, Paal Berg, issued the following proclamation:

"As German troops have occupied certain parts of Norway and made impossible government administration of these district, the supreme court found it necessary to appoint a governmental committee to take over the civil admnistriation of these district during the German occupation.

"German Retreat"

"Confident that King Haakon will approve these extraordinary steps, the court appointed four members of this committee."

The Stockholm newspaper Allehanda, commenting on the resignation of the Nazi-sponsored government of Vidkun Quisling, said, "This must be interpreted as a German retreat to win the Norwegian people."

Allehanda referred to Quisling as "this political adventurer and traitor whom the Norwegian people did not even vote as a member of the Storting (Parliament)."

It asserted that the appointment of thegovernment committee in Oslo "to bridge the gulf between the German-occupied and the Norwegian King, with Nazi bombers chasing the King and his government, has hardly leveled the way for an agreement."

Swedes Confiscate Oil

Sweden, meanwhile, confiscated and placed under government control all petroleum, fuel and lubricating oil. Gasoline was not included in the order, but strict rationing is in effect.

All big Swedish ports on the west, south and east coasts have been declared barred territories by the Swedish government, meaning that no Swedish oreforeign vessel may leave or enter without official permission. The area extends up to Oxelso sound and includes the island of Gotland.

Individuals also must obtain special permits to enter the port zones of all towns covered by the order.

Telephone connections with tween Denmark and Sweden still are interrupted, although lines have been opened between Stockholm and Oslo for state calls.

landed at the Ofot Fjord below the port and fought their way into the city.

Nazis May Hold Awhile

Norwegian soldiers, who retreated into Sweden and were interned, believed that the entire German force in the Narvik area, estimated at from 2,000 to 2,500 men, either would be forced into Sweden and interned or captured by the British.

It was possible that some of the Germans might hold out for days on the Rombak Heights, but their eventual elimination as a factor in the Norwegian war was considered almost certain.

The British were said to have fought into Narvik, after gaining a foothold in the lower part of the town. The Germans retreated along the railway towards the Swedish border, but were under fire by guns from British warships.

Four Feet of Snow

Mountains in the district were covered with 4 feet of snow. There are virtually no highways.

Nazis Complain of Cold

A number of German prisoners were brought into Sweden. Most of them are youths of about 17. They said the cold on Rombak Heights was intense and there were not enough huts there to house all the Germans.

The Norwegians doubted that the British will attack the heights. They said it would be easy to isolate the German detachment there and then "let them freeze and starve."

British Split in Columns

The Norwegians understood the British landed half way down the Ofot Fjord, where one road runs to Bodoe and another in the opposite direction to Narvik. The British split into columns, one proceeding to Bodoe to attack a German detachment there and the other to Narvik.

The Norwegians held the towering bluff of Rombak Mountain until yesterday afternoon when the Germans, after heavy machine-gun fire, dislodged them and occupied the heights.

The Rombak Valley along the little iron ore railroad was littered with dead, killed as parties of Germans advanced from Narvik toward the Swedish frontier against stubborn Norwegian resistance. These Germans reached the frontier late yesterday and were in possession of the railway.

The distance from Narvik to Riksgraensen is about 16 miles along the railroad over which ore—which precipitated the fierce struggle between the Germans and Allies at Narvik—was moved into the Norwegian ice-free port from Sweden's mines.

The week-long battle was waged through the rocky valley of Rombak Fjord, jutting inland for about eight miles along the northern side of the railroad.

When the Germans reached the frontier this morning the valley behind them was a shambles. Both Norwegians and Germans lost heavily in the desperate struggle.

Part of the defeated Norwegian force escaped at dawn yesterday to join other Norwegian units elsewhere and carry on resistance. They escaped being driven into Sweden, where they would have been interned.

When British fleet units attacked the Germans at Narvik large numbers of them sought to open a way to the Swedish frontier, possibly preferring the risk of internment by Sweden to capture by the British.

40 Ships Crippled

Narvik Harbor and the neighboring fjords of Rombak and Herjangs have become graveyards for 40 ships now lying at the bottom or disabled along the shores.

Three major naval engagements and one air raid accounted for these ships. Over 1,000 sailors of all nationalities were estimated to have been drowned. Hundreds of wounded men are in the hospital at Narvik, the Narvik Hotel and in private homes. The town or Narvik was reported only slightly damaged.

President Gets Poster for Drive For War Children

Three children yesterday presented a poster to President Roosevelt as the first step in a national campaign to enlist the aid of American school children for their colleagues in the world who are victims of war.

Drawn by Norman Rockwell, the poster shows an American boy ready to help three European children. It was presented to the President by Wendy Day, 8; Peter Crabtree, 9, and Jerry Rockwell, 9 son, of the artist.

The campaign will be conducted April 22-30 by a group headed by Dorothy Canfield Fisher.

Theatrical Agent, Midget Arrested In Vice Ring Drive

New York, April 16.—With the arrest today of a theatrical agent and a 42-inch midget photographer and actor, the district attorney's office announced tonight the break-up of an alleged vice ring which preyed on Brooklyn high school girls under 17 and forced or enticed them into immoral practices.

The agent, Jack ("Gimpy") Roberts, 59, said to be head of the ring, was arrested this afternoon when officers surprised him accidentally in a photographic studio in Manhattan.

The studio was operated by the midget, Jerry Austin, 48.

The two arrests topped off an investigation which began two weeks ago after a confidential tip and which already had brought the arrests of 10 others.

Austin Assails Plan to Transfer CAA, Air Board

Senator Warren R. Austin (Republican), of Vermont, yesterday announced his intention of joining Senator Pat McCarran (Democrat), of Nevada, in opposing President Roosevelt's reorganization order transferring the Civil Aeronautics Authority to the Commerce Department.

Austin said the reorganization plan had no connection with party issues, but was "a matter of public safety" which was a "challenge to the constructive forces of democracy."

"Every one of the 2,000,000 air travelers in the United States must resent as I do this attack on the safety of air transportation," he asserted.

"The period from 1933 to August 22, 1938, when the Civil Aeronautics Authority and the Air Safety Board were organized, was marked by a series of blitzkrieg assaults upon the aviation industry by the various political bureaucrats who desire to control this new industry of far reaching and growing importance," Senator Austin charged.

Is It Art? Who Cares? New York Asks, 'Is It Adam?'

New York, April 16 (INS).—There's nothing the matter with Jacob Epstein's controversial statue of Adam that a roomy, old-fashioned "mother hubbard" won't cure.

New Yorkers who trickled into a West Side gallery today for their first glimpse of Epstein's original man were in general agreement on one thing. Adam, who shocked London's press, pulpit and public into an apoplectic state a year ago, obviously posed for the American-born sculptor in the early days of his Eden innocense before he had eaten of the tree of knowledge of good and evil.

Because immediately thereafter, it will be recalled, Adam knew that he was naked and "sewed fig leaves together" to make for himself "an apron." But no aboreal sarong drapes this Adam.

Patrons who paid 50 cents to see the wonder boy, were not prone to question whether the Epstein monument is art, but rather: Is it Adam.

Change now to OIL-PLATING... and "the old gray engine seems more like she used to be"

At birth her cylinder walls were almost like mirrors. The more of that polish you want to keep, the more you want your engine OIL-PLATED by changing now to patented Conoco Germ Processed oil.

OIL-PLATING in your engine, like chrome-plating on bumpers, is a lasting addition. And it's all in addition to oil-film. Germ Processed oil assures high-strength oil-film, all right, but besides it assures OIL-PLATING. Oil-film must go slithering up and draining down. OIL-PLATING must stay constantly PLATED UP. For an apparently magnet-like attraction comes to Germ Processed oil from its man-made extra ingredient, so that engine parts are surfaced with their close-held shield of OIL-PLATING ... drain-proof.

Remaining fully PLATED UP in the highest-speed engines, OIL-PLATING plainly keeps Wear from doing Summer "business as usual." Wear once thrived during starting periods, but now before the starter ever starts, your OIL-PLATED engine is ready-lubricated—a positive step toward preserving the old gray engine ...or a new one. OIL-PLATED cylinders long keep the roundness of youth, and that makes your Germ Processed oil keep. Change today—to Your Mileage Merchant's Conoco station. Continental Oil Company

Government Schools?

In working out his modernized pattern of governmental agencies President Roosevelt seems to have given no thought to the post-graduate universities that have grown up in several executive departments. It appears that certain facilities used by the school in the Department of Agriculture are charged to the Bureau of Plant Industry. That arrangement is scarcely in keeping with the New Deal concept of streamlining.

Two questions as to the status of these schools are laid before Congress by Acting Comptroller Richard N. Elliott. First, he reports that no accounting has been made to the Government for any of the schools' funds. That is not strange, however, for these schools are not really Federal institutions. While they have used Government office space and telephones, they have never had an appropriation from Congress.

The first educational program of this type in the Department of Agriculture was approved by Secretary Wallace's father, who presided over that department in the Harding Administration. Now the school enrolls several thousand students. It gives them an opportunity to enhance their usefulness, hastens their promotions and makes an extremely valuable contribution to the career service which the Administration is trying to develop.

Students attending these classes are charged enough to cover the cost of their instruction. According to Dr. Alfred F. Woods, head of the school, a full accounting for funds thus collected is made to the director of personnel in the department. No accounting is made to the Comptroller General because these are not regarded as Federal funds.

The second question raised by the Comptroller General is whether these educational activities are authorized by law. A statute passed in 1901 directs the heads of departments to afford facilities for study and research to scientific investigators and other qualified students, under rules to be laid down by department heads. Clearly this is not an authorization to set up schools. But the departments themselves have not directly created the schools. They have merely granted use of their facilities, in accord with the law, and supervised the instruction offered by unofficial agencies.

It does not appear that the Comptroller General has uncovered any flagrant abuse of power. Yet it must be admitted that the intradepartmental schools are operating under an anomalous arrangement. Like the Welfare and Recreation Association, they are amenable to Government officials without being directly controlled by the Government. Congress should more closely define their status and functions. It might be well to make them definitely a part of the new personnel system which is beginning to take shape.

Mobilizing Dollars

The British Treasury has announced its intention of requisitioning 117 additional issues of American securities held by residents of Great Britain. Although the government is said to be in no immediate need of the dollars which may be derived from sales of these securities, the intensification of the war in Europe probably accounts for the speeding up of security mobilization plans.

It would, however, be rash to assume that this preliminary preparation will mean any immediate or pronounced expansion of our exports to Europe. For while our trade with the allied belligerents is likely to be stimulated by the invasion of Denmark and Norway, our exports to Scandinavia are certain to be drastically curtailed. On balance, therefore, our foreign trade may stand to lose rather than gain by recent war developments.

The British government's action in mobilizing dollar securities owned by its nationals also creates serious problems which will have to be dealt with in the future. The income from overseas investments has heretofore provided Britain with funds for financing her heavy excess of imports over exports. If the capital assets which are the source of this income have to be sold to obtain cash for the purchase here of needed war supplies, Britain will not be such a good customer of the United States in the years ahead as she has been in the past.

In the face of the pressing needs of the present, it may seem superfluous to worry about the adjustment problems of the future. But it is wise to keep them in mind, for both neutrals and belligerents will have to face them when peace is restored.

The Sea Wall Crumbles

In pointing out that nearly one-third of the German navy has been destroyed since the invasion of Scandinavia started, Premier Reynaud yesterday drew attention to what is perhaps the most significant development of the war to date.

It is not so important that the German fleet has lost its raiding power in the open seas, since this, for what it is worth, can to some extent be maintained by submarines, in recent fighting the least damaged arm of Hitler's navy. Far more vital to the development of the war is the loss of cruiser and destroyer strength, which heretofore gave Germany maritime control in at least the inclosed Baltic Sea.

That dominance is now either lost or seriously threatened. As a result Russia, with her newly acquired naval bases in the Baltic states and Finland, reenters the kaleidoscopic picture as a factor with which Hitler must continuously reckon. At the moment Russia may have no intention of exercising any pressure on Germany. But her considerable naval strength in the Baltic, relatively much greater because of Germany's heavy losses, gives Stalin a trump card which he will not hesitate to play to Russia's advantage when the time is ripe.

The weakness of the German fleet also makes an allied attack on the Reich's short North Sea coast, or even on its long Baltic coastline, a theoretical possibility for the first time. British minelayers have already dropped their deadly cargoes off the Baltic shores of Germany, and where these ships can get in others of greater offensive power may follow.

A German invasion of Holland is also rendered more difficult by the destruction of warships, particularly light draft torpedo craft, which would be of vital importance in guarding the flank of any army of occupation. And communication across the straits to Norway, where German troops are now for the first time meeting real resistance, is now hampered by inadequate convoy protection.

Definite weaknesses in the German position have thus been developed by the lightning stroke against Scandinavia. Overnight the position of stalemate has been swept away, and with this change new and critical problems have developed for the Nazi high command. They will not become less critical as the coming of good weather increases the striking power of the British navy, so brilliantly and successfully demonstrated in the last few days.

Command of the sea remains as vital an element in modern warfare as it ever was. Now, however, it must be supplemented by command of the air in order to secure a complete superiority. Americans who realize what is at stake, and how ruthlessly German aggression will spread until it is finally hurled back, will, therefore, welcome every plane shipment which goes from our shores to insure an Allied mastery above, as well as along, a German coast where no Siegfried Line can be erected.

The East Indies

On the very day that President Roosevelt was warning the American republics to be prepared to meet "force with force" if an attempt is made to spread the war in this direction, Foreign Minister Arita issued a statement intimating that Japan would similarly oppose any extension of the war to eastern Asia.

"The Japanese government," said Mr. Arita, "cannot but be deeply concerned over any development accompanying the aggravation of the war in Europe that may affect the status quo of the Dutch East Indies."

There is an obvious similarity in the thought behind these statements. But there is also a profound underlying difference. President Roosevelt was expounding a wholly defensive doctrine, the basis of which is the cooperative determination of the nations of the Western Hemisphere to resist direct aggression from abroad. Mr. Arita's statement is much more a unilateral declaration of policy, and of expansionist policy, by Japan alone.

Should German troops invade the Netherlands, there would be no immediate possibility of the Reich physically taking over the Dutch colonies as well. The only danger to these dependencies that could arise would lie in Japan's ambitions. And Mr. Arita seems to indicate that, in certain contingencies, Japan might herself consider assuming control over the valuable Dutch islands in southeastern Asia.

Mr. Arita's statement should perhaps be regarded as a trial balloon, to ascertain reactions to the possible development suggested by his carefully guarded statement. It certainly will be noted in the United States, whose supply of essential raw materials, notably rubber and tin, might be cut off were the Dutch East Indies to be occupied by a nation with a military and economic policy like that of Japan.

Emasculated Bill

As tentatively approved by Representative Kennedy's subcommittee, the District reorganization bill is more significant for what it omits than for what it contains. Several provisions designed to give Washington some modicum of home rule have been stricken out. The chief effect of the amended bill would be to improve the grouping of agencies within an impotent local government.

It is true that the bill would permit the Commissioners to settle claims against the District, to change the names of streets and bridges, to install parking meters, to license undertakers, to permit the construction of sewer tunnels and perform similar routine duties. But every grant of authority for the board to function as a real municipal ordinance-making agency has been eliminated.

Specifically, the subcommittee voted to deny the Commissioners power to enact reasonable regulations deemed proper "for the safety, health, peace, good order, comfort, convenience, and morals of the District." Another section giving the board authority "to act for the government and good order of the District" was also stricken. This means that a busy and overworked Congress will continue to function as Washington's city council, despite its inability to perform that service satisfactorily.

There will not be much regret over the elimination of the proposed Citizens' Advisory Council. That provision was a sop to the advocates of suffrage. But even as a sop it was inadequate. The council would have been appointed by the Commissioners and might have been dominated by them. Thus chosen, it could not have spoken for the people of Washington. Approval of this council would have given us an appointive body to advise an appointive body, which in turn can only advise a Congress to busy to give proper attention to local affairs.

The idea of setting up a group of civic leaders who could speak for disfranchised Washington is excellent. But that object can be more readily accomplished by unofficial means. Now that the proposed Citizens' Advisory Council has been discarded the way is open for civic groups disturbed by the community's helplessness to set up their own advisory committee. If such a group were well chosen it could become a powerful factor in the struggle for better government in Washington.

In the meantime, Congress should be encouraged to pass the reorganization bill in spite of its deficiencies. Acceptance of this measure would indicate that at least some progress is being made. Pigeonholed or enacted, however, this bill should arouse residents of the District to realization of the fact that much greater activity on their part will be essential to attain self-government here.

"Thus To Revisit"

A few thousand miles east northeast of Washington rages a struggle upon whose issue, it seems, must depend the destiny of the greater part of mankind, including perhaps ourselves. But for about two hours yesterday this struggle was almost wholly forgotten in our preoccupation with another and very different kind of struggle taking place within Griffith Stadium.

President Roosevelt and some 30,000 of his fellow citizens thought this opening contest between Mr. Yawkey's Red Sox and Mr. Griffith's Nationals of sufficient importance to drop all business for the afternoon. The late afternoon newspapers thought it wise to push the war news to one corner of the front page to make room for the inning-by-inning reports.

And as attendance figures from other major league opening games came in, one question was settled beyond any doubt. Baseball is still one of the greatest of our national institutions. It is something vastly greater than a sport, or a spectacle, something greater than a gigantic business enterprise, although its commercial aspects are much in evidence. It is, above all, a national cult and its emotional hold on the American masses remains unshaken.

The great shrines of this baseball cult remain, where they have been since the beginning of the century, in the large cities of the East and Middle West. But a glance at the box scores of yesterday's games may cause one to doubt whether these are any longer the true baseball centers.

Forty or fifty years ago such lists were heavily weighted with German, Irish and Welsh names. Today, despite such interesting infusions as DiMaggio and Lavagetto, Greenberg and Berg, the sort of names described as "Anglo-Saxon" or "Scotch-Irish" are in overweening preponderance. This, of course, is because the great sources of raw materials for professional baseball are now in the South, the Southwest, and to some extent, on the Pacific Coast.

To some high-powered patriots this may seem to make baseball more than ever the national game; but actually it is mute testimony to the passing of the urban and suburban sandlots—a state of affairs which bodes no particular good to the future of baseball.

Old New Dealers

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: "To whom should we compare Franklin D. Roosevelt?" asked many a side-splitting after-dinner speaker at chambers of commerce rallies during the 1936 campaign. "Should we compare him to George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, Andrew Jackson or Abraham Lincoln? Why, to Columbus, of course. Columbus set out not knowing where to, landed he knew not where and returned without knowing where he had been."

In a speech at Boston last Friday night Mr. Wendell L. Willkie, Presidential aspirant, gave Columbus a wholly different reputation. Said he: "Christopher Columbus was an economic royalist, a bold fellow who wanted to do things his own way and the type who would otherwise be out of style today. He never would have got started if there had been a New Deal in his time. He would have been heckled, harassed, cross-examined and investigated on his plan to discover America. He might still be waiting for permission to leave port."

Mr. Willkie may be a financial wizard and a good fellow, but as a student of history he has forgotten the lessons of the primary school. Columbus, we were taught in the olden days, could not raise a single centavo among the rich bankers or businessmen of Spain to finance his speculative trip to an unknown destination. It was a starry-eyed dream and reckless experimentation, as we would say today.

The businessmen of his day thought the world was flat. He told them it was round. He was heckled, harassed and cross-examined until he made an egg stand on its head.

Fortunately for us Americans, Ferdinand and Isabella of Spain had just started a New Deal. The Queen had all the faults of a New Dealer. She was not afraid to spend her last peso, pawn her jewels and put the government in debt to finance the experiment. The object was to find a new world.

Ramspeck Amendment

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: At present the Senate Civil Service Commission is conducting hearings on the Ramspeck bill for the extension of Civil Service. Senator Mead of New York has suggested that temporary employes of the Census Bureau, now denied permanent Civil Service status, should be given an opportunity to get through an amendment to this bill.

The bulk of Census employes have been hired during the past three or four months from active Civil Service registers on which they held the top positions. Since their jobs are to last between one and three years, it seems strange that these workers, who are subjected to unusually severe working conditions because of the rush nature of their work, should be penalized for their efforts by a denial of the rights to which this length of service would ordinarily entitle them.

There can be no question about the eligibility or efficiency of workers who have survived difficult examinations and intense competition as well as a long period of difficult service. It is a cynical abuse of the Civil Service principle to reward them with cold dismissal when their services are no longer needed.

To ignore Senator Mead's proposed amendment is to permit a real injustice to be practiced on both the Census workers and the merit system. CENSUS EMPLOYE.

Wagner Act

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Recently a bill has been presented to Congress and its implications should be brought more clearly and definitely to the people. I am referring to the Norton bill to amend the Wagner Act.

This bill would deprive labor of most of the benefits of the Wagner Act, which has been one of the greatest protectors of the rights of labor. More pressure should be forthcoming to see that this bill is not passed, for how else can labor protect its rightful gains?

It is inconceivable that such a bill should even be brought up, and so possibly passed, for it would create a new power, the Government itself, to combat labor and thus the people.

Blames Great Britain For War

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I was reading the text of Winston Churchill's statement on the invasion of Scandinavia by the Germans. He calls it sudden, brutal, capricious and unprovoked. What is war if not brutal? Who provoked this war?

The British have violated every neutral act, not only against their so called enemies, but she has violated our own shipping by seizure of our mails, against the repeated protests of our State Department.

She has finally developed a sea law to the point where anything Britain wants is sea law.

The United States and Italy are forbidden to trade together in a noncombatant area except on the terms of England.

At the same time they notify us that England no longer will buy American tobacco, switching their consumption to Turkish tobaccos. They've also stopped buying our apples and canned goods.

The British imperialistic ambitions are recognized by every sane, fair-minded American whose mind has not become befuddled with hate or prejudice.

Britain kissed the feet of Communist Stalin, to woo him over to their side.

Germany outsmarted Britain and won Stalin over to the side of Germany. Now Britain condemns this alliance as ungodly.

Britain tries to destroy a whole nation of people through starvation, the most inhuman and barbarous tactics of war when directed at women and children.

To do this, they invade and mine neutral shipping lanes to destroy the very existence of that nation. Did she have any regard for that neutral nation? Of course she did not.

She has once again been outmaneuvered in her own game of brutality, now sheds her crocodile tears against the very methods she would employ if given the chance.

Thank God, the American people learned their lesson from the World War. They cannot be fooled with lying propaganda as easily as they were in 1915-16-17.

Let Europe fight its own economic war (that's what it is), and let America keep America for Americans. O. J. W.

National Symphony

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Having been in Florida for the last two months, I have not been able to follow in detail matters connected with the National Symphony Orchestra, but I did see in The Post a letter signed as from an orchestra member, suggesting the advisability of a conductor other than Dr. Hans Kindler. One would be inclined to class the writer of that letter as one of the orchestra's less competent musicians who resented the drilling necessary to present a proper concert.

For, when one considers the group of musicians, largely untrained in orchestral routine (with but few brilliant exceptions) that the local musicians' union nine years ago offered Dr. Kindler out of which to form a symphony orchestra, it is only a little less than a miracle what he has accomplished. He has worked hard; the colossal feat of memorizing and conducting without score all music played by the orchestra is only a part of it.

Hampered by limited rehearsals, as the union permitted only a certain number for the salaries paid, and lacking funds to employ all the musicians he desired, nevertheless, Dr. Kindler has given us an orchestra that now ranks with the major orchestras of the country, and one of which Washington may be proud. Furthermore, Dr. Kindler's personal popularity with his audiences, both children and adults, is such that I doubt if Washington would rally to the support of the orchestra without him.

I would be happy to see the musicians get the desired increase in pay, if Washington only had a Col. Higginson to endow the orchestra! But one must remember the salaries paid are for six months only, and, surely they can augment the amount in the remaining six months of the year. If they cannot do so, does that not suggest that they would be in a bad state if the orchestra is allowed to disband? What would the union do for them then, and should not every effort be made towards a compromise?

It is inconceivable that the orchestra should be allowed to disband, but having been one of the volunteer workers through the years toward assembling the sustaining fund, I know how difficult it has been each year to secure the required amounts, of the rebuffs received, the time and hard work necessary, and to increase the amount still further is simply impossible, I should say.

Therefore, it is hoped that a compromise may be reached, so that our musicians will not be thrown out of employment, and the city's efforts to have a permanent symphony orchestra will not again result in failure, as in former years.

No Horse-and-Buggy Age

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Autos are gettting faster and more fool-proof every model, and I resent the implication against an inanimate object without means to defend itself—except the billions of the industry—that the golden horse-and-buggy age was better and sweeter to the taste.

In that defunct (and much-overrated) era they used to say that whatever happened to the driver, his horse stayed sober and could be depended upon not to assail telegraph poles, climb ditches, send pedestrians to the boneyard en masse, or give his master a bad name.

But when the driver is drunk, the status of his car is ditto. Both are blotto.

Opera In The Sticks

There is bound to be a great howl from the opera lovers if you say that the current campaign to popularize the music-drama is so much spinach to the uninitiated. By the uninitiated I mean those who have not both seen and heard the Metropolitan—seen and heard it often.

The apathy of the uncultured need not mean that the radio performances of the "Met" are wasted. Far from it. Every Saturday rapt groups occupy the armchairs by the wireless set in the living rooms all over the Nation. I have observed these groups and I know their enjoyment is sincere, even to the sighs they now and then emit.

These persons are the old operagoers. They listen to the radio, but that is not what they hear. In their ears are the purest notes of time's best singers in every part, refined and idealized by memory. Before their closed eyes is marching a splendid procession in armor and plaited wigs. The opera may even be a cult with them—with each musical phrase they can picture accompanying action as in a familiar religious ritual.

I am not one of these fortunate persons, but I know what goes on in their minds when they listen to the opera broadcasts. It can be read in their faces. You have only to mention the subject, and they will recount the names of all the great singers they have seen in the glittering roles—roles that you know by mythology and names that you forget later because their background is too vague. Yet there is no doubting their reality to the opera fans. Boorish low-brows sometimes sneer at opera-lovers. It is the usual attitude of the unlucky toward the lucky, and like any contempt of genuine enjoyment it is as silly as it is deplorable.

But it wasn't my intention to plead the case of opera-lovers. They don't need it.

In many a one of the listening assemblies sits a young man or woman with a strained expression. That is the badge of the neophyte, who is straining for some familiar sound to relate this strange phenomenon of opera to life as he knows it. The action, of course, is a mystery to him. This circumstance obtains even if he is carefully schooled in the story; even if he knows an obliging amateur pianist and borrows a book of leitmotive that are supposed to inform him when Siegfried arrives, when a sword arrives, and by a combination, when they get together.

This seems too much work to be connected with an amusement, and unless the pupil is gifted at music in a creative way, he's likely to forget by afternoon everything he learned in the morning. Finally he may fix in his mind the synopsis of the drama given by the commentor at the last moment before the performance. That measure, too, is ineffective. After a few trills and whoops he has no idea what point in the story has been reached. What he fondly imagines to be a love song may end in the clash of steel.

On another score, too, he is tempted to challange the validity of this form of entertainment. It is in an unfamiliar language. How can thousands of Americans, he wants to know, pretend to have the same appreciation of die Walkuere as the Germans, who understand every word of it, and from and for whom, indeed, it was written?

To him the attitude smacks suspiciously of the celebrated American tendency to worship everything in European culture. He may wonder why there aren't a few operas in plain American, or—since one or two have been written—why they are not performed more often.

Even if the novice has a smattering of the language, the words he can catch are limited to a few achs and dus. Running, stomping and pummeling are not conducive to good diction, and the arias, which occasionally may be understood, are as much to the point as a high school valedictory in which the graduate has lost his place in the notes.

Therefore an afternoon at the radio opera—to the beginner—resolves itself into a dismal time of waiting for the few gems he can enjoy for their musical value alone. He recognizes and delights in the tune which brings the Walkuere into the action, though he may not know what is going on; he looks forward through Wagner's gloomy measures to the cheerful magic fire music; the toreador song, the soldier song from Faust, and the grand march in Aida are things he can understand. But, for the rest he is a lost lamb—especially in the dark forest of Wagner, in which only the obscure aspirations of the German soul will bring him through.

There remains to the provincial the opera company on tour. I won't name the bad ones—they're all terrible except the infrequent Metropolitan and the d'Oyly Cartes. Being a provincial myself, I have tried them repeatedly, with waning hope. Carmen is the only opera which lends itself to such performances; its carnival atmosphere leads one to expect bedraggled girls like those in the circus hula show.

But I have had enough of rheumatic Lohengrins, flabby Delilahs, and Aidas with hacking coughs. Henceforth, anybody who wants to introduce me to opera will have to present me with two round-trip tickets to New York and passes to the Metropolitan.

A Humble Cottage

GEORGE SCALISE, the Brooklyn labor racketeer who muscled into the presidency of the Building Service Employes International Union, has acquired a mansion of 27 rooms on the shores of Lake Mamanasco, at Ridgefield, Conn., a region much favored by rich refugees from the New York State income tax. Mr. Scalise is now refitting the place for occupancy, and two servants, or caretakers, are in residence, while tree surgeons leap from bough to bough amid the maples, oaks and beeches, amputating limbs which were damaged in the great sleet storm of six weeks ago. Plumbers and masons also are on the job, and to date Mr. Scalise has spent about $7,000 on rehabilitation of his country estate. He pays cash and is regarded as an excellent client.

About two weeks ago William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, in defending his colleague in the service of labor with a capital L, advised the public that Mr. Scalise lived modestly in a humble cottage in Brooklyn. That appears to be correct, although Mr. Scalise need not live modestly, for he and his fellow officers of the union voted him a salary of $20,000 a year, plus an unlimited expense account out of the union treasury, which has an income of $420,000 a year, according to his own figures.

A remarkable proportion of Mr. Scalise's fellow officers of the union have criminal records, and he reached the presidency by private arrangement with the officers and without any vote, direct or indirect, of the rank and file chambermaids, charwomen, window cleaners, janitors and other toilers.

MR. GREEN probably was sincere in his mention of the cottage, for Scalise has taken pains to disguise the fact that he has bought the mansion. It was bought in the name of Anna Scalise on September 22, 1939, and sold by her to the Felice Holding Co., a Connecticut corporation on November 9. One union colleague of Mr. Scalise says that Anna Scalise is the wife of the union president, but another insists that the Anna Scalise who bought and sold the property is the daughter. The relationship does not appear in the documents on file in the town hall at Ridgefield.

There are three stockholders in the Felice Holding Co.—George and Anthony Scalise, who own one share each, and Harry A. Rose, who owns 248 shares. However, George is president and treasurer and Anthony is secretary, and Rose holds no office and appears to be a dummy.

An authority intimate with the affairs of the Felice Holding Co. says unqualifiedly that Rose owns no part of the property. Rose has been described as an international representative of the union, an office of wide powers, by some informants in the labor racket. He was active on behalf of the union in Miami Beach during the winter when this group found itself in a conflict of jurisdiction with a bartenders' and waiters' racket of the A. F. of L. controlled by Danny Coughlin, a brother-in-law of Al Capone and guard at the Capone estate.

ROSE HIMSELF, however, insists that he holds no office in the union and that, in the matter of Villa Scalise at Ridgefield, Conn., he is merely an agent and contractor.

An operator in the labor racket who is qualified to speak from inside knowledge said that Scalise felt that he was getting to be a big man in labor affairs and wanted a nice place because of his standing "and all that," but thought it wise to hold the property in the name of the holding company "because he didn't want anyone to know he had all that money."

The mansion was built about 35 years ago by Courtland Dixon, a rich New Yorker, and contains a living room 45 by 35 feet, a reception room, library, dining room, den, kitchen, butler's pantry, servants' dining room, butler's bedroom and bath, laundry and chill room on the ground floor. Also on the ground floor are a large inclosed tiled, heated porch with a huge fireplace, and two powder rooms. There are ten master bedrooms, with five baths, and five servants' rooms, with two baths, on the second and third floors.

There is a seven-car garage with steam-heated quarters for the chauffeur and family, and hovering over all is a mortgage of $12,500. The purchase price was $22,500, marked down from $150,000.

At the lower end of the property, across the State road, stands the Ridgefield town poor house.

The Great Hat Crisis

THE JOINT BOARD of the United Hatters, Cap and Millinery Workers of the A. F. of L. has launched a drive against the hatless fad, naming a committee of 1,000 women to help in the drive. The question is whether the hatters have not awakened too late.

Once upon a time a bareheaded man outdoors attracted attention. Everybody assumed he had been chased out of his house in a hurry or that he had just broken jail.

Today there are thousands of communities where a man with his hat on is regarded as old-fashioned, obstinate or a little cracked.

Probaby the hat makers have regarded the hatless idea as a mere passing fad, but it has begun to look permanent, and the manufacturers are at last seriously disturbed, not to mention the hat-check boys and girls, to whom a man without a chapeau is just more bad news.

Do you remember away back when every man had not only one or two bonnets, but a half-dozen or more? When the closet shelf had a whole row of 'em: hard straws, soft straws, felts, derbies and even a cap or two?

They even wore 'em playing golf!

Nobody waited a day after May 15 to put on a straw skimmer, and September 15 was the signal for a rush back to cold weather lids. Millions of Americans even spent eight months a year in those iron skullpieces known as derbies.

A vaudeville magician could ask "Will some gentleman kindly lend me his hat?" in any part of the country and had no trouble getting a wholesale response. Today he would be shouting down a well.

The hatless fad began with the depression. Thousands of Americans found, when their old skimmers took on that green look, that they couldn't afford replacements. Once they got used to going around bareheaded they liked it. And now countless former hat-store customers don't even feel right with a hat on.

Lee F. Bristol, in the Southern Banker, reveals a copy of the rules for employes in the original Carson, Pirie & Scott store, Chicago, 80 years ago:

"Store must be opened from 6 a. m. to 9 p. m. the year round.

"Store must be swept; counters, base shelves and showcases dusted; lamps trimmed, filled and chimneys cleaned; pens made; doors and windows opened; a pail of water, also a bucket of coal, brought in before breakfast (if there is time to do so), and attend to customers who call.

"The employe who is in the habit of smoking Spanish cigars, being shaved at the barber's, going to dances and other places of amusement will surely give his employer reason to be suspicious of his integrity and honesty.

"Each employe must pay not less than $5 a year to the church and must attend Sunday school regularly.

"Men employes are given one evening a week for courting, and two if they go to prayer meeting.

"After 14 hours of work in the store the leisure hours should be spent mostly in reading."

Americans In Norway

TIME OUT FOR two accolades. One is for Leland Stowe, who has just turned out the greatest newspaper story of the European War; the astounding account of the conspiracy which enabled the Germans to penetrate the length of Oslofjord and seize the capital of Norway with the firing of scarcely a shot.

The other is for "Daisy" Harriman, American Minister to Norway.

They have at least five things in common: American citizenship, energy, a social conscience, reportorial skill—and an age problem.

Stowe was a distinguished foreign correspondent in the nineteen-twenties. As chief of the Paris bureau of the New York Herald Tribune he won a Pulitzer prize. He was one of the first to foresee the consequences of the Hitler revolution. His book "Nazi Means War" was published, I believe, in 1933 or 1934. A few years ago his paper, unaccountably, brought him back to New York. But during the Spanish Civil War Stowe took leave of absence, went to Spain, and came back with some fine magazine articles.

When Germany invaded Poland, Stowe asked his paper to send him abroad. A bumble-headed editor told him he was "too old." He had attained the ripe age of 40.

Stowe's hair is prematurely white, but he has a pink complexion and a wiry frame and sound health. He called up Col. Frank Knox, publisher of the Chicago Daily News, and inquired if he was "too old" to be a war correspondent. Knox, who at 66 is hale and vigorous, and probably would enjoy covering a war himself, answered with an emphatic "No."

SO STOWE WENT to Finland for the Chicago Daily News Foreign Service and wrote some moving stories of a people who were preparing calmly for the cruel ordeal they still hoped to avoid. After the war broke he wrote many graphic stories. Among them was a minor classic—an appalling, but beautiful, description of a battlefield strewn with the silent equipment and snow-covered bodies of the Russian dead. Incidentally, Stowe himself easily weathered the Finnish winter, including expeditions to the Arctic front.

When the Germans arrived in Oslo, Stowe was one of the two American newspaper correspondents on the spot. He remained there four days longer, and then drove past the German lines and into Sweden, and finally pushed on to Stockholm to cable a story which almost any newspaper man would give his left arm to have written.

Incredible as the tale is, it is the first credible explanation of the Germans' silent seizure of the capital of Norway. Oslo lies at the head of a ford that is 50 miles long. Near the outer end is a naval base and further inland the ford narrows into a bottleneck protected by strong fortifications with heavy guns capable of sinking battleships. The narrows were also protected by mines—not contact mines, but mines which could be exploded by touching buttons or throwying switches in the fort at Drobak. Yet the German invaders sailed calmly past these formidable defenses without meeting resistance, except from a small mine-layer which had failed to receive the mysterious orders which silenced the other defenses.

In the success of this amazing refinement of the Trojan horse it is not clear how much was due to treason and how much to the naivette of Norwegian officers in obeying phoney orders. What does stand out is not only the thoroughness of the German preparations, but their audacity and ingenuity. What stands out also is the good-natured confusion of the ordinary citizens of Oslo. The police, whose sense of order was equal even to this unprecedented event, helped to clear the way for the thin file of troops with which the Germans took over the capital of a nation.

THIS RESUME HITS only a few high spots. Stowe's story must be read in full, on account both of its factual content and of its superb organization and style.

Florence Jaffray (Daisy) Harriman will be 70 in July, but she is no second-strong correspondent herself. She was the first person to notify the world, through her uncoded despatch to the State Department, that Norway was at war with Germany. When the first word of the invasion came she got to her office—about 3 o'clock in the morning—before any member of her staff. By 10 o'clock she was in an automobile to perform her duty of following the fleeing King and Norwegian government.

Ironically, she was appointed Minister to Norway because the post was considered a quiet one, where it would be safe to send a woman. Probably nobody ever thought of her age, because it does not show.

There isn't room here to recount Mrs. Harriman's accomplishments in a long career or to describe her Sunday night suppers, which for years were the liveliest forum in Washington. You sense from her simple account of her arduous and dangerous trek with the Norwegian government what kind of person she is. If she ever wants to retire from the diplomatic service, she ought to be able to command her own price as a war correspondent.

Conservation Board Meets, Takes Cruise

Annapolis, Md., April 16 (AP).—The State Conservation Commission combined business with pleasure today and held their regular weekly meeting on shipboard.

The commission had arranged a meeting tonight at Rock Hill to discuss the 1940 shell-planting program with watermen there, and held its meeting aboard the conservation patrol flagship en route across the bay.

Chairman Edwin S. Warfield said the midwinter freeze and prolonged ice conditions in the bay had been important factors and predicted that this season's catch would be less than last year's.

The Trojan Horse

By Barnet Nover

Light On The Fall Of Oslo

IT APPEARS now that the landing of German troops at Oslo on April 9 was no superhuman feat of military daring. It was, on the contrary, a practically uncontested maneuver prepared for by Trojan horse tactics of the same kind which the Nazis had previously employed to pave the way for the bloodless annexation of Austria, the breakup of Czecho-Slovakia, and the successful blitzkrieg against Poland.

In his brilliant dispatch to the Chicago Daily News Monday, Leland Stowe, who was present in the Norwegian capital when the German invaders arrived, declares that Oslo was captured not by armed force but by a gigantic conspiracy. In their bold and almost successful bid to dominate the country by a lightning coup, the Nazis apparently depended far less on naval, military and air power than on treachery and sabotage.

The results justified the accurance with which they went ahead with their plans. But had the Nazi "Fifth Column" in Oslo fallen down on the job the consequences might very easily have been a tremendous disaster for the Third Reich rather than a great, if perhaps only temporary, triumph. This is borne out by the fact that the Nazi flotilla which had steamed up Oslo Fjord took terrible chances.

One Norwegian minelayer, Olaf Tryggvason, a ship of only 1,596 tons, did not receive the mysterious order to let the German vessels go through. It fired on the invaders and apparently sank two and possibly three German cruisers. Shots from coastal batteries before the order reached them to cease firing may, it is believed in Stockholm, have sent a fourth Nazi vessel to the bottom. But the confidence which Hitler had placed in the traitors and saboteurs at Oslo was generally not misplaced. Oslo, a city of 300,000, was taken by 1,500 men.

FOR CENTURIES Norway has been one of the most peaceful, decent and progressive nations. None showed a greater respect for the rights of individuals. The Norwegians believed in and practiced free speech, free press, freedom of movement. They laughed at their Quislings. They convinced themselves of the unimportance of these native Nazis by pointing out their electoral ineffectiveness. Nor were they particularly alarmed by the presence in their cities of apparently harmless agents of the Third Reich.

Norway was thus a perfect setup for Hitler's Trojan Horse. It is doubtful if either the leaders or the great mass of the people ever imagined that which happened in Austria and Czecho-Slovakia could happen to them. They lived internationally according to the Golden Rule and assumed that this spirit would be reciprocated by all their neighbors. It was a tragic illusion so far as the Third Reich was concerned.

IN ONE OF h' conversations with Hitler, Hermann Rauschning, heard the Fuehrer discussing modern war and its strategy. He tells about it in his illuminating book, "The Voice of Destruction."

"When I wage war," said the Fuehrer addressing himself to Rauschning's Danzig colleague, Forster, "in the midst of peace, troops will suddenly appear, let us say, in Paris. They will wear French uniforms. They will march through the streets in broad daylight. No one will stop them. Everything has been thought out, prepared to the last detail. They will march to the headquarters of the general staff. They will occupy the ministeries, the Chamber of Deputies. Within a few minutes, France, Poland, Austria, Czecho-Slovakia, will be robbed of their leading men. An army without a general staff! All political leaders out of the way! The confusion will be beyond belief. But I shall long have had relations with the men who will form a new government—a government to suit me.

"We shall find such men, we shall find them in every country. We shall not need to bribe them. They will come of their own accord. Ambition and delusion, party squabbles and self-seeking arrogance will drive them. Peace will be negotiated before the war has begun. . . . Our strategy, Forster, is to destroy the enemy from within, to conquer him through himself."

WHAT HAPPENED in Norway on April 9 was thus in accordance with the plan which Hitler had conceived years before.

It is very doubtful, however, that what is happening there now fits in with his expectations. It is more than likely that Fuehrer was convinced that following the lightning coup Norwegian resistance would promptly collapse. Left without any army, without a capital, with the principal ports, air fields and coastal defenses in German hands, the Norwegian government would, he probably calculated, accept Nazi "protection" and thus place a legal if not a physical barrier in the way of an Allied expedition.

But Hitler's plan worked only in part. There was enough of a hitch in it at the outset to bring about the destruction of valuable German warships. And while resistance in the south is slight and sporadic, the situation in the north is not encouraging to the Third Reich.

Established at Narvik, the Allies are in a position to come to the aid of Sweden, should that country now be attacked. At least they now dominate the ore mines.

Between them Great Britain and France, now more than ever, enjoy mastery of the seas. Nor is it likely that the Allies will be content with merely remaining in Narvik. Action elsewhere along Norway's far-flung coast is likely. And if such action succeeds the outcome will be the reverse of what the Nazis contemplated. It will no longer be Germany threatening Great Britain from the air by means of Norwegian air bases, but the Allies threatening German control of the Baltic.

In the meantime, every little nation in Europe knows now what it faces, not only from without, but also from within. The next days and weeks are thus certain to see an elaborate search everywhere in neutral lands for Trojan horses bearing the sign of the swastika. Even at this late date to be forewarned is to be forearmed.

Notes From An Italian Diary

With Miss Thompson From Naples To Tuscany

By Dorothy Thompson

Naples, April 15.

IT IS TEN YEARS since I have been in this city and it is remarkably changed. The harbor is superb, but it looks very, very warlike. A cruiser and two destroyers are in port and, anchored in a neat row, three slick, black submarines. Italy is supposed to have 120 of these little darlings, which is a considerable fleet. The new postoffice would make Jim Farley's heart ache, it is so beautiful. The customs house is a palace. Most of the old slums are gone and their places taken by new, cheap apartment houses.

The excavation of Herculaneum had barely begun ten years ago. Now it is far advanced and the result seems to be more beautiful and exciting than Pompeii. The fact that the archeologists are still slicing into the ground almost along the walls of standing modern houses in which people are living and hanging out their washing gives one a sense of being in on a discovery. Much more of Herculaneum is still buried under these houses, and perhaps when I come again they will have disappeared and the now buried home of some former Greek magnate will be exposed to view. On the other hand perhaps war will have buried Herculaneum again.

I gather Herculaneum was a summer resort, for there are no traces of the central heating that one finds in Pompeii. I also gather that the Herculaneums were mighty drinkers, for every other shop is a wine shop and the house of the richest man has the most enchanting little marble bacchus that I have ever seen. The realistic sculptor has given him a swollen liver and I have no doubt that the owner of the house would have perished of cirrhosis if Vesuvius had not got him first.

ON THE SOCIAL and economic side, Fascism is a gigantic New Deal, a magnificent spending-lending program, a gargantuan WPA. If Harry Hopkins had had buried cities to uncover he could have put thousands more to work and hoped to collect again from the tourist trade.

Italy under Mussolini is an archeologist's paradise and it is archeology popularized, like a Wellsian outline of history—archeology, by Will Durant. An enormous amount of ancient Rome has been uncovered to remind the Romans of their imperial past. It is also properly illuminated. Moonlight is no longer enough for the Coliseum.

Orson Welles should see the restored Roman Senate before he puts on Julius Caesar the second time. It could not have been Fascist because it has right and left benches. There was evidently an opposition.

Still Mussolini will have left his mark on Rome as Napoleon left his on Paris. Dictators have always been great builders throughout all history. The imperial air is given to cities in times of unemployment, when there are strong governments, public works and concealed deficits.

THERE IS an enormous contrast between the public and private appearance of things. An American on the boat gave us cans of George Washington Coffee, with the prediction that there would be no coffee in Italy. Actually there was none last December. As mysteriously as it disappeared, so mysteriously has it returned. The food in the good restaurants is Lucullan. There is not the slightest sign of war economy in the good restaurants, except that Thursdays and Fridays are meatless days, and there is nothing to eat then except lobster and every conceivable kind of fish and crustacean. The innards of animals are not counted as meat, so if one has money one must fast for the Nation on sweetbreads, kidneys, tongue and pate de fois gras.

The upper party functionaries do themselves very well, too, if one judges from the clubs where they foregather. In private life, however, there is rationing of sugar and coffee—a pound of sugar a month a person and a half a pound of coffee. The wife of a Herald Tribune correspondent came a few minutes late for an appointment, and said the street car on which she was riding had been held up because a woman crossing the street had dropped a little paper package of coffee beans. Thirty people had been engaged in picking them up, bean by bean.

An Italian acquaintance came in while I was having breakfast this morning, and carried off the remains of my sugar and my marmalade. An Italian official told me, "Most of the country people have never used a pound of sugar a month, anyhow, so that the ratio is more than sufficient to them." The implication seemed to be that they have more sugar under rationing than they ever had before. I doubt this.

In Naples an American told me that he was allowed a liter—about a quart—of gasoline a day for his car, which, even with one of these tiny Italian cars, requiring little gasoline, was just enough to get him to and from his office. But in Rome I am told that this rationing is only theoretical. One sees very few large cars. The Balilla, which is a kind of super scooter, seems to be tops.

THE TOURIST trade has practically stopped, and with it goes one of Italy's most important sources of foreign exchange. Thousands of American dollars are usually spent by veteran American travelers. The name of Miss Shipley, the head of the passport division of the American Department of State, is anathema. She is held personally responsible for the policy which prevents Americans from traveling abroad during this war. But there are still British people and Americans who have lived here so long that nothing will budge them.

The exchange rate of the lira is officially 19 to the dollar. The tourist lira is 23 and a fraction, but Americans with large sums to change at a time—say, $1,000—can and do get from 40 to 50. The unstable value is interfering, I am told, with another indirect source of income in Italy—remittances from Italian nationals in the United States. They are not sending their money home because they are afraid they will lose too much on the exchange.

Rome is full of Europeans, including innumerable exiled aristocrats — Russian, Spanish and Austrian. International society is, however, somewhat painful, although amusing. At a cocktail party yesterday an American was listening politely to a very outspoken Italian lady of high rank, who was expressing her views on the Nazis in language that could hardly be matched by Rabbi Wise. The American was grimacing and making strange wig-wag signals which utterly failed to stop the flow of eloquence. She was unaware that directly behind her stood the wife of one of the members of the German Embassy.

I overheard with amusement a series of conversations between the wife of a neutral attache and the various people who greeted her—French, British and German. The war was won and lost on both sides in the course of 15 minutes.

ON THE TRAIN between Rome and Florence: A large black sign painted on a whitewashed peasant house said: "Viva Hitler! Viva Duce! Viva Hitler!" The first Hitler sentiment I have seen or heard expressed outside of officialdom. A sign on a barracks: "Those who want to conquer must fight first—Mussolini." Everywhere one sees admonitions painted up the way evangelical sects print scripture texts on billboards at home.

This small, overcrowded country has the most exquisite agriculture. Perhaps countries have to be poor before they learn to appreciate and use land. The narrow strips of land not more than 5 feet wide, the railroad right of way between the railbed and the rods, are carefully cultivated and planted to wheat. Sheep are herded in tiny, compact folds each carefully fenced, so the animals will not roam and consume too much grass. Haycocks are built up like round towers, the hay sliced away from the sides as carefully as from a cake. The top is left wide, overhanging like a thatched roof to keep off the rain.

This country is all wheat and vineyards. Willow trees are planted in ordered rows, and pollarded just above the crotch of the two main branches. The vines are trained on these trees and arbored between them. Willow shoots are used to bind the vines to the trees and to make baskets in which later to carry the grapes. The earth beneath the vines is as finely tilled as though a lawn were being prepared, and it is covered with a bloom of young wheat planted last fall. Later the vines arbored above the wheat will shade it but with so much sun as the Tuscany summer has the wheat will ripen all the better. In the two hours of passing through this country I have not seen a weed or an unused foot of ground.

No government invented this manner of agriculture. It is the result of generations of experience and tradition by a peasantry poor enough to know that land is sacred. Out of economic pressure they have created an agriculture as beautiful as a work of art. They eat grain—either as pasta or bread—and cheese and fruit and wine. They seldom have meat and they are a beautiful race.

FORMS of government change, war comes, and peace, and war, but under whatever system or in whatever sort of time the peasants of Tuscany give form and beauty to the landscape, and grow the two things that Christian men consider so holy that they are the symbols of the host: bread and wine.

Mrs. Roosevelt Will Not Seek Elective Office

First Lady Answers Rumors She Will Run for Congress

"Nothing would induce me to run for anything, or to accept an appointive office at any time, for any reason."

With these words, Mrs. Roosevelt, at her press conference yesterday, answered rumors that after her White House days are over she may run for Congress against Representative Hamilton Fish, or accept some high appointive position in the Government.

This topic was one of a number that came up for brief discussion the first time she has met the press since her return from a trip to the West Coast.

Reviews Her Activities

She also told something about her radio programs, which are to begin April 30; her meeting with the census taker in San Francisco; her current column-writing contract, and her belief that the country as a whole is continuing in its determination to stay out of the war.

Her radio contract calls for programs on Tuesdays and Thursdays at 12:15 Eastern standard Time, for 13 weeks. The money (she did not remember how much she was to receive) is to be paid directly to her, and after she takes out money for income tax, the remainder will be turned over to charity. Just which one, she has not yet decided.

Mrs. Roosevelt said a census taker in San Francisco interviewed her on her brief stay at the hotel there, and that she answered all the questions anybody else has to—despite the fact that the President already had answered them for her here at the White House.

OGPU Belief Ridiculous

In connection with her discussion of the census, she said many inquiries about it had poured in with her mail in recent weeks; and that some persons seemed to be of the impression that the whole system was a kind of beginning of an OGPU in this country. Such a belief she dismissed as being "ridiculous."

As to how long her column, "My Day," is to continue, she does not know. But while her contract runs out in January, 1941, the syndicate has taken up the option and given her another five-year contract. Asked if her husband had at any time objected to her writing a column, she said he had always said, "As I write only a diary, it is harmless."

She said she had observed a continued determination to stay out of war all across the country. She added that she supposed everybody hoped that would be possible, but that her views had not changed very much since the time her column carried the remark about how Americans at this time had no right to think "only of their skins and their pocketbooks." She added, however, that the United States still has plenty to do to establish a real democracy at home.

Roosevelt Aims at Players, Hits Camera With First Ball

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Staff Writer

President Franklin D. Roosevelt, one-time manager of the Groton nine, inaugurated the 1940 baseball season yesterday with a wild pitch.

It was one of the worst that ever left a Presidential arm, and that is saying something, for Hoover, Coolidge, Harding and Wilson also heaved some wild ones.

The gleaming white ball, aimed at the Washington and Boston players assembled before the grandstand, fell short of them. It crashed into a camera held by Irving Schlossenberg, 22-year-old photographer of the Washington Post, and wrecked the focusing pinion, behind which was Schlossenberg's eager face.

Policeman Gets It

The ball caromed off the camera and landed at the feet of Policeman J. F. Ashe, of the Second Precinct. He pounced on it while the crowd of 31,000 that filled grandstands, bleachers and aisles gave the bluecoat a medley of cheers and boos.

Some of the fans looked on the wild pitch of the No. 1 Fan as an ill omen. They were right. Washington lost, 1 to 0.

War and the burning third-term question were far from the thoughts of the multitude that gathered in flag-garlanded Griffith Stadium.

Nevertheless, the politicians on the scene—a quorum of Congress must have been present—probably came out of their seats when they noted who was sitting alongside Mr. Roosevelt when the White House touring car with tag No. 101 rolled into the park.

It was Postmaster General James A. Farley.

Guest at Luncheon

There have been rumors that relations between the President and "Big Jim" were not so good. Yesterday Farley was a luncheon guest at the White House. The President asked him to share his box at the opener.

Vice President John Nance Garner, who also seeks to replace Mr. Roosevelt in the White House, sat in a nearby box.

"Nice day for baseball, eh?" remarked the Vice President to the President.

Bystanders were not able to catch Mr. Roosevelt's reply.

Actor Slashes Wrist, Takes Gas, Poison, Still Lives

"I am now ready for the final curtain—God forgive us, we know not what we do."

Thus ended a five-page note found in a basement apartment at 1345 B street southeast yesterday with the unconscious body of Leon J. Tempest, 50, actor.

His left wrist was slashed, an empty bottle of poison was nearby, and four gas jets were open, but the curtain of life had not been closed on the actor. He was still alive when found by a fellow roomer, Kermit Bowen.

A doctor from Casualty Hospital gave first aid, took Tempest to Gallinger Hospital. Last night his condition was described as "slightly improved, but still critical."

Tempest fulfilled the wish expressed in the note "to take my little tame pup with me." Police found the pet—a wire-haired terrier—dead of gas in the basement rooms.

Prof. Grossman's Mother Dies at 63

Mrs. Esther Grossman, 63, mother of Herbert H. Grossman, professor of law at Southeastern University, died yesterday in the surgical division of St. Elizabeths Hospital.

Born in Neinstadt, Germany, Mrs. Grossman emigrated to this country in her infancy. She came to Washington five years ago from Louisville, where she had been active in the Associated Charities and the Order of the Eastern Star. Her home here was at 1520 K street northwest.

Mrs. Grossman's body will be returned to Louisville today for funeral services Thursday or Friday.

Mrs. Overbee, 67, Dies; Revenue Official's Wife

Mrs. Florence M. Overbee, 67, died yesterday at Homeopathic Hospital.

Mrs. Overbee, who came to Washington from Cleveland in 1908, was the wife of Frederick R. Overbee, an employe of the Bureau of Internal Revenue. For many years a member of the William F. Hunt Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, she was active also in the Royal Neighbors of America.

Surviving besides her husband is a sister, Mrs. Luella Kendall, of Port Townsend, Wash. Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow at the Deal funeral home, 4812 Georgia avenue northwest, with burial in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Engineers to Hear Sen. Taft Today

Senator Robert A. Taft (Republican), of Ohio, will address the closing session of the twenty-first convention of the International Union of Operating Engineers at 10 a. m. today in the Raleigh Hotel.

The convention also will nominate officers, pass on amendments, and adjourn. A banquet is scheduled at the Raleigh tonight.

Gas Plant Blast Wrecks Building

Salisbury, Md., April 16 (AP).—An unexplained explosion blew out one wall of the Citizens Gas Co. plant here late today, wrecked a portion of the roof and shattered all windows. No one was injured.

Contract Bridge

An example of expert cooperation on the defense is shown in today's hand, played by Oswald Jacoby and Wingate Bixby in a recent championship. They managed to knock off nine tricks against a two-heart contract which they had doubled—to win 1,100 points and high schore.

The "balance of power" followers would agree with North's reopening of the bidding, after Bixby and Ossie had stopped at one no trump, although they might argue for a takeout double rather than a bid of two diamonds. Just how expensive adhering to this principle may be was brought home forcibly to North and South by the defender's alacrity to double followed by their fine play. Jacoby, incidentally, is frequently in violent disagreement with the "balance of power" players, theoretically, that is.

South tried to scramble to a better contract after North's diamond bid was doubled, but it appears that any declaration would be almost as painful, although South might have managed the play better.

Jacoby led the four of clubs. The queen was played from dummy, Bixby put up the king and declarer won with the ace. South next cashed the jack, led a low club and tried to ruff with the heart four in dummy; Bixby overruffed and promptly led back the ace and a low heart, washing off the trumps from dummy. After this declarer was struggling in a quicksand, he managed to wrest from the defense only two hearts and two clubs altogether.

LOST 26 LBS. of FAT

Fat Girls—Here's A Tip!
NEW YORK—Special.

In 40 days Mrs. Helga Blaugh reduced 26 lbs. Took 4 inches off hips, 3 inches off bust and 7½ inches off waist. She writes: "I feel fine and look 10 years younger."

How would you like to safely and harmlessly lose 15 pounds of fat in a few weeks? How would you like to lose your double chin and your bulging hips and stomach and along with it get the increase in energy and improvement in health which so often accompanies excess fat reduction?

Get on the scales today and see how much you weigh. Take a half teaspoonful of Kruschen in a glass of hot water first thing every morning to gently activate liver, bowels and kidneys. Cut down your caloric intake. Eat wisely and satisfyingly.

Then after 30 days, weigh yourself again and just see if you haven't lost pounds of ugly fat. Money back if not joyfully satisfied.

Refuse imitations. Demand and get the genuine Kruschen made right here in the U. S. A. A jar lasts 4 weeks and costs but a trifle. Adv.

Gov. Stassen Chosen to Give G.O.P. Keynote

Rep. Martin Favored For Chairmanship At Nominating Rally

Selection of Gov. Stassen as convention keynoter and temporary chairman, was regarded in Republican circles as a victory for the party's progressive element. Six feet 3 inches tall and heavily built, he reached his thirty-third birthday only last Saturday. He was elected governor in a Republican comeback in his State in 1938 and is running for reelection this fall.

Stassen was born in a Dakota County farmhouse.

He finished his schooling at the University of Minnesota, graduating in law there. During his college days, Stassen farmed, clerked in a bakery and worked as a sleeping car conductor.

He was elected Dakota County attorney at 23, held that office until his election as Governor.

Martin Requires Approval

Ralph E. Williams, dean of the national committee in point of service, said Gov. Stassen would be the youngest keynoter in his memory.

The committee's choice of Representative Martin for permanent chairman puts him in top position for that influential convention office. The recommendation is subject, however, to approval of the convention as a whole.

Martin, 55, has been a Representative for 15 years and is now House minority leader.

The selection for other principal convention officers are: Vic Mackenzie, of Salem, Ore., national convention director for the American Legion for the past ten years, sergeant at arms; Lieut. Gov. Samuel S. Lewis, of Pennsylvania, chief assistant sergeant at arms; Lehr Fess, of Ohio, former parliamentarian of the House and son of former Senator Simeon D. Fess, parliamentarian; David Lee Schillinglaw, Chicago, chief doorkeeper, and Mrs. G. Worthington Scranton, of Scranton, Pa., Republican national committeewoman from Pennsylvania, official hostess.

Willkie Mentioned

Wendell Willkie, utility executive, mentioned in some quarters as a Presidential possibility, was among several proposed for keynote speaker. Committee members said his name was withdrawn after the committee agreed his selection might prove unwise if he were to be a candidate.

Willkie's name was presented by Kenneth Simpson, Republican national committeeman from New York, and his committee colleague, Mrs. Ruth Pratt.

Simpson Suspects "Purge"

Simpson told newspapermen at the committee meeting that the New York State committee had attempted a "purge or blitzkreig against me."

Mentioning an action of the State committee at Albany last Friday when he said a resolution was adopted which demanded in effect that he give up his place on the National Committee, Simpson commented:

"Instead of the New York delegation being hell-bent for Dewey as a favorite son, a large group will now go to the convention with open minds."

He predicted that New York delegates who go to the National Convention to support Dewey and those who go "with open minds" will be "more or less" evenly divided.

Senate Committee Questionnaire Seeks Basis for Hearings

By Nicholas P. Gregory
Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

Members of the Senate Banking and Currency Committee have received a comprehensive questionnaire "framed as a basis for extensive hearings" on the monetary study authorized at the last session of Congress. A $25,000 fund has been allotted for the study.

Senator Wagner (Democrat), of New York, committee chairman, in a letter to members has disclosed that the final draft will be sent to the Treasury, Federal Reserve Board, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, the Comptroller of the Currency, the American Bankers Association, Reserve City Bankers Association and all State bank supervisors, to obtain their views on the banking system and the "monetary policies now pursued."

In its tentative form the questionnaire dealing with the Treasury seeks information on silver, gold, monetary powers, fiscal policy, foreign exchange, international capital assets and liabilities of the United States, and currency.

Studies Economic Effects

Under the heading of silver, the committee for example is desirous of exploring the probable economic effects of a cessation of Treasury purchases of foreign silver. Then it asks the Treasury to give its views if its buying price for foreign silver is reduced.

"Assuming that we are to continue purchasing foreign silver, upon what criteria should the Treasury base its buying price for foreign silver?" is another question.

Perhaps the most extensive information is sought from the Treasury on gold. All in all, the committee seeks answers on 42 questions. This section is divided into a general discussion of gold; the cost of gold acquisitions; gold and domestic monetary policy, and monetary policy.

Answers for 16 questions are sought from the Treasury on monetary powers which it exercises. The committee also seeks information on the extent to which the Treasury seeks the support of the Federal Reserve System in its fiscal operations.

Questions on Deficit

With regard to the deficit:

"One of the major objections advanced against Federal deficits is the associated growth of the public debt. What are the specific objections to a growing public debt? Discuss the significance of the following points, which are commonly cited: (a) refunding problem; (b) tax burden to pay off principal; (c) tax burden to pay interest; (d) the effect on private investment; (e) the effect on business conditions; (f) the effect on the distribution of wealth and income; (g) preparedness for another war."

The monetary and credit powers and policies of the board of governors of the Federal Reserve System are considered under seven subheads as follows: Internal organization, monetary powers, monetary policy, fiscal policy, monetary policy and the business cycle, and currency.

The second section of the questionnaire dealing with the Federal Reserve System dwells on the supervision of banks, and is divided into a general discussion of the subject, asset quality and type of bank assets, valuation of assets, capital, procedures and sanctions, admissions to membership, relations among supervisory agencies, banking earnings, etc.

Seeks Data on Banks

The committee seeks the opinion and data of the American Bankers Association and Reserve City Bankers Association, on deposit insurance, bank supervision, on the legal status of banks, earnings and interest payments, bank organization and structure, credit control and monetary control and the business cycle.

One question put to the A. B. A. on bank supervision follows:

"How does bank supervision effect the outstanding volume of bank credit? In what way does supervision influence the expansion or contraction of credit during the different phases of the business cycle? If supervisory policy were to be so directed as to contribute to the protection of the economy from the effects of undue expansion or contraction of credit, how could this best be done? Would appropriate policy require a revision of supervisory standards during the course of the cycle or can standards be devised which will give the desired results at every stage in the cycle? Appraise the influence of present supervisory standards upon credit conditions now and under other cyclical conditions."

FBI Gives $480 To Boys Club Fund

The Police Boys Club fund was increased by $480 yesterday, gift of workers at the Federal Bureau of Investigation. This brought subscriptions to well over the $60,000 mark in the campaign for $86,000.

At 8:30 o'clock tonight the Illinois State Society will stage a benefit entertainment for the club at the Shoreham Hotel.

Society Turns Out For Opening Game

Men Outshine Women Sartorially; President Wears Slate Blue Suit And Gray Hat, Garner Dons Stetson

By Carolyn Bell

It's a rare occasion when the men outshine the ladies—sartorially speaking, that is—but they did yesterday at the opening baseball game in Griffith Stadium. Headed by President Roosevelt, in a slate blue suit and soft gray felt hat, society was out in full force. Political bigwigs, such as Vice President Garner, Senator Charles McNary and Senator Alben Barkley doffed the cares of a weary world to root for the Nationals who unhappily went down in defeat.

Conspicuous by his broad-brimmed, beige Stetson was the Vice President who led the teams across the field in a march preceding the game. Accompanying the President was his military aide, Brig. Gen. Edwin M. Watson. Seated near the Presidential box was Mrs. Robert C. Moran, wife of Dr. Moran, wearing a yellow straw beret, spiked with two rust feathers, atop her bright hair. While not far away Clark Griffith, clad in gray tweeds, chatted with Mrs. Joe Cronin, when not eagerly watching his ball club in action. Mrs. Cronin completed her powder blue ensemble with a flower hat covered with a wisp of magenta veil. G-Man J. Edgar Hoover, who rarely misses the opening performance, came in for his usual share of the spotlight.

An ardent fan was Mrs. Charles R. Train, wife of Rear Admiral Train. She was accompanied by her son, Cuthbert, who is equally enthusiastic about America's No. 1 sport. An interesting stag party was made up of Middleton Train, Sam Biddle, Tinsley Adams and Charles McKenney. Also among the masculine rooters were Bob Rodenberg, garbed in a shepherd check sport coat, James A. Lemon, Hugh Reilly and Ernest Humphrey Daniel, jr., and Thomas L. Egan.

A merry bus load of fans arrived at the park just before the game. They were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lowell B. Mason, who had a luncheon beforehand at their home on Chevy Chase Parkway. Guests in the Masons' box were Senator and Mrs. Burton K. Wheeler, Senator Eric Shipstead, Representative and Mrs. Clarence Lea, Judge Ewin L. Davis, chairman of the Federal Trade Commission, and Mrs. Davis; Col. and Mrs. Charles H. March, Commissioner and Mrs. Garland S. Ferguson, Maj. and Mrs. Robert E. Free, Commissioner W. A. Hollywood Stylist Creates Felts Approved by Men

By Marshall Adams
The Post Fashion Editor.

HAVING your headgear designed especially for your own type coloring and age by a noted film designer—and at a price that doesn't even dent your exchequer—is headline fashion news these days. But that's exactly what is in store for you this season due to an arrangement by a local store with Howard Greer, one of California's most exclusive movie stylists.

For the last three or four years Howard Greer has been private coutourier to such glamour maids as Carole Lombard, Irene Dunne, Madeleine Carroll and Olivia de Havilland after many years' service as studio designer for Paramount. He is therefore an authority on what styles the film colony men admire on Hollywood's great beauties. He feels decisively that these serious times motivate against dizzy headgear and that men will never get used to bizarre hats, anyway.

The new Howard Greer "Sunset Boulevard Hats" mark his first venture into mass production, but happily enough he succeeds from the outset in creating designs that are highly personalized, though classic. There are over a dozen different styles in his collection, all in tissue felts, yet each one manages to look like the wearer.

There are Bretons with Western saddle stitching for impudent types and straight sailors with contrasting pique bows or bands for tailored types. Flemish sailors there are in youthful pinks and blues or dashing fedoras with sweeping quills, also elaborately casual side rolled felts with contrast stitching in jaunty colors like California spice. Miss Elsa Roberts, Howard Greer's personal envoy who flew in from Hollywood to launch these felts, reports that moveland as well as Fifth avenue are agog over the soft, wide brimmed felt. Its brightest adherents are Mrs. Harrison Williams in New York and Norma Shearer in Hollywood.

Hollywood Submits Its Version of Old Classics

Above is "Rancho," a racy side-swept felt which, according to its designer, fuses the South American influence with the Hollywood touch. There is a lariat tassel and band accenting the pinched crown. The irregular brim can be adjusted to fit varying types of faces

"Hollywood Bowl" is the name of the spirited felt (above), designed and named by Howard Greer, film costume designer. It is one of those perfectly plain large saucer sailors that become many faces and know no age limit. It is saucily trimmed with a speckled quill

Mary Haworth's Mail

Amiable While She Was Wage Earner, Man Bitterly Resents Wife's Invalidism Since Baby Came

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have been married for two years, and have a son four months old. Since the birth of my child, I have been in very poor health and under the doctor's care. Before the baby's birth, I held an office position and supported myself. And so long as my husband did not have to give me any of his money, everything was all right. But now I cannot go back to work and at the time I most need my husband's help he has completely failed me, to such an extent that the only solution is to leave him.

My husband has never struck me; but he has done everything possible in the way of mental abuse. He makes horrible remarks and orders me out of bed on days when the doctor has stated it would be "dangerous to be up." He will not deny himself one thing. He buys everything he wants and gives me what is left; and that isn't much. The money I had saved before the baby's birth is gone. And the bills must be paid and my baby and I must have food.

I have tried reasoning with my husand, but to no avail. My nerves are so upset that I can neither eat nor sleep; and I know that unless I can get away from him, I will never improve. If I were able to work, I would take the boy and ask nothing of my husband except that he let us alone. He makes $30 a week and sometimes a bit more, for overtime work. I have no relatives to help me; but I do have some dear friends who would take me in, if I had about $45 a month to take care of my expenses there. This would be only a temporary arrangement, but I am sure my husband never would voluntarily give me this amount, or any other.

What, then, can I do? I shrink from resorting to legal steps, and wouldn't have any idea how to go about it. I do not seek divorce for the present, at least, although I fear there will be no alternative. Will you please advise me what to do? I don't know which way to turn, except that I cannot stay any longer with my husband.

H. L. G.

Bring Man Off High Horse by Legal Means

DEAR H. L. G.: Take your problem to the Legal Aid Bureau, at 1409 L street northwest, Washington, D. C. Consultations hours are from 2 to 4 o'clock every weekday afternoon except Saturday, when they are from 10 a. m. to 12 o'clock. By arriving a little before the conference-opening hour, you can be sure of a fairly immediate reception. And if your husband brutally orders you out of bed, anyway, on days when the doctor has said it would be "dangerous to be up"—I am sure you can summon the strength to make this constructive, necessary trip, which will take only a few hours at most.

After talking with a representative of the bureau, I am convinced that you will find there the counsel and cooperation you need for compelling adequate financial support from your husband. I am told, however, that it would be unwise for you to leave his roof for other shelter, except under legal sponsorship. Evidence must be established, prior to such a move, that the step—if and when taken—is "constructive," and not wilful desertion. I imagine when your husband learns that you possess both the resourcefulness of character, and legal backing, to see that justice is done in this instance, he will come down off his high horse with astonishing alacrity.

'Oregonian' Is Advised To Come Down to Earth

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Your advice to "Oregonian," in Sunday's Post, is timely and excellent, but I doubt that it will fall on fertile ground. Here, apparently, is one of those individuals (and their number is legion) who has been "over-educated." What I mean to say is this—he has been exposed to higher education and instead of taking profit from it, he has twisted it to suit his own ideas.

In addition, he has been unfortunate in falling into the hands of a psychiatrist who, while he may be "outstanding" in his field, evidently is not equipped to handle every type of neurotic case. (Confidentially, I feel that a lot of this so-called psychiatric treatment is just so much "tripe," anyway.)

"Oregonian" feels called upon to make his fiance over into a rubber-stamp of himself, so far as her interests and manner of thinking are concerned. It has been my observation that couples whose outlooks are identical are not always to be envied. Such associations turn out to be like living in a climate where all days are alike, and therefore boring.

He complains that, try as he will, he cannot pull himself up out of the $1,260 income class of Federal employe. Doubtless he is a classified Civil Service appointee. If so, and if he has the education claimed, he can take additional competitive examinations as they are announced; and he always has the privilege of asking for non-competitive promotional exams. Many young persons with the proper educational background have moved up from the $1,260 classification with little delay.

First, of course, he should come down to earth and think and act as a normal human being is expected, and obliged, to do. We expect something more than panicked neurosis from young men reared in the wide open spaces of the Far West. This young man seems to be hollering before he is hurt.

Breakfast Scones Popular at Manderley for Breakfast

ALTHOUGH the sweet scones eaten at tea are now perhaps more popular in England than the unsweetened breakfast scone, the latter still remains one of the pleasant things of a typical English breakfast.

The young second wife of Max de Winter, in the picture "Rebecca," was much impressed and a little overawed by the magnificence of the breakfast offered at Manderley. In describing it she said, "there was tea in a great silver urn, coffee too, and on the heater, piping hot, dishes of scrambled eggs, of bacon, and another of fish. There was a little clutch of boiled eggs as well, in their own special heater and porridge in a silver porringer. On another sideboard was a ham and a great piece of cold bacon. There were scones too and toast, and various pots of jam, marmalade and honey, while dessert dishes, piled high with fruit, stood at either end."

Such a breakfast would be too inclusive for most people, but the scones would be welcome. There are many recipes for scones, some of the best hailing from Scotland and the North of England, where they have their wholemeal scones, wheat meal scones, and cream scones. The recipe that follows is a simple and typical one:

Breakfast Scones

Sift together 2 cups bread flour, ½ teaspoon salt and 3 teaspoons baking powder. Rub in 2 tablespoons butter and mix to a rather soft dough with 2-3 cup milk. Divide into two portions, roll each into round half an inch thick, cut across so as to form four triangular shaped cakes, brush the tops with milk, and bake in moderate oven 375 degrees, for 12 to 15 minutes.

How to Beautify Arm and Elbow

Spring with its ticklish warm weather brings out the short-sleeved dress, thus putting arms and elbows into front-line prominence. If you've neglected your elbows during the winter cover-up season, they have probably turned grayish and coarse. However, a little attention will make them white and smooth again. Here's a new elbow treatment put out by a famous Fifth Avenue cosmetician:

Pour a few beauty grains on a stiff-bristled handbrush and rub your elbows vigorously. These small grains will bleach the coarsed, discolored area, leaving it several shades whiter than before. As a softening treatment, apply rich pasteurized face cream, smoothing it in with circular strokes. Before going out, place a little dab of rogue on each elbow, then powder over it. This makes the elbows look young and rosy.

'Higher and Higher' Diverts the Mind From Tragic Events

April 16.

THE MORE tragic the world gets, the more ardently the noble, self-sacrificing men of Broadway rush gay musical comedies into production to divert the saddened minds of tired business men, and women, too. The newest tune hit on Broadway is called Higher and Higher," and it seems to be packing the Shubert Theater, where Katie Hepburn held forth for a whole year.

ALICE HUGHES

There are two interesting girls heading the troupe, along with that comical zany, Jack Haley. One is Marta Eggert, a cute trick from overseas who did a Hollywood stretch, and Shirley Ross, who also comes to us from the same quaint spot. Shirley, you remember, sang "Thanks for the Memory" with Bob Hope in a film some time back. Since then she has never looked back. Lief Erickson, the handsome Viking now estranged from Frances Farmer, is on deck to palpitate the ladies in the audience, and a real star is an eccentric seal named Sharkey. The crowd adores him.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN. It is bruited about here that Willie Buckner, who has just begun serving two years in a Federal pokey, can be paroled after eight months of it—with a possible proviso that he cannot visit any night club where his new wife, Addie Moffett, "society songstress," as it is put, is singing. Well, maybe Willie is a bit sated with her trilling, anyhow. . . . Ty Power and his Annabella have been in town, going hither and there, and attracting plenty of attention. They are a fine looking young couple, too . . . Mary Lewis, famous executive along Fifth Avenue, has just opened her own shop here, and that rainy Monday saw everybody in the local fashion and newspaper worlds turned out to to wish her well.

Bishop and Mrs. Freeman Make Home A Bower of Roses on Golden Wedding

Hundreds of Washingtonians Call At Cathedral Close Between 4 and 7 To Felicitate Clergyman and Wife

By Hope Ridings Miller

MASSES OF GOLDEN roses transformed their home into a bower of blossoms yesterday when the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, and Mrs. Freeman celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary.

Between 4 and 7 p. m., several hundred Capitalites and scores of out-of towners climbed the heights of St. Albans to congratulate the popular couple on a rare marital achievement and to wish them many more years of wedded happiness.

When I say virtually everybody in town was there, I mean that nobody could possibly have been missed in the throng that filled the spacious Bishop's House in the Cathedral Close and lingered as long as possible to enjoy the pleasant fete.

Mrs. Roosevelt, who rarely attends private parties, was among those arriving early. Coming on from another engagement, she was trimly turned out in a blue redingote over a print frock and a blossom-trimmed blue turban. Arriving a few minutes later was Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, whose navy ensemble was accented with white.

Guests, weaving slowly through the crowd in the reception hall, found their way to the drawing room, where Bishop and Mrs. Freeman received. She was becomingly gowned in floor-length cream lace, made on simple lines with long sleeves. On her shoulder was an orchid, the gift of her husband; and in her arm was a huge bouquet of yellow roses.

ONLY FLOWER GIFTS were on display; but somewhere in the dwelling were 50 yellow roses sent from the White House, and 50 more from the cathedral staff. Towering lillies vied in beauty with jonquils brimming from low bowls and tall yellow tapers, lighted the tea table in the dining room.

On the buffet, also flanked by yellow tapers was a large white wedding cake, decked with gold leaves and bearing the dates—1890 and 1940. A gift of several friends of Bishop and Mrs. Freeman, it was sent from New York.

Fruit punch was served in the library and from there many guests found their way to the terrace which presents a view of one of Washington's loveliest scenes. Three-hundred-year-old boxwood, transplanted from a distance of 80 miles, and a sweeping expanse of nicely manicured grass make this a perfect lawn that sweeps into the bishop's garden.

Another choice retreat of the Freeman home is the tiny chapel with its stained-glass windows and Gothic atmosphere. A sizable number of guests stopped briefly within its prescribed walls yesterday, and yet the room was never crowded.

TWO GRANDDAUGHTERS of Bishop and Mrs. Freeman mingled in the throng, generally assisting. Mrs. Erle Savage, of Minneapolis, who came to Washington especially for the occasion, was smartly attired in white softly draped crepe, set off with a gayly colored girdle, and Jane Freeman, the other granddaughter generally assisting, wore pink net, made on bouffant, floor-length lines.

Taking their turns pouring were Mrs. Raymond Wolven, daughter of Bishop and Mrs. Freeman, and wife of Canon Wolven, the bishop's chaplain; Mrs. William Freeman, daughter-in-law of the host and hostess; their niece, Mrs. C. Parker Lattin, of Yonkers, N. Y.; Mrs. Nobel C. Powell, whose smart gray and navy lace frock was set off with a crimson girdle; Mrs. Albert McCartney, Mrs. ZeBarney Phillips, Mrs. William C. Johnson, Mrs. Thomas Ewing, of New York; Miss Helen Jones and Mrs. Albert Lucas, whose husband is head of St. Alban's School.

Following the reception, Bishop and Mrs. Freeman entertained at a supper party for members of their family, out-of-town guests and a very few close friends.

MEANWHILE, more than 600 guests had called to pay their respects. Clerical and secular friends mingled in the crowd that assumed enormous proportions toward the end of the party. The senior class of the Cathedral School was there, as were many others from the younger set. Scores of clergymen were seen in the company, and dozens of cave-dwellers who have known the Freemans since they came to Washington a number of years ago. The Cathedral staff was there in full force, and countless other friends of the man and woman who have been an important part of Capital life for the 17 years he has served as Bishop of Washington and for the several years before that when he was pastor of the Church of the Epiphany.

To mention but a few of the many guests I saw there—Miss Mabel Boardman was among those arriving early; as were Mrs. Hennen Jennings, Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman, and the former United States Minister to Canada and Mrs. Daniel C. Roper, who celebrated their own golden wedding a few months ago. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Warren were there, as were the Rev. ZeBarney Phillips, Mrs. Francis Savage, the Rev. Edward Slater Dunlap, the Rev. Albert Joseph McCartney, the Rev. Meade Bolton MacBryde, and the Rev. and Mrs. George Fiske Dudley, of Rumson, N. J., who are house guests of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Copeland Jones.

Henry F. Gradys Guests at Dinner

The Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Henry F. Grady were the guests for whom Mr. and Mrs. Guilford S. Jameson entertained at a small dinner last evening

Also in the company were Senator and Mrs. Dennis Chavez, the Commissioner of Narcotics and Mrs. H. J. Anslinger, Miss Minnie Mae Fleming, Bruce A. Low and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur H. von Thaden.

About the Town with DUDLEY HARMON

DECIDING TO RISE above the unseasonable weather, Arthur Bradley Campbell opened up the garden of the 1925 F Street Club for a tea party yesterday. The first of the spring debut parties in Washington, he introduced his cousins, the Misses Isabelle and Marjorie Meuser.

Before the rains came, several of the 850 guests strolled out into the club's back yard. They sat at the various small tables which had been set up and observed that the cold wave hasn't harmed the magnificent magnolia blossoms. Surrounded by a high brick wall, nobody felt it possible that they were in the heart of a city.

GRANDMOTHERS, MOTHERS, fathers and daughters milled about in the rooms of the club. All generations had been invited, and it was one of the largest parties so far this spring.

The two pretty debutantes chose to wear the traditional white, and their full-skirted dresses had little boleros. Marjorie was in organza and her sister chose lace. Both wore a string of pearls and carried old-fashioned nosegays with big paper frills large enough to hide their glasses of orange juice when a guest arrived to meet them.

Sidney's men played on the sun porch, but as usual the crowd chose to wedge into the room where the bar was set up. For the first time this season at a Capital party, there was a run on tea, and Mrs. Wallach Merriam, in a black and white print with a corsage of orchids and Mrs. Gilbert Hitchcock had loads of customers. Mrs. George Marye was another who assisted.

MILLING HERE and there: Mme. de Espil deep in conversation with Mrs. J. L. Houghteling . . . Senora de Cardenas in navy blue with a short beaver jacket. This shade incidentally, was the most popular. Mrs. Higginson Rogers wore a navy blue wool suit with two fresh carnations at the shoulder and a little skull cap to match, and Mrs. Hagner had chosen the same shade with a lighter blue turban.)

MRS. ARTHUR VANDENBERG and Senator Arthur Capper represented Congressional circles . . . Miss Elizabeth Fish was one of the prettiest debutantes there . . . Mrs. Frederick Mitchell Gould chatted with Mrs. Snowden Fahnestock, whose dark blue dress had a white collar . . . Ellen Hewes Flowerree assisted at the party between dances on the sun porch . . . Mrs. William D. Thomas, who will return to her Nevada ranch shortly, arrived with Commander Thomas . . . Virtually the entire Tuckerman clan was on hand . . . Dr. H. E. Van Enthoven, of Holland, was present. Incidentally, he has asked a few friends in for cocktails on Friday.

Mrs. McCeney Werlich, Vera Bloom in a new red hat, Mrs. George T. Pettingill, her niece, Peggy Warner; Jane Acheson chatting with Bill Sheldon and Mrs. John R. Williams were others of the hundreds present. Following the tea, the two debs entertained at a dinner for 24 at the club.

MEMBERS OF THE National Symphony Orchestra showed they could certainly swing it at the reception given for Dr. Hans Kindler by the Walter Bruce Howes. After the crowd had thinned out, several lingered on to dance, among them Mrs. Howe with Ralph Hill as a partner; Olin Dows cutting in on Mrs. John O'Rourke, and Mrs. Kindler dancing with George Hewitt Myers.

Among the batch of telegrams, Mr. Howe read from people who couldn't be at the dinner, was one from the famous critic, Carleton Smith. Just as he mentioned Mr. Smith's name, the latter quietly and unexpectedly arrived an hour late, having found after all that he could make it by plane. He has been on a lecture tour around the country and is now headed for the Williamsburg Festival.

CAPITAL WHIRL

By SALLY SWIFT

AT A PLEASANT dinner given recently by the Attache of the British Embassy and Mrs. Harold Sims, the dining room was decorated with masses of deep pink roses. In the drawing room, vases of mixed spring flowers were a foil for the petal tints of the ladies' gowns. Two enchanting blondes, Senora de Cardenas and Mme. Loudon, were in pale pink, while Mrs. Curzon-Howe wore sky blue that matched her eyes. Mrs. Warren Delano Robbins had chosen a gray, red and white print; Mme. de Kauffmann, wife of the Danish Minister, combined a bodice of Roman stripes with a gray skirt, and Mrs. Hugh Auchincloss was smart in black with a white-collared jacket. Mrs. James Clement Dunn looked charming in chartreuse and our hostess wore a becoming print in soft tones of green and yellow.

Mitzi Sims was telling of the recent amusing dilemma of a handsome young Danish diplomatic bachelor. It seems that in Denmark there is a custom that, on one certain day of Leap Year, any man refusing a proposal of marriage must give balm to the spurned lady in the form of six pairs of gloves or stockings.

A Washington belle, who somehow got wind of this soothing custom, called up Mitzi to check on the correct date, found that it was February 24 and took several pals in on the joke. As a result, the diplomat received a number of proposals of marriage on the fatal day and, not being in a marrying mood, had to respond with showers of gloves and hose.

Evidently Mitzi had been quoted as authority because the next time she saw the victim he said, "I do not like you any more. You cost me too much money, giving away these old Danish customs."

AT THE SIMS' DINNER the husbands of the ladies mentioned were also present and the extra man was a distinguished one, the Peruvian Ambassador, dean of the Diplomatic Corps.

D.A.R. Press Committee Hears Publicity Expert

Miss Frances Fiske Also Addresses Parents and Teachers Congress Group On Duties of Organization Reporters

By Jessie Ash Arndt

The Post Club Editor.

Good newspaper publicity doesn't just happen, Miss Frances Fiske, author of the new book, "So You're Publicity Chairman," told members of the press relations committee of the D. A. R. yesterday. Addressing the meeting called by the national chairman, Mrs. Jacob F. Zimmerman, of Chicago, at Memorial Continental Hall, she declared that good publicity for any organization required a serious interest on the part of the chairman and members of her committee.

Speaking before a meeting of the State publicity of the D. C. Congress of Parents and Teachers at the N. E. A. building earlier in the day, she told the members that when they were elected publicity chairmen they relinquished the right to enjoy themselves at meetings. "You have to listen even if the speaker's dull," she told them, "and, while the others are having tea and enjoying themselves, you're running around collecting names, dates and other facts.

"Often it is a thankless job, but there is a satisfaction to be gained from it. It is the satisfaction of watching your organization grow—not only financially, but in prestige and power and of knowing that you are responsible for its progress."

Mrs. Edward R. Seal, director of publicity for the Congress, presided at this session.

Worth Is Counted In Dollars and Cents

In her address to the D. A. R., Miss Fiske said club publicity should not be regarded as an easy way to let members know there will be a meeting, without having to send out postcards, or valuable "because it gives you cute little article to paste in your scrapbook.'

Its worth can be counted in dollars and cents, she said, when it sells tickets for benefits and brings patronage for the club projects. This, she said, was secondary to its importance in adding to the prestige of a club by presenting faithful accounts of its constructive activities.

Miss Fiske, who is society editor of the Mount Vernon (N. Y.) Daily Argus, reminded the women of the necessity for getting their news to the editor in time, with correct information and accurate spelling of names and, also that there must be news worth reporting if space is to be given to it in the paper.

Miss Vella Winner Also Is Presented

On the program with her was Miss Mary Hornaday, of the Washington bureau of the Christian Science Monitor, who told something of the mechanics of gathering news in the Capital. She urged, for a national organization such as the D. A. R., a year-around spokesman always available to newspaper people to give news of the society.

Mrs. Zimmerman also presented Miss Vella A. Winner, director of press and publicity for the General Federation of Women's Clubs, whose book, "What Makes You Think So?" was published two years ago. Miss Winner brought greetings from the federation and spoke briefly, stressing again what Miss Fiske had said of the necessity for the clubs making news before expecting space in the papers. She also urged careful selection of a publicity chairman.

Mrs. Zimmerman announced as winners of the publicity awards offered to chairmen in the various States, Mrs. Gertrude F. Miller of California, first; Mrs. Verner M. Moore, Kentucky, second, and Miss Mary H. Perry, South Dakota, third. The judges were Mrs. V. A. Binford, of Maine; Miss Bonnie Farwell, of Indiana, and Mrs. Thomas Boyd, of Colorado.

She gave a final admonition to her assembled committee chairmen, "If we fail in publicity, we should look to ourselves and see what we are doing that we should not do.

The program was arranged by Mrs. B. Harrison Lingo, vice chairman of the national press relations committee. Another vice chairman present was Mrs. T. E. Maury, of Aurora, Ill.

Various other committees of the D. A. R. had their meetings yesterday afternoon at Memorial Continental Hall, following State luncheons. Later a tea was given at the District D. A. R. chapter house, 1732 Massachusetts avenue, for national officers and delegates.

Mrs. Harry C. Grove In Receiving Line

In the receiving line were Mrs. Harry C. Grove, president of the Chapter House Corporation; Mrs. Lillian Chenoweth, State regent; Mrs. Charles Carroll Haig, vice president general, and Mrs. John Morrison Kerr, president of the Children of the American Revolution.

Among national officers who attended were Miss Page Schwarzwaelder, of New York, treasurer general; Mrs. Frank Leon Nason, of Massachusetts, registrar general, and Mrs. Vinton Earl Sisson, of Chicago, librarian.

The North Carolina group today will honor its retiring regent, Mrs. Eugene Norfleet, with a luncheon at the Mayflower. She is also candidate for vice president general.

Representative and Mrs. Dave D. Terry, of Arkansas, entertained at a tea yesterday afternoon in honor of Mrs. Charles Henry Miller, Arkansas State regent; Mrs. Homer Sloane, vice president general, and the Arkansas delegates to the congress, at their apartment in the Methodist Building.

Mrs. Terry was assisted by Mrs. Thomas Tatum, Mrs. Charles Edwin Fairman and Miss Edna Ward O'Hare, a page, who is Mrs. Miller's granddaughter.

National officers including Mrs. Val Taylor, vice president general and former Alabama State regent, were honor guests last night at the annual dinner arranged for members of the Alabama delegation. Mrs. E. R. Barnes, State regent, presided at the affair, which was given at the Mayflower Hotel.

Mrs. B. Y. Martin, of Washington, a former Alabaman, was in charge of arrangements. Mrs. G. W. S. Musgrave, chairman of the convention program committee, was among the guests.

Treasury Sets Official Rate For Sterling

Duties on British Imports to Be Based On a $4.02½ Pound

The Treasury moved yesterday to prevent a lowering of American tariff protection as a result of the recent sharp decline in British currencies.

It ordered customs collectors to value goods from England, Canada, Newfoundland and Australia at the "official" rates for currencies of those countries instead of the lower free market rates in computing ad valorem duties.

It announced that it would "carefully observe future developments" with respect to foreign currencies for which two rates—an official and a free market rate—are quoted by the New York Federal Reserve Bank. Two rates are quoted for three South American countries, Brazil, Uruguay and Chile, it is said. This matter is being studied.

March Exports $344,000,000

Secretary of Commerce Hopkins announced, meanwhile, that this country's export trade was valued at $344,000,000 in March, or 30 per cent more than a year ago. The March figure was about $6,000,000 in excess of the February total, but $14,000,000 under the December-January level.

The increase was affected to some extent by the war. It reflected, Hopkins said, larger shipments of machinery, trucks, iron and steel products, other metals, chemicals and airplanes. Exports to England, which have been expanding rapidly, were slightly less than in February. Shipments to France, Russia, Canada and Japan were higher.

The effect of the action with regard to British currencies, it is pointed out, is to "peg" ad valorem tariff duties on goods from the countries affected on the basis of the higher official currency rates.

Effect Explained

As a protective measure it is not regarded as of great importance, although it will operate as a mild brake on any stimulation of imports induced by the recent sharp decline in free market rates for the pound sterling, the Australian pound and the Canadian and Newfoundland dollars.

Suppose, it is explained, an American importer buys a bill of goods from an English exporter for £100. He is able to get these goods with free sterling, which he buys in the New York market at $3.50. His goods, therefore, cost him $350. Under the Treasury ruling, the goods will be valued at the official rate of $4.025 in computing the 50 per cent ad valorem duty which American tariff law says the goods must pay. That means he must pay a 50 per cent duty on goods valued at $402.50 instead of $350. He would still have to pay this rate even if the price of free sterling dropped to $3.00.

The bulk of imports from the countries affected, it is said, are valued at the official rates or pay specific instead of ad valorem duties. The British recently listed five articles—rubber, jute, tin, furs and whisky—which can be purchased only by acquiring sterling at the official rate—the only rate at which sterling can be obtained in England.

This caused a break in the price of free sterling in the New York market, which is sterling held outside England. British policy has been to dry it up, since exports paid for with free sterling do not increase dollar balances that can be used for war purchases. The break in free sterling and dependent British currencies made it necessary for the New York Federal Reserve Bank on March 25 to begin quoting two rates for the currencies. The Treasury had to decide which one to use.

Pressed for the basis of the new discussions, Steelman said he could not disclose it but "both sides have been very cooperative in trying to find a formula and Mr. Rosenbaum was exceedingly cooperative."

Steelman appeared optimistic over possibilities of a successful settlement.

SEC Denies Effort to Smear Senator George

Officials of the Securities and Exchange Commission, charged with using "OGPU" methods in an attempt to "smear" Senator George (Democrat), of Georgia, through the SEC investigation of the Georgia Power Co., last night denied such an objective. They said they had given Senator George the same assurance.

The commission, meanwhile, in a public statement, made clear that Wendell L. Willkie, president of the Commonwealth & Southern Corporation, is not involved in the charges pertaining to the company, a subsidiary of Commonwealth & Southern.

F. S. Arkwright, president of the company, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Atlanta, had charged that the inquiry was an attempt to reflect on Georgia's senior Senator, who was overwhelmingly victorious in 1938 against an Administration attempt to "purge" him from the Senate. Arkwright alleged "OGPU" methods were being used.

Commission officials said George had been assured that, in investigating the affairs of the company, the SEC simply was fulfilling its duty as prescribed by law and was not trying to "smear" anybody.

George would not comment. He told questioners to go to the commission for their explanation. It was intimated, however, that he may have something to say later. SEC officials, it was learned, went to George's office to see him. There has been an exchange of letters between the Senator and commission heads.

Arkwright asserted that the main object of the Georgia Power Co. investigation had been "an effort to discover that this company contributed money to Senator George's campaign" in the 1938 purge battle.

The 1935 Utility Holding Company Act makes it a criminal offense for a utility holding company, or any subsidiary, registered with the commission to make political contributions.

The SEC statement exonerating Willkie was issued after the latter had called Chairman Jerome Frank by long-distance telephone and asked that the commission make the situation clear, in view of published reports.

The commission said that, while it was not its policy to comment on pending investigation, it was running down a complaint made several months ago "regarding the Georgia Power Co. in connection with certain prohibitions" in the Holding Company Act.

"The commission has come to no conclusions as to whether or not there are any irregularities," the statement said.

Arkwright asserted the investigation was in retaliation for the re-election of George.

"Latterly," he declared, "they (the investigators) have appeared with subpenas issued by the SEC. The first question asked by the examiner has been 'For whom did you vote for Senator in the last election? For whom did you vote for Governor?' 'Were you given any money to use in the election of either Senator George or the candidate for Governor for whom you voted?'

Company's Books Opened

"Early in January, 1940, representatives of the SEC called at this office, stated to me that the complaint had been renewed that this company had contributed money to political elections and that they wanted to make a reexamination. The books of the company were opened to them and every record and paper that they requested was turned over to them. They have had a force of from three to five accountants and lawyers in this company's office from the first part of January to this date, and they are still here."

Investigators, he declared, refused to inquire into statements that the company had made large expenditures on behalf of Lawrence Camp, Atlanta district attorney, George's unsuccessful opponent in the 1938 primary fight.

Arkwright and Willkie denied that the company had contributed to George's campaign. Willkie said the charges had been made by "a disappointed office seeker."

Dies Will Probe Communism Aims In U. S. Schools

By the Associated Press

Chairman Dies (Democrat), of Texas, said yesterday that his House Committee on Un-Americanism planned hearings within the next several months "on communism in universities and schools."

The Texan asserted that he had reports, "but I don't know whether they are true," that communism is "very strong" at the University of North Carolina. At Charlotte, N. C., David Clark, a publisher of textile industrial journals, had urged such an investigation.

One committee investigator, Dies added, is now studying textbooks.

The Civil Liberties Union yesterday attacked the Voorhis bill which would require registration of all foreign-affiliated organizations. It said the measure was "wholly unnecessary, carelessly drafted and dangerous to American principles."

House Debates Bill for Review Of Bureau Rulings

Charges of danger to the American system or government if bureaucratic agencies are not curbed were countered with charges of efforts to "hamstring the Government" in House debate yesterday.

Argument was over the Logan-Walter bill to provide court review of rules and regulations of more than 100 governmental agencies.

Representative Springer (Republican), of Indiana, told the House: "If the present growth of bureaucracy is permitted to continue without restraint, it will lead to the loss of our Constitutional rights and liberties."

Representative Rankin (Democrat), of Mississippi, charged the bill was framed chiefly to "hamstring" the Securities and Exchange Commission in enforcement of the Public Utilities Holding Company Act.

Restore Half Budget Cut, Senate Asked

Commissioners Seek $633,859 Put Back; Tax Returns Indicate Drop in Revenue

Despite the threat of a reduced revenue, the District Commissioners yesterday asked the Senate subcommittee on District appropriations to restore $633,859 to the 1941 District supply bill.

The increases constitute about half of the budget estimates stricken from the bill by the House subcommittee on District appropriations.

The restorations were asked in response to a request by Senator Overton (Democrat), of Louisiana, that the Commissioners examine the House bill and recommend whatever changes they considerable advisable.

Following a conference with Auditor Daniel J. Donovan, Senator Overton announced that hearings on the District supply bill will start Monday.

Income Returns Up

Incomplete District income tax tabulations last night indicated that individual returns would top an estimated $1,000,000 but that corporation levies would fall below the expected $2,200,000 revenue.

Last night's figures showed that approximately 2,200 corporations here had filed returns amounting to $1,125,000. Individual returns thus far, from 33,000 individuals, total about $731,000.

Tax Assessor Edward A. Dent revealed that it would be Saturday before his staff of 20 could go through eight stacks of mail that arrived before the deadline Monday midnight. "I sent the staff home at 9:30 p. m.," said Dent last night. "The force had all worked until 12:30 a. m. the night before and everybody was worn out."

Dent said that most of yesterday was spent in going through the mail and sorting out the corporations returns, which he expects to complete today.

New Taxes Unlikely.

Although the Nichols sales-income tax bill is scheduled to be called up in the House next Monday, there appears little likelihood that any revenue bill will be passed by Congress this session.

The District appropriations bill, as passed by the House, would create an anticipated deficit of $800,000 as JJuly 1, 1941, due to the split income tax payments. This would be greater if income tax returns fall short of the estimated $3,200,000 this year.

Because the $633,859 additions asked by the Commissioners would be charged against the highway and the water funds as well as the revenue fund, the increase in the general deficit actually would be only $336,489. Both the highway and water funds have surpluses.

Adoption of the recommended restorations would raise the total of the bill to approximately $49,000,000 and would increase the deficit to an estimated $1,136,489. Increases aggregating $297,370 are chargeable to the highway and water funds.

No Decision on Realty Tax

District officials have not determined whether it would be necessary to boost the real estate and personal property tax rate above the present $1.75 rate if Congress failed to enact a new revenue law. The decision might depend upon the size of the appropriations bill and the deficit.

Under a provision of the income tax split payment law, passed earlier this year, the Commissioners may obtain advances from the Treasury if necessary, in anticipation of October income tax collections. This borrowing authority ends, however, at the end of the next fiscal year.

First Lady Formally Opens $200,000 Wing At Washington Home for Incurables

Watching Mrs. Roosevelt cut the silken ribbon at ceremonies opening the Hartmann Memorial Wing at the Washington Home for Incurables yesterday were (left to right) Miss Bessie J. Kibbey and Mrs. Ridgely Hunt, both life members; James E. Arnold (wheel chair patient); Rev. F. Bland Tucker, who gave the benediction; Mrs. E. R. Finkenstaedt, president of the board of directors, and the Rev. Dr. Albert J. McCartney, who spoke at the rites

Using gold-plated scissors, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt snipped a red silk ribbon yesterday, to formally open a $200,000 wing at the Washington Home for Incurables, which was erected and equipped under a bequest by Mrs. Abram Lisner.

The First Lady, in a brief address preceding the ceremony, praised the work of the 51-year-old institution, pointing out that "no case is so appealing as that of the persons afflicted with an incurable disease."

The addition will be known as the Hartmann Memorial Wing, in honor of Wilhelmina C. Hartmann, who was Mrs. Lisner's sister. Three of its floors will be devoted to rooms for 40 patients, the remainder to a nursing school, dormitory, laboratory and physiotherapy department.

Mrs. E. R. Finkenstaedt, president oft he home's board of directors, paid tribute to the memories of Mrs. Lisner and Mrs. Archibald Hopkins, whose interest in the institution speeded its development. Among those present at the exervises was Mrs. Henry Patterson, of New York, a daughter of Mrs. Hopkins.

With the number of Americans reaching old age increasing rapidly, such institutions as the Home for Incurables, where special attention is given elderly persons suffering from afflictions that come with the years, must be fostered more than ever, said Dr. Warfield T. Longcope, professor of medicine at Johns Hopkins University.

Other speakers were the Rev. Dr. Albert J. McCartney, pastor of Covenant-First Presbyterian Church, who also pronounced the invocation, and Dr. Linn Cooper, medical director of the home. The benediction was given by the Rev. F. Bland Tucker, rector of St. John's Church, Georgetown.

Optimists Hear 'Mighty Casey' Tell of Strike Out

Washington lost a ball game yesterday, but it was nothing compared to that day back in 1887 when the "Mighty Casey" struck out at Mudville, the Washington Optimist Club learned at its luncheon meeting.

On hand to tell about the immortal Mudville game was the "Mighty Casey" himself—Daniel Maurice Casey, now 78.

After the famous "Casey at the Bat" was recited by Percy Oliver, club member, the "man who struck out" was called upon to explain how it happened.

But the reason for that last strike remained Casey's secret. "If I hadn't struck out, I wouldn't be a guest here today," he said.

Before adjourning to the ball park, the Optimists discussed briefly their forthcoming district convention at Roanoke, Va., April 27.

Born in Durham, N. C., October 21, 1895, Capt. Snow attended Trinity College (now Duke University), where he was graduated with an A. B. degree in June, 1918. He entered the United States Military Academy the same month and graduated there on November 1, 1918. He was trained at the Engineer School at Fort Belvoir, Va.

Gov. O'Conor, Sasscer Urge Bruce Election

Giant Political Rally Is Staged in Armory At Hyattsville

Gov. O'Conor and Representative Sasscer last night urged support of Howard Bruce for the Maryland Democratic Senatorial nomination at a giant political rally in the National Guard Armory at Hyattsville.

Earlier in the day Sasscer and Bruce spoke at a meeting in the new court room at Upper Marlboro. Both meetings were held under auspices of the Prince Georges Democratic organization which is backing Bruce for Senator and Sasscer for renomination.

A steady downpour failed to upset a scheduled torch parade which began at the Bladensburg Peace Cross and wound through Mount Rainier to Hyattsville preceding the rally. Sixty-seven private automobiles, floats and fire trucks participated.

Gov. O'Conor pointed to Bruce's long service to the Democratic Party without compensation as chairman of various legislative advisory committees. Bruce is seeking the nomination for the Senate seat of George L. Radcliffe. The primary election will be May 6.

Other speakers told of Bruce's hard-won success, tracing his career from the age of 20 when he started working at $12.50 a week. He is now a multimillionaire.

Bruce affirmed his sympathy with labor and defended himself against attacks by Senator Radcliffe.

"I have spent $100,000,000 in pay rolls in the Baltimore area," Bruce declared, "and I have never had enough strikes to fill your eye. I think I have been a miniature Wagner Labor Act myself."

Sasscer who is opposed in the primary by Dr. John W. Klemm, perennial candidate of Mount Rainier, declared he hoped to get an amendment through the House exempting Government employes insofar as town elections are concerned from provisions of the Hatch Act. He said he opposed the act in its entirety, describing it as "contrary to the principles on which this Nation was founded."

Poor Pegasus, Hunt-Battered, To Be Returned

Stable's Trademark Puts His Brand On Pilfering Student

Pegasus, winged steed of Mrs. Peggy Stewart, did not fly from his perch atop the riding academy at 6801 Western avenue northwest, last week. He was carried away. And last night he was carried back—by a University of Maryland student.

Detective Sergt. Eugene Lambert and Precinct Detective George Saunders, Eighth Precinct, solved the mystery of the disappearing trade mark with a little sleuthing. They tracked Pegasus to a fraternity house at College Park over a trail which led through Georgetown Hospital.

Mrs. Stewart, proprietor of the stable which bears the name of the mythical flying horse, reported the theft last Wednesday. It was removed, she said, from its place on the roof, where it served as a weathervane.

Blood spots were noticed around the stable. These gave Lambert and Saunders their lead. The detectives checked hospitals and found that a youth had been treated at Georgetown Hospital for lacerations of his head, which required 14 stitches. They inquired further and discovered the youth was a student at Maryland.

Search of fraternity houses yesterday disclosed the battered body of Pegasus. His head, tail and one leg were broken.

Last night Mrs. Stewart received a telephone call from a youth who admitted taking the emblem during a scavenger hunt, who said that he was sorry, and who promised he would replace it.

He explained that the lacerations to his head came when he slipped from the roof, causing the horse to fall on him.

Mrs. Stewart said she did not intend to prosecute.

Liquor Store Curb Asked By Petworth

Citizens Propose 4-Point Control Plan; School Building Program Approved

A four-point legislative program to halt the establishing of liquor stores in the Petworth area last night was urged unanimously by the citizens association of that section.

The unit approved the measures after Ernest F. Henry, author of the resolution, declared them imperative to forestall Petworth's "being flooded with liquor." He made reference to the case of a liquor store proprietor, recently denied a license, who has appealed to the Alcohol Beverage Control Board.

The four legislative proposals urged are:

Provision or "some comprehensive machinery" to determine sentiment of affected neighborhoods in A. B. C. Board licensing. Zoning of limited areas according to the wishes of property owners and residents through petition or hearing.

Allowing complainants as well as license applicants the right to appeal to the Commissioners from adverse decisions.

Staggering license application periods for various sections of the city to eliminate "present confusion" in January of each year, and promote efficiency.

In other action, members approved the five-year school building program, for which the Commissioners have long sought the authorization of Congress.

Installation of traffic lights at Georgia avenue intersections adjacent to the community's three schools was urged.

Georgia Ave. Businessmen

Tightening up of the District income tax to close up the loopholes which exempt "certain groups" of residents, was urged last night by the Georgia Avenue Business Men's Association.

A House bill to increase the District gasoline tax by 1 cent was opposed on the ground that the $1,000,000 estimated receipts would be used for the general funds instead of street and highway projects.

A resolution thanked the President for naming a District president as Commissioner, and another congratulating Commissioner J. Russell Young on his appointment, pledged cooperation of the association.

Friends Find Body Of Man Hanging By Pajama Cord

A 43-year-old man was found hanging by a pajama cord in his bedroom last night by two friends who forced their way into his apartment.

The dead man is Herbert Goebel, of 3110 Wisconsin avenue northwest, National Rifle Association manager. His body was discovered hanging from the bedroom door by Isaac Fisher, of the same address, and Dr. George Dewey, of 1801 I street northwest.

Fisher, according ot police, went to visit Goebel about 6:30 p. m. When his knocking failed to get a response he called Dr. Dewey and together they broke into the apartment. Police were informed that Goebel had been ill and despondent. Goebel's wife, Gustine, lives in New Haven, Conn.

Appeal Court Urged for U. S. Employes

5 Congressmen Favor Proposal; Civil Service Sees 'Heavy Cost'

By Edward Ryan
Post Staff Writer

Five Congressmen yesterday urged establishment of appeals machinery for Government employes in a hearing before the House Civil Service Committee.

While differing on what the machinery should be, they agreed that some final court is needed to review rulings of Government administrators on employe grievances.

In opposition to the appeals plan, the committee members had a report from the Civil Service Commission, saying that it would mean "creating another agency with functions relating to personnel matters," and "heavy cost for the taxpayers."

Support Proposal

Testifying in support of the proposed appeals system were Representatives Randolph (Democrat), of West Virginia; Flannery (Democrat), of Pennsylvania; Pearson (Democrat), of Tennessee; Rogers (Republican), of Massachusetts; and Barry (Democrat), of New York, each a sponsor of one of the 11 bills before the committee.

Randolph told the committee a referee, to be chosen by employe representatives and the Civil Service Commission, would permit appeals to be heard whenever a dispute arose. A referee, he said, could give speedy and fair hearings.

Flannery said that now the Government agencies act as "complainant, investigator, judge and jury" in employe disputes, and he described the practice as "ridiculous from the point of view of a democratic system."

He said the expense of an appeals system would not be prohibitory, and added "when justice becomes too expensive, there's something wrong with democracy."

Greater "Absolutism"

Pearson said a referee might have greater "absolutism" than the agencies now have, and declared that his plan would permit hearings anywhere in the country without "a dollar expense." His measure would include as members of an appeals board a representative of the Civil Service Commission, an employe representative and one member chosen by the first two.

Also supporting an appeals system were John J. Burnett, chairman of the National Legislative Council of Federal Employes, and William Horner, legislative representative of the National Federation of Postoffice Clerks.

Representative Ramspeck (Democrat), of Georgia, committee chairman, said the hearings will continue at 10 a. m. today.

CCC boys tightened their belts during January, a report from Director McEntee hinted yesterday. That month their meals cost an average of 12.9 cents each, the month before they cost 13.24 cents. Total expenses of January's meal ticket was $3,158,326.51.

Jobs: The Civil Service Commission has announced competitive exams for the following jobs: Associate metallurgist (recovery) and (physical), $3,200; assistant metallurgist, $2,600; coppersmith, Norfolk Navy Yard, $7.87 to $8.83 a day; student nurses, St. Elizabeths Hospital, three-year training at $288 a year.

Indian songs for any occasion have been sent oyer to the Archives from the Smithsonian Institution's bureau of American ethnology, it was announced yesterday. In the collection of valuable old recordings are the following numbers: "Thanks for Food," "Song When a Pony Is Given Away," "Victory Song," "Feasting the Scalps" and "Green Corn Dance Song."

3,026 'Jalopies' Weeded Out By District Auto Inspectors

161,255 Cars Approved of 164,281 Inspected in First Year, Rest Rejected; New Check-up of Vehicles Under Way

More than 3,000 unsafe "jalopies" have been removed from Washington streets in the last year under the compulsory automobile inspection law, Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer announced last night.

As the 1940 inspection got underway at the two redecorated test stations, Van Duzer said 164,281 cars were examined last year and of these 161,255 were approved. The remaining 3,026 failed to return after being rejected, he said, and were apparently junked.

"There are no more $25 cars being sold or used in the District," Van Duzer declared. "We have succeeded in weeding out the unsafe vehicles—and we're going to see to it that they stay weeded out."

Under the direction of J. Earl Steinhauer, supervising inspector of the Traffic Department, the new inspection was started Monday. At the rate of 800 a day and according to tag numbers all registered vehicles again will be tested this year. The current inspection will continue through February 15, 1941.

Motorists who received green stickers in the District's initial inspection must reappear at one of the test stations when notified, Steinbauer said.

Approximately 60 per cent of the cars examined during the last inspection period were rejected on first appearance, he reported. Headlights gave the greatest trouble, 38 per cent of the cars being turned down because of defects. Brakes came next with 29 per cent being rejected, and steering ran third with a 22 per cent rejection.

This year the District adopted a new type of windshield sticker designed by Steinhauer. It gives a maximum vision, curved to fit the lower right corner of the front glass. It is the only one of its type in the country.

Alumni Hear Stuhldreher At Luncheon

Wisconsin Graduates Present Include Senator LaFollette

Let not the college athlete take too seriously the axiom, "it's not whether you win or lose, but how you play the game," one of the "Four Horsemen" told a Washington audience yesterday.

Playing a good, clean contest is fine, of course, said Harry Stuhldreher, who quarterbacked Notre Dame's famous backfield of 15 years ago, but it should not be permitted to dilute the will to win.

Stuhldreher, now football coach and athletic director at the University of Wisconsin, was one of a group of notables who addressed a special luncheon of the institution's alumni association, Washington chapter, at the Y. W. C. A.

Other speakers were C. A. Dykstra, president of the University of Wisconsin; Senators Wiley and La Follette, of the same State, and Joseph E. Davies, special assistant to the Secretary of State.

Dykstra voiced the conviction that the function of a university—to teach with freedom—is too vital for people to tolerate any attempt to throttle it, adding that while some countries may do so, the great institutions of learning can and will survive such tampering.

George E. Worthington, president of the University of Wisconsin Alumni Association of Washington, presided.

Texas Parley to Hear Two Washingtonians

Two Washingtonians will be among the principal speakers at the twenty-second annual meeting of the American Association of Collegiate Schools of Business, to be held at the University of Texas, in Austin, from April 18 to 20.

Dr. Wilfred L. White, administration chief of the commercial information service, United States Department of Commerce, will speak on "Commercial Information Service," and Clarence S. March, vice president of the American Council on Education, will discuss "The Survey of Schools of Business."

Baltimore Student, 14, Found Dead in River

Baltimore, April 16 (AP).—The body of Thomas Drescher, 14-year-old parochial student, missing for almost a month, was found in Back River, near the city disposal plant today.

Dr. W. P. E. Wyse, Baltimore County medical officer, said the youth died from a fracture of the skull, "from three to four weeks" ago.

Station PDS Presents Riverdale Duet

The PDS program this morning over Station WMAL presents as its guest artists Thelma Donaldson and Marion Smith, both of Riverdale, Md. The two young ladies are members of the Holy Redeemer Church. Miss Donaldson has had experience in operettas at the University of Maryland and with the Rubinstein Club, and they both are members of the B Sharp Chorus in Riverdale.

"Station PDS Presents," broadcast by Lee Everett from the Peoples Drug Stores Studio, Eleventh and G streets northwest, is presented each weekday morning from 7:30 to 8:30 over Station WMAL by Peoples Drug Stores in cooperation with The Washington Post. Anyone over 18 years old may participate in the audition at 7:30 p. m. Tuesdays at the N. B. C. Studios. Performers are paid $5 for their appearance on this program.

Banquet Concludes One-Act Play Tourney

District thespians climaxed their amateur drama tourney for 1940 last night with a banquet at the Young Women's Christian Association, Seventeenth and K streets northwest. Miss Sibyl Baker, director of community centers and playgrounds and chairman of the 1940 one-act play tournament, introduced Lewis R. Barrett, coordinator of recreation in the District, and Mrs. Barrett.

MAYFLOWER'S D. A. R. NIGHTINGALE. When Linda Carroll, singing star of the Mayflower Lounge, decides to follow her mother's example and join the D. A. R., she'll be entitled to a full five lines of Revolutionary hero descent. Among Linda's ancestors are Arthur Middleton, signer of the Declaration of Independence; Col. Calvin Spencer, Andrew Robeson, Revolutionary committeeman from New Jersey; Capt. Peter Robeson, Daniel Sparks, a hero who paid for his convictions on the gallows, and Private John Hayes. Linda, who's a Carolinian, also rates invitations to those most exclusive parties in the country, the balls of the St. Cecelia Society of Charleston, S. C.

THREE DANCE TEAMS, in effect, are prancing in the Shoreham Blue Room this week. There are Edward and Argela in ballroom twirls. Dick Nash and Janet Evans in fitterbugging with a Western accent and Lulabelle and Maurice, the Charlie MacCarthy dancers sponsored by Grace Drysdale. Thrilling tenor solos by young Wilson Lang.

MAESTROS' CONVENTION. That's what it'll look like at Wardman tonight. The Washington Swing Club is tossing a big dance with two orchestra (plenty of righteous swing!) in the Wardman ballroom. Glenn Miller will be broadcasting in Wardman's Little Theater. Les Brown and his 14 rhythm men will be making the Metronome Room resound. Visiting all around the place in the shank of the evening will be Harry James and his band from the Capitol Theater and Paul Kain and his Glen Echo crew.

TROIKA'S NEW DOINGS. Mara, blond and bijou ballerina, is going to lead Troika's conga line with a pair of little drums. Also she's going to do a conga solo barefooted. Vanya and Lola are rehearsing a colorful new dance. All of these treats are due this week.

"FETE DU POISSON" will be celebrated at Normandy Farms tomorrow eve. This is the French version of a "Three Li'l Fishies" party. The Normandy Farms pool will be stocked with fat fishes fro the occasion and every guest will be given a fishing pole. From there on it's every fish for himself. There will be prizes for the biggest fish caught and the tallest fish story. Songs by Marjorie Hendricks. Picturesque square dances by the Gene Gowing group, whom you'll find at Normandy Farms every Thursday hereafter.

ECHO WELCOMES KAIN. Though the weather man didn't cooperate with the Glen Echo opening, we're told that the Spanish Ballroom was so crowded with dancers that many ickies had to go up to the balconies to find stepping space. Such is the pulling power of Paul Kain's music. But come cold or hot weather, the Spanish ballroom is all right because it can be enclosed or opened to the breezes at will.

ZE CAN-CAN CHAMPIONS. Lotus' new dancing Gibsons are not Parisian, but they do the most brilliant can-can you'll find outside of Montmartre. Mlle. Gibson is a picture in black chiffon with frilly white lace petticoats and a red ostrich chapeau. Many credits also to the new Guy Martin beauty line, singer Buddy Shaner and jokester Hal Reed (he actually has a new mother-in-law gag), who does telling impressions of famed stage figures, ranging from Chevalier to Jolson.

ORIENTAL FEAST of the season was served at the prevue opening of the new Oriental restaurant at Wisconsin avenue and R streets. Guests dined on 12 courses that included shark fin soup, chicken stuffed with birds' nests, stuffed mushrooms and an apricot kernel dessert. The Chinese wine was 80 years old, stronger than Napoleon brandy.

MIDNIGHT JOTTINGS. Some of the old Pirates' Den pirates enlisted under Brooke Johns' command when he transformed the Den into the Flag Ship. It did our heart good to see the friendly mug of Pickle Puss still aboard . . . Peggy Wood, cunning new King Cole canary, received an A.B. at the University of North Carolina with the idea of teaching school. But her professor refused to give her a diploma unless she promised she wouldn't try to teach . . . Mayfair's Lyle Smith recently played in Columbus, Ohio at a hotel right across the street where the Maria Karson Trio (ex-Mayfair) is now making melody . . . Manager Huey Liang of the Casino Royal says that 60 per cent of his patrons order Chinese food, the other 40 per cent sticking to American dishes . . . Hi Hat's Angie Rodante has an awful mad on about the weather. She wants to go bicycling. Burt's new Trans-Lux is going like a house afire. And no wonder. It has everything—luring music, interesting food and atmosphere plus . . . By the time the operating engineers' convention leaves the Hamilton Hotel this week the Rainbow Room orchestra figure that they will have played all the Irish tunes ever written 100 times apiece . . . Eileen George and Matt Windsor are now singing duets in the Anchor Room. Don't miss their "Woodpecker Song" . . . Robin Hood's canary, Lynn Allison, looks like a scarlet cardinal nowadays. She's decked out with a red hat, pocketbook and gloves . . . Madrillon's Steve has taken to making miniature tropical gardens with tiny houses, roads, plants and human figures.

MELODY AS YOU LIKE IT. That flippant ditty, "Why Did Minnehaha?" being aired by Cafe Caprice's new Freshmen . . . The up-and-up Argentinian rhythms of Lido's new Congo Room . . . The Angelo di Bella's muchachos in syrup that Lounge Riviera's Jimmy Nichols pours into "My Honey's Loving Arms" . . . The strictly American rumba, "Let There Be Love," as played beguilingly by Burrus William's orchestra in La Salle Versailles . . . The new diller, "Boogit," that's being given a handsome whirl by Bill Downer's Nightingale band.

FINE VICTUALS, AND PLENTY OF 'EM. It's "Piggy Party" again tonight at River Bend. For a dollar you can eat enough to last you for a week . . . The luncheons at the Harrington Tavern are not only delish but always pleasantly varied . . . Dick's Grill specializes both in seafood and Spanish dishes . . . You'll get real homemade apple pie with your dinner at Maynard's.

Nelson B. Bell About the Showshops

That 'Strange Cargo' Is One of Strong Meat!

Convict Story Grim Drama of Regeneration; Local Showmen Attend Dallas Convention; This, That and the Other About the Theater

WHEN "STRANGE CARGO" follows "Rebecca" on the screen at Loew's Palace Theater, Washington picturegoers will view a vivid melodrama of human depravity and viciousness that gradually evolves into a strangely gripping story of regeneration.

Previewed yesterday afternoon, "Strange Cargo," during its early sequences, revealed the depths of degradation to which the prisoners in a penal colony in the Guianas can sink. Based on Richard Sale's novel of "Not Too Narrow, Not Too Deep"—which has something to do with the possibility of escape from the graves living men dig for themselves by their transgressions—the introductory passages of the picture deal with a prison break, murder, homicidal enmities, double-crossings, the predicament of a crimson young woman from the dance halls and the usual tussle of them all with the jungle. It is strong meat, running red with blood. Yet threading the narrative, through the presence of a mystic, who also happens to be one of the escaped prisoners, there is a redeeming element of Christ-like compassion and understanding akin to that expressed by The Stranger in Jerome K. Jerome's "Passing of the Third Floor Back" or the organ-grinder in Otis Skinner's memorable production of "Mister Antonio."

BELL

The co-stellar roles are played to the hilt by Clark Gable, as the roughest and toughest convict in the colony, and Joan Crawford, in the unflattering role of the girl whose presence is no longer wanted on the island. The all-male supporting cast is one of perfect selection and Frank Borzage's direction is all on the side of tense and, at times, terrifying realism.

No gentle or gossamer spring idyll, "Strange Cargo" still will stick in memory as a powerful and moving drama of the grimmer things of life's under side.

Easing the tension on the nerves of yesterday's preview audience, Robert Benchley's short-reel disclosure of the intricacies of "Home Movies" also was shown. This subject should be seen by everyone who wishes to learn how not to go about the matter of making his own motion picture entertainment. It ends in a blaze of something a little this side of glory—especially for Mr. Benchley!

In contemplating the numerous achievements of David O. Selznick in this space yesterday, something should have been said about the next enterprise he has in mind. It is the production of "Joan of Arc," which is plotted as another $4,000,000 production to come somewhere near "Gone With the Wind"—which also cost that amount—in scope and impressiveness. Mr. Selznick seems to have $4,000,000 in his jeans any time he feels the need of that sum.

So when Kelcey Allen, of Broadway's critical "Death Watch," noted the absence of a couple of long-standing by-lines from a few recent reviews of plays at the National in a couple of our local journals, he wrote to Manager Eddie Plohn to inquire what had become of their owners. Never having met Mr. Allen, we never suspected that he even knew we were down here. Nice of him to be so interested.

Comings and Goings—Mostly Goings

Sidney B. Lust, chief Barker of the Washington Variety Club; Abe Lichtman, past chief barker, and that high-strung Southern gentleman, Sam Galanty, treasurer of the club since its foundation, left yesterday afternoon to represent Washington's Tent No. 11 at the annual convention of the Variety Clubs of America in Dallas, Tex., on April 18, 19 and 20—but not until after the ball game! Carter Barron, Eastern division manager of Loew's, Inc., left Sunday for three weeks of Florida sunning with his small son, "Cracker." Expected back about May 5.

Breaking their jump from the West Coast to New York, Laurence Olivier, the Max de Winter in "Rebecca," now at the Palace, and Vivien Leigh, the Scarlett O'Hara of "Gone With the Wind," will present their "Romeo and Juliet" in the Auditorium Theater in Chicago, where great interest is being shown in the event. At any rate, they will not be cramped for space. The auditorium seats 4,800 and has a stage about the size of Potomac Park!

A new issue of "The March of Time" soon will be broken out on the screen at R. K. O.-Keith's, dealing with the problems of American youth, coming up into the fight for a place in the general scheme of things in these United States. Since there are approximately 21,000,000 of these youngsters and a proportionate number of problems, it ought to make a reel worth thinking about.

Signs-of-the-Times Note

It probably has nothing to do with the Hatch bill, but there is a sign on an upper Fourteenth street food shop that says, "Eggs—Self Service!"

Call for He-Men Elicits Interesting And Numerous Replies

By Frederick C. Othman

United Press Hollywood Correspondent

Hollywood, April 16.—Cecil B. DeMille, who said in these precincts a week ago that what Hollywood needs is some actors with hair on their chests, today surveyed a small mountain of letters offering him hemen, wholesale.

Casting directors at Paramount were so impressed by photographs accompanying several of the letters, that the writers will be offered screen tests. What surprised us was the fact that so many readers of these dispatches wanted to be movie actors.

Mail came from all ends of the Nation. Some was funny, some anonymous, some scurrilous, and some genuinely sincere. Consider this letter, from a 23-year-old in Hollywood:

Waiting to Be Found

"Begging your pardon, sir, I must voice a word of protest. I am not a walking collar ad, but I have hair on my chest, can act if given a chance, and am waiting to be found."

The writer listed his theatrical experience, enclosed a photograph of himself as a bit player in "Nurse Edith Cavell," and added: "My head is bloody, but unbowed."

He doesn't know it yet, but as soon as De Mille can take time off from directing the red coats in "North West Mounted Police," he will give the bloody-headed one a chance to prove his ability as a leading man.

Other letters caused other reactions on the part of the studio chieftains, who now have Casting Director Arthur Jacobson on a Nation-wide tour, hunting huskies like Cooper, Gable, Tracy, and O'Brien, for movie acting jobs.

One from Washington

A Kilgore, Tex., citizen, dropped a note about the qualifications of his five sons, a Watsonville, Calif., car loader said he was no actor, but was willing to learn, while a Washingtonian wrote:

"I am a young man, 33. Many people think me only 26, or no more than 28. Many people, possibly hundreds if not thousands, have remarked that I look enough like Randolph Scott that I could pass for him, though I have never attempted to do so. I have little or no hair on my chest, but I do believe we could grow some should the necessity arise."

Urged a housewife in Port Allegheny, Pa.:

"See my husband. He is a regular bear at all times. Every once in a while he knocks the living daylights out of me. Only last Sunday he grabbed his dish of stew and threw it all over the floor, rug and all."

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

New York, April 16.

HERBERT HOOVER: Senator Vandenberg, seeing Roosevelt seated with so many Democratic chieftains at his final Gridiron Dinner, referred to this scene as "The Last Supper" .... Vandenberg also confided he is positive that the President won't seek a third term. As evidence, he pointed to the fact that Roosevelt had asked Congress for a $2,500 appropriation for a White House portrait of Hoover. "And so you can bet," Vandenberg stated, "that Roosevelt will leave the White House, rather than see Hoover's face for the next four years."

MARLENE DIETRICH: U. F. A., the German film company which once employed you, has a representative now in N. Y., offering to sell the re-make rights to all its famous movies, because Germany needs this foreign exchange. Negotiations are now proceeding with United Artists . . . Ethel Barrymore: Your daughter, Ethel Barrymore Colt, will open a singing engagement at Mon Paris next week . . . Cordell Hull: The British announced that Hitler's moves in Scandinavia were anticipated. But when, last Monday, Lord Lothian was shown the headlines reporting the invasion of Norway and Denmark, the British Ambassador told his guests: "Bah. That's just newspaper talk."

ROBERT E. SHERWOOD: John Garfield is very much interested in your movement to inaugurate a National theater. When he was in Washington recently, he spoke to Senators Pepper, Wagner and Barkley—who assured him that hope for the establishment of a National theater rested only with Garner. The three Senators finally arranged a luncheon date with the Vice President . . . Between courses, Garfield broached the subject, and mentioned a National theater. Garner remained silent, and so the actor began again, and asked: "Haven't you heard about a National theater? . . . "National theater?" replied the Vice President. "Never heard of it."

Brooklyn Bar Association: John L. Simmons, veteran clerk in Kings County's Special Term, Part 1, wrote a musical comedy which has been acquired by M-G-M. This is Simmons' first writing attempt. Jerome Kern will write the music for it . . . Frances Perkins: Among the 42 slogans adopted by the United May Day committee for its forthcoming demonstration, not one slogan will begin with the words "Down With." . . . Fifty-Second Street Association: One of the owners of a swing joint on Fifty-Second street had his head cracked open by an electrician who claimed that his salary was unpaid . . . Earl Carroll: Your Atlantic City pageant will have male competition. A "Mister America" beauty contest will be held at Madison Square Garden on May 25.

JIMMY DURANTE: Last year a young theatrical agent became involved in an unforutnate incident. He was prosecuted by the United States Attorney's office here, was convicted—and now is serving his prison sentence . . . The few actors whom he represented immediately voided their contracts—all except one . . . Jackie Gleason, of the 18 Club, who will appear in your new show, "Keep Off The Grass," still sends the agent's fee of 10 per cent to the imprisoned man.

GEORGE ABBOTT: La Conga's Desi Arnez, who is appearing in "Too Many Girls," was signed by RKO to appear in your movie version of the show. His film contract contains a clause which forbids his marriage until the expiration of the 5-year term of the contract. It now appears that Arnez will be married even before the movies goes into production . . . Deanna Durbin: Your next movie, "Spring Parade," will be a story of Vienna, before and after Anschluss . . . Leon & Eddie: Alicia Quigley, now dancing in the line at your cafe, is the wife of Lee Dixon, the dancer of "Higher and Higher." This is her first pro engagement . . . Vivien Leigh: Margie Hart, the strip-teaser, has changed her theater billing—to "Scarlett O'Hart."

PAUL V. McNUTT: When Senator Burton K. Wheeler lectured in Akron, recently, he submitted to off-the-record questioning by newspapermen, concerning the Presidential candidates . . . Wheeler told them frankly what he thought of you and every other candidate now in the field. When he departed, the reporters tabulated the list of candidates mentiond. Wheeler had rated every one of them unsuited for the Prsidenecy, leaving the only candidate he didn't mention—himself.

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, April 16.—Ever since the Academy dinner, Jack Benny has been crying out loud for an award. Orson Welles has now fixed that up, from Woolworth's got a Kewpie doll which mounted on a 4-inch base, on which is inscribed the following: "This'Orson' awarded to Jack Benny for his distinguished contribution to the lousing up of the Welles reputation." It's a good thing Orson has shaved, or Benny might have pulled out his beard hair by hair.

HOPPER

Gladys Robinson, wife of Eddie, always ready and willing to help an artist, will throw her home open next Wednesday afternoon for a preview of Baron de Meyer's portraits, who paints not with a brush, but with a camera.

Ever since 1914, his photographs of the great ladies of the stage and society have been winning medals. And the ones he's taken recently in Hollywood prove that he hasn't lost one iota of his technique. He tries and succeeds in picturing an age of elegance. And makes you look as you wish you did.

In fact, when mothers see Baron de Meyer's photographs of their darlings, they exclaim, "Oh, how beautiful! But who is it?" For years ladies battled to be photographed by him for Vogue or Harper's Bazaar. His portraits hang in the Metropolitan Museum. After Hollywood stars see them, come Wednesday, the battle for his services will be on in full force.

Charlie Chaplin's greatest ambition is to play "Hamlet." It's Eddie Albert's ambition to play the life of Edgar Allen Poe, and Warners are making tests of him. And I think he'd be swell . . .

One of the funniest scenes took place between Clark Gable and Spencer Tracy in "Boom Town" when they were cavorting about in their long woolen underwear. Yes, women were barred from the set, but I got in for one peek before I fled. I don't know why it is, but to most people, longies are the funniest bit of wearing apparel the human race has ever invented.

At Frances Marion's party for Igor Gorin, the first thing he sang was "I'm So Happy I'm an American." He applied for his cifizenship papers ten days after his arrival in this country. His voice is glorious, and he stopped over between concerts to keep a date with a motion picture producer. So don't be surprised if he gets his chance in 1940.

Hollywood Parade

By Jimmy Fidler

Hollywood, April 16.—The colony's next big romantic blaze will be Joan Crawford and Tony Martin, dating so secretly these past weeks. Gene Autrey's new pool, officially christened this week, will be a bi-weekly rendezvous for North Hollywood Boy Scouts. Eddie "Rochester" Anderson will offer an annual trophy for the Negro who achieves highest honors in aviation.

FIDLER

Is Wallace Beery about to board the marital bark with a well-known newspaper columnist? The Hays censors frowned out the John Garfield bathtub sequence in "Saturday's Children," although John wore panties under the suds. Merle Oberon and George Brent will be screen-teamed as a new romantic smash. Director Lloyd Bacon is in New York to gab with George M. Cohan refilming the latter's life story—without Gawge.

Those Norma Shearer-George Raft elopement rumors were born in an April Fool column in a local sheet, which some folks read too seriously. American Airlines is fighting W. B.'s film title, "Women Are Tough Angels," on grounds that it makes air stewardesses out hard-boiled, which A. A. claims ain't so.

LAUGH OF THE WEEK: Joe Frisco's story about the chap discovered under the race track grandstand late at night by guards. Questioned, he said he was hiding from mobsters. "Today," he explained, "two guys poked a gun in my ribs, put a bridle on my head and a saddle on my back, and said 'Now get out there and run!'" "What'd you do?" demanded the guards. "Do?" screamed the victim. "I done my best. I ran third and paid $4.80!"

PREVIEW NIGHTS: Worth seeing: "Buck Benny Rides Again," in which "Rochester" rides away again with acting honors. Paramount wanted Jack Benny to attend this one in his cowboy suit; instead, he donned dark glasses . . . Most inspiring sight of the "Forty Little Mothers" showing was Gertrude Niesen in that skin-sational gown. Olivia de Havilland and Jimmy Stewart huddled so close in their seats, the couple behind them had to crane 45 degrees outward to see the screen . . . Cleverest preview invitation of the week. MGM's baby announcement notices for "Forty Little Mothers," which had star Eddie Cantor proudly announcing arrival of a SON.

THE OPENING GAME BY THE CLOCK:

2:00 P. M.—Among those out for the opening ball game is Old Sol, who had been threatening all week to ignore it.

2:02—If you want to know where Lefty Grove is and what he is doing at this particular moment, he is stretched out asleep in the Red Sox dressing room with his cap scuffed over his eyes.

Povich

2:08—The folks who spurned those 55-cent bleacher seats two months ago have revised their pride and are now pleading for 'em.

2:15—Joe Cronin and Bucky Harris are posing for the sound photographers. They are shaking hands and wishing each other luck, but not too much.

2:19—Ted Williams of the Red Sox just hit one he wishes he had saved. It cleared the rightfield fence by 40 yards, a nice batting-practice clout.

2:25—Goldman's Band does a fadeout and the Army Band marches in.

2:30—Something important must be going to happen around here. Every third male now coming in the gate is a Secret Service man.

2:33—Up until this point the Army Band was all dignity. But is was just shattered. Nick Altrock has the leader's baton and is taking charge.

2:40—Reports from the Red Sox dressing room now relate that Lefty Grove has lapsed into a deep snore.

2:45—Some guy named Roosevelt just entered the park in a long, black, underslung job that is leaving ugly tracks on the turf.

2:50—That straggling movement toward centerfield by the ball players is laughingly called the parade to the flagpole. Leading the march are Vice President Garner and Clark Griffith, who is wearing his pearl-gray fedora which hasn't missed an opening game since 1886.

2:55—In the Presidential box now are Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Garner and Mr. Farley, all of whom crashed the gate.

2:56—Bucky Harris is giving One-Pitch Roosevelt the ball, preliminary to the start and finish of the President's 1940 baseball campaign.

2:57—Lined up along the first base line are the players of both teams, standing bare-headed and at salute as the National Anthem is played. It may be the National Anthem to most of the guys, but to Alex Carrasquel it's just some music.

2:58—Mr. Roosevelt is poised for the opening pitch of the season. He may be Commander in Chief of the Army and Navy, but right now he's taking orders from the photographers who are barking, "Hold it!"

2:59—There it goes! A low, fast ball that must be recorded as the Presidential pitch. It didn't quite clear the heads of the kneeling photographers and any self-respecting umpire would give a batter his base on four of those pitches.

3:00—The Democrats' campaign slogan for 1940 is now revealed—"An Umpire at Every Base." Four umpires have been assigned to this game.

3:01—Dutch Leonard may be one of the great pitchers of the American League, but Dominic DiMaggio, the Red Sox lead-off man, just ignored his first pitch, and it was called a ball.

3:02—DiMaggio didn't ignore the second pitch. He banged it toward the fence in left center where Gerry Walker finally caught up with it for the first out.

3:05—Right Fielder Buddy Lewis is backing against the rightfield fence for Ted Williams' long drive, and Mrs. Lewis' little boy will have grown 30 feet if he makes the catch.

3:06—That swat by Williams banged the fence for a double and he is now on third because the season just opened for Rick Ferrell. One of Dutch Leonard's knucklers got away from Ferrell for a passed ball and Williams advanced another base.

3:08—Dutch Leonard always was a smart pitcher. He just walked Jimmy Fox.

3:15—The strangest thing just happened. Lefty Grove made a hit.

3:16—The Allies could use the gloom now in the park as a tank-barrier. Rick Ferrell missed Bloodworth's throw to the plate on Grove's hit and Doerr scored from third with a Boston run.

3:34—Jimmy Fox almost drove the ball and George out of sight. Case drifted into the deep centerfield corner to haul down the drive and there will be a few minutes delay until he returns to his normal centerfield position.

4:00—The Red Sox seem to be outhitting the Nats slightly. Here it is the end of the fifth inning and Bostoh has six hits off Leonard. The total of Washington hits off Grove can best be described as a borderless zero.

4:10—It's getting so now that whenever Grove pitches two called balls to a Washington batter it constitutes a Nats' batting rally.

4:18—Leftfielder Ted Williams very nonchalantly makes a one-hand catch of Gerry Walker's long drive.

4:18:01—Is Williams surprised? He just dropped the ball and Walker is galloping toward second.

4:18:08—Toward second, is right. Walker never got there. Williams threw him out with a rifle peg to Second Baseman Bobby Doerr.

4:19—Walker is arguing with the umpire, a very silly thing to do.

4:20—Walker loses the argument, as predicted.

4:22—Up until this point it seems that Lefty Grove was headed for a no-hit game. Travis just barked the shins of Third Baseman Jib Tabor with a scorching single.

4:24—And Jimmy Bloodworth just singled, and Travis is on second with the tying run.

4:25—Any doctor would tell the 31,000 fans to watch their blood pressure at this time.

4:40—Courtesy, Western Union.

4:50—Jimmy Wasdell is at bat with two out in the ninth and is looking very ominously toward the rightfield fence as if to hit one over.

Mose Dodges Fans Seeking Autographs

'Best Opening Game I Ever Pitched,' Says 40-Year-Old; Nats Sad and Silent

Shirley Povich's story of the Nats' opening with Boston at Griffith Stadium yesterday is on page one of the first section.

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

"I didn't know I was on a no-hitter till Jimmy Foxx told me that scratch single off Tabor's knee in the eighth was the first one," Lefty Grove drawled in the dressing room after the game.

"Old Man Mose" was the center of attention. He called for a beer and then asked Doc Greene for a rubdown. The players were pumping his arm and slapping him on the back, and in the meantime Lefty was telling his story of what he called "the best opening game I ever pitched."

"I don't pay attention to those no-hitters: they're bad luck. I just knew I was one ahead, and it can be 14-13, just so that big one's on may side," Lefty repeated. "I was just fogging 'em in there and didn't notice the hits and walks until what's-his-name (Cecil Travis) got that hit off Tabor's knee. Jimmy said something about it being the first hit.

Takes His Time

The 40-year-old Red Sox mound veteran dressed slowly and was the last to leave the dressing room. He waited until the autograph seekers left the dressing room door, and when informed they were still there some half-hour after the final out, he sneaked across the diamond and out the Fifth street entrance. He said he was going to "take it easy until next Tuesday, this old arm has got some games left but it's once a week for me."

In contrast to the joviality of the Red Sox room, where Manager Joe Cronin and the boys were whooping it up as though they just won the world series, the Nats' dressing quarters resembled the morgue.

Sad and Silent

The players filed in, some slammed their gloves and spikes in the locker and others just slumped on the chairs and said nothing. George Case jerked his shirt off and then just stared at the floor, finally breaking the silence with an oath.

Not a word was spoken until most of the boys were under the showers. Then some of the veterans, Buddy Myer, Sam West, Ossie Bluege and Coach Clyde Milan, started a conversation. The infield Jimmys, Wasdell, Bloodworth and Pofahl were a sad looking threesome.

Bloodworth remarked that "not another pitcher in the league could have beaten us today, and someone else came up with "imagine that old bum licking us." Only they didn't call him a bum.

The boys dressed slowly and were generally in a bad mood. They grumbled about the combs, their clothes, towels and took anything else out on the locker boys. Ossie Bluege was the first dressed and first to leave.

Coach Benny Bengough supplied most of the pre-game pep on the bench. He gave all the boys little

14,000 See First Hitless Opening Day Game; Eight Fanned

By the Associated Press

Chicago, April 16.—Bob Feller of Cleveland carved himself a big niche in baseball's Hall of Fame as the American League season opened today, pitching an amazing no-hit game to defeat the Chicago White Sox, 1 to 0, before 14,000 roaring fans.

It was the first opening day no-hit contest in baseball's history—one which ended after 2 hours and 24 minutes of play as Ray Mack, Indian second sacker, made a great knockdown of Taft Wright's grounder and tossed him out at first by a step.

Feller, who struck out eight batsmen and walked five, earned the decision on two timely Indian safeties in the fourth inning. Jeff Heath singled to left with one out and after Ken Keltner had flied out, Heath scored on a triple to right by Feller's catcher and friend, Rollie Hemsley.

Three One-Hitters to Credit

It was Feller's first no-hitter, although he has had three one-hit performances in his brilliant major league career. The 21-year-old star won 24 games last season.

The White Sox, even though they enjoyed fine, six-hit pitching by southpaw Edgar Smith, threatened seriously only once. In the second they had the bases loaded with two out. Feller, using his blazing fast ball, then struck out Rookie Bob Kennedy.

Feller, who pat on his great show before his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Feller, and his sister, Marguerite, retired 15 men in a row from the fourth inning through the eighth.

He got the first two men in the ninth easily, but Luke Appling, White Sox shortstop, gave him and the cheering fans several anxious moments. Appling drove four foul smashes to right before drawing a walk on the tenth pitch.

Then Mack made his fine play on Wright's drive on the ground. The ball was to Mack's left and the infielder, with a fine stab knocked it to the ground, picked up the rolling ball and shot it to First Baseman Hal Trosky for the putout.

President Intrigued by Lady's Hat

By Al Hailey

You can't prove it by us, but it certainly seemed to be one of those tricky things the women are wearing on their heads this spring that made the deepest impression on Nation's No. 1 baseball tosser-outer yesterday at Griffith Stadium.

According to the best play-by-play account available of President Roosevelt's movements at the Nats' opening day game with Boston's Red Sox, the lady with the hat entered the picture about the third inning and was right in there from that point on.

The lady was blonde—very blonde—and the hat was a dandelion-yellow hue. It had the effect of an inverted saucepan and was balanced dangerously over the right eyebrow. Maybe it was the two 18-inch feathers, red and black, which excited the Presidential attention.

Must Have Been 10,000

President Roosevelt had rolled into the stadium, accompanied by Jim Farley. About 10,000 assorted minions of the law and Secret Service men milled around, telling everybody to get out of the way. Somebody said there were 15,000—nobody ever verified this.

Before he had time to catch sight of the lady with the hat, however, there was that job of throwing out the first ball to the waiting players. Hundreds of candid camera fiends snapped at the Presidential party from all angles before he finally stood up and shouted to the news photographers:

"Now?"

The small city of 31,000 in the stands let out a big howl of regret as the Presidential toss bounded off the camera of a Post photographer into the arms of a waiting policeman, J. F. Ashe, of No. 2 precinct, and then settled down to watch the business of the Nats and the Bostons.

Just over the head of the box where President Roosevelt was sitting, taking quick looks from time to time at the adjacent box and the hat, a lad who wanted to be known as "Rosy from Baltimore," was telling the world about Lefty Grove.

"Strike that bum out, Mose. We're for you, Mose. We were for you when you were with the Orioles, we're still for you, Mose. Strike that bum out, Mose."

Even this and the splash of color—blue and red ran a neck and neck

Five Other Late Entries for $50,000 Classic at Pimlico

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, April 16.—Six supplementary entries, headed by Millsdale Stable's Andy K., were named today for the golden jubilee running of the $50,000-added Preakness Stakes at Pimlico May 11.

Named in addition to Andy K. were C. V. Whitney's Carrier Pigeon, C. S. Howard's Mioland, Harold A. Clark's Royal Man, J. W. Y. Martin's Abrasion and Mrs. E. G. Lewis' Jacomar. Abrasion is the only one not also eligible for the Kentucky Derby.

It cost the owners $1,500 each to make their horses supplementary entries for the fiftieth running of the Preakness. The deadline was last midnight, when the final $100 eligibility payment for horses already named also became due.

Missing from the supplementary entries was William Woodward's Fenelon, a Derby candidate that whipped Carrier Pigeon and Victory Morn at Jamaica yesterday.

Nomination of Andy K. Carrier Pigeon, Mioland and Royal Man was expected, but the naming of Abrasion and Jacomar came as something of a surprise.

Millsdale Stable's Ace Romps Home In 'Graw Feature

By Walter Haight

A Staff Correspondent

Havre de Grace, Md., April 16.—A few hours after the Millsdale Stable had paid $1,500 for his supplementary entry in the Preakness, Andy K., prominent as a Kentucky Derby contender, won back $1,000 of that sum by taking the Magnolia Purse, featuring today's program here. Carrying 120 pounds over a heavy track, Andy K. finished a length and a quarter in advance of Royal Man, owned by the Tower Stable, with Hugh Dufford's Cockerel third. Only one other horse, J. P. Jones' Hayam, competed. Royal Man and Cockerel are entered in the Derby but not the Preakness.

Although Andy K. showed that he has overeome the habit of running out at the turns, he failed to impress as Derby timber, particularly in the going that prevailed today. He never was under a grip and when challenged in midstretch, Jockey Ralph Neves was forced to call on the whip to remind Andy K. of the task at hand. That the Millsdale forces used the race as a conditioner was apparent when Andy K. was worked out to a mile in 1:45 2-5 after the finish. His

Chubby Dean Stars, Macks Beat Yanks, 2-1

By the Associated Press

Shibe Park, Philadelphia, Pa., April 16.—Chubby Dean, Connie Mack's compact little lefthander, took full charge of the opening day proceedings here today as the Athletics ripped up the haughty World Champion Yankees in ten innings.

Dean, pitching with a fine steadiness, held the bombers to six widely scattered hits, and then, with the bases loaded and one out in the tenth inning, delivered a long fly to leftfield which sent Frank Hayes scurrying home from third base with the winning run.

A crowd of 20,817 sat through a mild, but cloudy afternoon and cheered on the Mackmen as they fought the Yanks bitterly and held them off. A base on balls, an error, a sacrifice and a fly was promoted into a run by the Yankees in the third inning, but the A's quickly evened it up when Bob Johnson hit a home run off the front of the leftfield pavilion in the fourth.

Man of the Month

Again this season, The Washington Post and Station WJSV conducts The Man of the Month contest to determine the Nats' most valuable players for each month. Following each game, Arch McDonald will distribute points to the Washington players as he deems performances merit. The Post will reward each winner of the Man of the Month contest with a $50 merchandise order.

By Arch McDonald

Station WJSV Baseball Broadcaster

Dutch Leonard lost a ball game yesterday but he hopped into a long lead for man-of-the-month honors among the Nats for April.

To Leonard, eight points, because he pitched a superlative game despite his defeat; because he allowed the Red Sox only seven hits; because the one run he permitted was distinctly unearned, and because he was deprived of a victory only by a sensational pitching performance by Lefty Grove.

LEONARD

To Cecil Travis, three points, because he made the first Washington hit of the game and put the tying run on base in the eighth inning, and because his stop and throw on Cramer's sizzling grounder in the seventh inning was the outstanding fielding performance of the game.

To Jimmy Bloodworth, two points, because he made one of the two Washington hits, moving the tying run to second with his single in the eighth, and because he made two perfect throws to home plate.

Hudson or Haynes To Start for Nats Against Sox Today

The makings of drama may find their way into Griffith Stadium this afternoon when the Nats meet the Red Sox in the second game of their current series.

Unless Manager Bucky Harris undergoes a change of mind the pitcher he will send to the mound will be young Sidney Hudson, fresh from the Class D baseball of the Florida State League.

Harris last night announced that Hudson would pitch with only one reservation. "If it is a cold day, Joe Haynes will get the job. Otherwise, it will be Hudson."

Manager Joe Cronin of the Red Sox was undecided last night concerning his pitcher for today. Emerson Dickman, rookie righthander, is expected to be his choice.

From Hot Dogs to Music—Here's Dope on Nats' Opening Game

By Jack Munhall.

Opening game notes:

Among the 31,000 fans were four presidents. Besides Roosevelt there were Clark Griffith, of the Nats; Will Harridge, of the American League, and Tom Yawkey, of the Red Sox.

The multimillionaire Yawkey, hatless and without top coat, appeared to have difficulty in reaching the playing field prior to the ceremonies. Twice he started through the main gate but withdrew quickly as the crowd pressed forward.

Yesterday's fans were not particularly hungry, as baseball crowds go, according to Uncle Billy Smith, the concessionaire, but there still was enough palate tickling to consume 1,000 dozen hot dogs and rolls; 1,000 cases of soda pop (24 bottles to case) and a dozen 90-pound sacks of peanuts.

Lexington, Ky., April 16 (AP).—Twenty-seven thoroughbred horses were destroyed when fire swept a barn on the Paradise Stable farm near Lexington tonight.

Fourteen of the horses were owned by Joe E. Patterson, former trainer of the Audley Farm, who leases the Paradise Stock Farm. Others were the property of various owners and were boarded on the farm.

It was believed that the fire was started by sparks from a train passing near the farm.

Derringer Checks His Rivals With 6 Hits To Register Victory; Lee Is Defeated

By the Associated Press

Cincinnati, April 16.—The National League champion Cincinnati Reds won their first opening day victory since 1932 today, blasting a pair of home runs for a 2-to-1 decision over Chicago's Cubs before a capacity crowd of 34,342.

All three scores came via the circuit drive route. Augie Galan crashed one into the rightfield bleachers for the Cubs in the sixth to tie the count after First Baseman Frank McCormick had laced a line drive over the centerfield wall in the third. Ival Goodman's long smash to the rightfield bleachers in the eighth settled the issue.

Paul Derringer, whose 25 victories paced the Reds to the 1939 pennant, was in midseason form. "Ooom Paul" allowed six hits, including Galan's homer and ground-rule double and a two-ply shot by Todd, fanned three and did not issue a walk.

"General Bill" Lee almost matched Derringer's performance. The Cub ace allowed eight hits, including two homers and Rookie Mike McCormick's resounding double to center, fanned two, and gave one intentional walk.

Mike McCormick, the Red's freshman left fielder, got a double and single in four trips, pulled a shoestring catch on First Basemann Russell's line drive in the seventh, and threw out Herman at second from deep left in the eighth with a bullet-like throw as the Chicago second sacker attempted to stretch a single.

race for popularity—failed to keep the Presidential eyes from wondering over to the box in which sat the lady with the hat—or a resonable facsimile thereof.

Whether he had sighted this creation before throwing out the first ball and striking the photographer's camera is not known, but he was observed doing away with five quick cigarettes after seeing it.

Second Inning——Pulls cigarette from leather case in inside coat pocket, digs lengthy holder from righthand coat pocket, inserts cigarette, lights same. Uses ordinary penny box of safety matches.

Fourth Inning—Laughs with crowd as fans in leftfield boxes fight for possession of foul ball. Sights blonde lady with hat in adjacent box, looks away, looks back. President seems startled. Shifts in seat, scratches nose, pulls right ear, talks to Farley. Pulls out second cigarette.

Back to Hat Again

Sixth inning—Takes quick look at blonde lady with hat, turns eyes to goings-on on the field. Goes after third cigarette, talks to Secret Service men on left, looks at hat, lights cigarette.

Eighth inning—Leans over, stomps out cigarette, puts away holder in right-hand coat pocket. Scratches nose, pulls at right ear, turns to grin at Farley. Gee Walker argues with the umpire at second base. Turns to discuss Gee Walker's argument with the umpire at second base with Vice President Garner, seated in next box. Sights blonde lady with hat. Lights cigarette. Leans forward on knees as Nats get two men on. Stomps out cigarette.

Ninth inning (first half)—Blonde lady with hat gets up to go. President's gaze fastens on hat, follows it out of view in mob. President puffs out cheeks, blows, talks to Farley, smiles again, scratches nose. Farley scratches neck. Farley scratches neck again. Roosevelt goes after last cigarette.

Ninth inning (second half)—Looks at Farley sadly, indicating it looks bad for the home team. Stomps out cigarette. Gets on edge of seat. Leaves to the heartwarming applause of crowd.

Phillies Get Two Men On as Witek Misses at First, Second

Failing in his effort to tag Joe Marty (35), Philadelphia outfielder, the Giants' Second Baseman Nick Witek (No. 6) tried to catch Chuck Klein at first. He failed again. Marty slides safely into second under Giant Shortstop Billy Jurges, and Witek is looking back at first watching his late throw arrive. Suhr's Homer Beats Giants For Phillies

Kirby Higbe Holds New York to 3 Hits To Win, 3 to 1

By the Associated Press

New York, April 16.—A home run by Gus Suhr with two on in the eighth settled a pitchers' duel between Kirby Higbe and Carl Hubbell today in favor of the Philadelphia Phillies, 3 to 1, over the New York Giants.

Higbe gave a fine three-hit performance. One of them was a triple by Bill Jurges, which Frank Demaree followed with a fly for Giants' consolation run in the fourth.

Hubbell was heading for a shutout and might have had it except that Rookie Mickey Witek at second bobbled a double play chance in the eighth shortly before Suhr came across with his drive onto the rightfield roof.

pep talks, tasked a dozen questions about the President, and helped relieve the tension. He told Bloodworth, "get two for them today, boys, with two men on each time." And Jimmy took Benny's cap off and rubbed his bald head for luck.

Dutch Leonard sat alone before the game, and was apparently as cool as an ice cube. He was the same way in the dressing room after, when he undressed and dressed, just minding his own business, and he and Milan waited for Gerald Walker for a ride downtown. The boys patted him on the back as they walked by before the game, wishing him luck, and again after the game, with consolations.

Walker and Harris carried on a conversation while dressing, the former Chisox gardener insisting he was not out at second base, and went back over the play to prove it. His final word summed it up, however, "the umpire is always right."

Jimmy Bloodworth's undershirt hasn't seen water since the first exhibition game. The little second sacker was going good through the South, and saw no reason to take a chance on his luck changing, true to the baseball player's superstitions.

183,957 Turn Out For First Games; Blame Weather

By the Associated Press

New York, April 16.—Uncertain weather held down attendance at some games, but the total turnout of 183,957 fans in eight cities sounded a cheerful signal for baseball's 1940 major league season today.

Led by Detroit with 49,417, the American League had all the best of the patronage today with a total gate of 114,604. This included the Nation's No. 1 fan, President Roosevelt, at Washington.

The figures:

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, April 16.—That's a first class article by Bill Terry in the current Collier's. Bill often put the bang on night baseball and a lot of us were wondering what he'd have to say about it now that his boss, so to speak, put in the lamps when he wasn't looking.

CONSIDINE

Terry's consistent. He still thinks that night ball is a phony, that it is going to have harmful effects on the game, and that it will shorten the careers of the players. But, realist that he is, Bill concludes that the customer is always right. "If he or she wants night baseball," the piece says, "we will play it as well as we possibly can. I know we'll have a fast team and the lights will make us look ever faster. But I do wish we didn't have to play it."

Terry fears that by 1941 the clubs with lights in their parks will be playing 14 games instead of seven, and that by 1943 it will be 21 home night games. After that he sees a drab outlook. "To sacrifice the game itself for temporory economics means that future concessions may bring bingo, sets of dishes and finally door prizes for the women," he writes, or causes to be written.

Night ball ruined Hughey Critz's arm, gives him (Bill) a headache, and the dew on the grass will keep some of the poorer-paid players broke buying spiked shoes. "It is my sincere belief that we are catering to fickle attendance in staging an unnatural attraction," Bill says. He estimates that it will take several good years to pay for the Polo Grounds' flickers—most powerful lamps of their kind. The Giants will play under 1,300,000 watts.

Terry promises to do his bit to keep the fans coming through the turnstiles. Night baseball is not the same game as day baseball, he insists, but one thing will remain the same. Bill is going to coach at third base. "(Day or night) thousands will make a special trip to the park for the purpose of shrieking their antipathy, which is all part of the attraction."

It's a frank, fearless, sincere piece and Terry deserves a bow for speaking his mind—unheard of conduct for a big league baseball manager.

Custer Avenged! Engel Scalps Iniun In First Game Skit

By the Associated Press

Chattanooga, Tenn., April 16.—Baseball's opening day buffonery reached a new peak (or depth) today when Showman Joe Engel, Lookout president, welcomed the Southern Association season like this:

Using an apple as a lure, Engel attempted to entice a befeathered "Indian brave" into a wigwam pitched on the diamond. It was no go, so he switched to a bottle and the brave went in. The wigwam rocked violently, five shots were fired and the Indian, now apparently bald, rushed out.

Zany Joe pursued the warrior into a dugout, waving a wig "scalp" in one hand, a butcher knife in the other and shouting "Custer is avenged!"

49,417 Fans See St. Louis Beat Tigers

By the Associated Press

Detroit, April 16. — George (Slicker) Coffman, Detroit castoff, pitched the St. Louis Browns to a 5-to-1 victory over the Tigers today. A crowd of 49,417, largest opening day throng in either major league, sat in chilly April weather for the contest.

The Tigers got away to a one-run lead in the opening inning, but saw it fade as the Brownies tallied two runs off Louis (Buck) Newsom in the fifth and followed up with single tallies in each of the next three innings.

St. Louis outhit the Tigers 10 to 7, getting seven of the blows off Newsom in the first seven innings. Luther Thomas finished.

Wyatt Allows Five Hits to Win, 5-0; Weather Is Bad

By the Associated Press

Boston, April 16.—The Brooklyn Dodgers gave an indication of the terror they may be to the rest of the National League by shutting out the Boston Bees, 5 to 0, today on the five-hit hurling of Whitlow Wyatt.

The Dodger right-hander, who was something of a spring question mark because of an injured leg, struck out four and gave no bases on balls. For four innings Bill Posedel matched him, but the Dodgers tallied one in the fifth, three in the seventh and another in the eighth.

Manager Leo Durocher engaged in the season's first argument with an umpire, Bill Klem, and although he escaped banishment his catcher, Babe Phelps, was expelled in the second inning.

Unfavorable weather held the crowd to 3,571.

Notes on Nats' Game Throw Light on Music, Hot Dogs, Points West of the ball park was the Redskins Andy Farkas.

Although no one, including the press, could remain on the playing field without a White House photographer's arm badge, Farkas, who didn't have one, stood behind the batting practice cage talking with the players and then remained in the Nats' dugout throughout the game.

Farkas is particularly chummy with Gee Gee Walker whom he remembers from his college days at the University of Detroit.

Most popular tunes with the Goldman Band which entertained early arrivals were "God Bless America," and 'Roll Out the Barrell.' They hardly sound synonomous, or do they?

Opening game precedent went by the boards when that cop grabbed Roosevelt's wild pitch after it had bounced off two Washington players.

Until the eighth inning when Cecil Travis got the Nats' first hit off Grove the nearest Washington had come to a rally was in the fifth when Travis carried Grove to a count of three balls before flying out to center.

Jimmy Foxx hit the season's first 2 o'clock home run, driving one into the section of leftfield bleachers marked 400 feet on his first turn in batting practice. Later he duplicated the feat. No other player of either team hit one out of the park all day although Williams came mighty close in the eighth inning when he lined out to Lewis against the rightfield fence.

A welcome addition to the ball park are the signs designating the distances to the various fences. From home plate to dead leftfield is 405 feet; to left-center, 405; to deep center, 408, and to dead rightfield, 328 feet.

Most striking sight of the afternoon was the United States Army Band, a well-trained complement of 60 pieces, as it marched in perfect unison to the stirring clashing of cymbals.

According to writers accompanying the Boston team the Chicago White Sox came within an ace of buying Dominic DiMaggio. The White Sox had bid $60,000 for the San Francisco outfield star when Yawkey put in his clinching offer of $75,000. The swaying factor in Yawkey's desire to have young DiMag was the fact that the astute Jimmy Dykes considered him worth $60,000.

Walter Hagen, the golf star, was seen hurriedly departing from the game after the end of the seventh inning. He missed all the fireworks, including the ending of Grove's perfect pitching.

By the Associated Press

New York, April 16.—The no-hit, no-run game Bob Feller pitched for the Cleveland Indians against the Chicago White Sox today sent figure filberts floundering back into the records to ascertain whether this was the first time the feat had ever been accomplished on the season's opening day.

This is what they found:

April 19, 1900, Morris I. Amole hurled a no-hit 8-0 victory for Buffalo over Detroit in an American League opening game, but that was before Ban Johnson raised the circuit to the status of a major league. It was a minor circuit of about the same strength as the present International League.

April 15, 1909, Leon K. Ames pitched nine no-hit, no-run innings for Brooklyn against New York in a National League opener, but later let down to the extent of seven hits and lost the game 3-0 in the thirteenth inning.

Grove's Great Hurling Beats Nats in Opener

Veteran Beats Leonard, 1-0, With Masterful Job; Gives But Two Hits and Retires 21 Consecutive Batters Before 31,000 Fans

Grove continued to exert his charm over the Nats through the middle innings and then into the final stages of the battle. Before his fading fast ball, now being mixed with a canny curve, and both buttressed by the pitching guile of the old lefthander, the Nats were a helpless crew. Not a man did Grove walk.

Inning after inning the Nats went down in one-two-three order, profaning the clever pitching they were being given by Dutch Leonard, who was holding the Red Sox scoreless after a shaky start. During the first seven innings, not only did a Washington player fail to reach base but only six times were they able to produce as much as an outfield fly.

Suddenly, in the eighth, the Nats bestirred themselves. Gerry Walker lunged into a Grove pitch and drove it on a line into deep leftfield, where Ted Williams reached up with one hand for the catch only to drop the ball after having it in his possession.

And then just as suddenly as Washington's hopes were revived, they crashed. Walker, not content with one base, streaked for second, a dubious piece of strategy inasmuch as there were none out and he represented the tying run. A rifle throw from Williams to Second Baseman Bobby Doerr cut Walker down, and he was out.

That drive by Walker was charged as an error for Williams in the official score and a no-hit performance thus was still beckoning Grove, who despite his sensational 15 years of pitching, had never achieved a no-hitter. Until Walker reached base, Grove was, in fact, ripe for a no-hit no-run no-man-reach-first pitching performance.

But Boston's dreams of a no-hitter for old Mose were shattered by the next man at bat. Cecil Travis scorched the shins of Third Baseman Jim Tabor with a hot drive that caromed at right angles over second base and beat it out for a single. Washington's first hit of the game.

Grove Checks Threat

Again the 31,000 were strong on the scent of the tying run. And when Jimmy Bloodworth beat out a single that Joe Cronin grabbed in a desperate dive far to his right, a tie score beckoned the Nats. Travis reached second on the hit.

But in this emergency Grove took a hitch in his belt and bore down. He forced Rookie Jimmy Pofahl to raise a weak fly to Dominic DiMaggio and then watched Rick Ferrell foul out harmlessly to Jimmy Foxx.

In the ninth, the Nats' final bid for a run was cut off sharply by Third Baseman Jim Tabor. Johnny Welaj sent in as a pinch hitter for Leonard, could produce only a long fly to Williams for the first out, but George Case was cheated of a hit when Tabor made a brilliant stab of his fierce grounder toward leftfield and threw him out. Jimmy Wasdell obliged Grove by grounding out to seal the Nats' defeat.

Ted Williams, who pounded out two of the seven hits Leonard gave up, stirred trouble for the Nats' knuckle baller in the first inning when he doubled off the rightfield wall with two out and took third on a passed ball. But after walking Foxx, Leonard disposed of Cronin on a fly to Case.

Game's Longest Blow

Leonard was undamaged by the longest blow of the game. After Williams singled to right with one out in the third, Jimmy Foxx drove a pitch to the deepest centerfield corner, 410 feet distant, but George Case galloped back for the catch.

The pesky Grove threatened to figure in a second Boston run in the fourth after DeSautels had singled with two out. He drove a single through Jimmy Wasdell's legs and when it caromed against the rightfield boxes with Second Baseman Jimmy Bloodworth in chase, DeSautels attempted to score from first, but Bloodworth cut him down at the plate with a throw to Ferrell.

Five of the seven Boston hits were yielded by Leonard in the first four innings. After the fourth, he gave up only a fifth-inning single to Cramer and an eighth-inning single to Foxx, but he was a beaten guy because Grove was out there successfully defying the Nats to get a run.

Bethesda Game Called 2-2 Tie After Dispute

Anacostia Nine Outhits Bethesdans; Coaches Agree on Deadlock

The baseball teams of Bethesda-Chevy Chase and Anacostia were still arguing yesterday after nine innings of play, so by mutual agreement of the coaches the game was recorded into the scorebooks as a 2-2 tie.

The game, witnessed by a sizable crowd on the Anacostia field, was well-played, with neither team showing a distinct advantage. Anacostia outhit Bethesda, six to three, but aside from this there was little to choose between the teams.

Indians Score at Start

Anascostia used three pitchers in three-inning stretches, while Jack MacLeod and Dick Kuster shared the mound duties for the visitors.

The Indians scored their runs in the first inning when Elmer Leukhardt walked, went to second on a wild pitch and scored on the first of Lambeth Anderson's three singles. Anderson himself scored a moment later when, after stealing second base, he came in on Tom Keene's error of Art Faircloth's pop fly.

Score Tied in Sixth

Bethesda retaliated with a run in the fourth inning on Bob Pahlow's hard single to center which scored Kinsman, who was perched on second after a fielder's choice. The visitors tied the score in the sixth without benefit of a hit. Kinsman walked, stole second and continued to third when Catcher Crawford threw the ball into centerfield, and scored on a wild pitch.

The interhigh team threatened to win the game in the eighth inning when, with only one out, it placed men on second and third but Pitcher Kuster choked the rally.

Tech Shuts Out Wilson, 2-0, in Interhigh Series Opener

Webb Fans 12, Brings In 1st Run

230-Pound Pitcher Allows but 5 Hits In Dedication Game At Presidents' Field

By Bill Burnett

Another interhigh baseball series was somewhat darkly christened yesterday at Woodrow Wilson's new diamond, where the Presidents, with a scant 150 fans braving a threatening day to watch, were shut out by Tech's Maroon Midgets, 2-0.

Mainspring in th· Midgets' triumph, strangely enough, was 230-pound Buddy Webb, the only pitcher on the Tech squad. The bulky right-hander went the distance, forced 12 Wilson batsmen to whiff weakly, allowed only five hits and was responsible for only three foes reaching first on walks.

Webb All the Way

Bunched hits, as well as Webb's heady and effective tossing, accounted for the surprising McKinley victory. Three of their seven hits the Manual Trainers slammed in the first frame, when the first run was scored, and two more came in the second when scoring for the game was completed. From then on the game was all Webb.

Even in the first, however, Webb managed to shine. Batting in the clean-up spot, he followed Chester Ciomei's rousing triple to centerfield—the longest hit of the game—with a single down the third base line. The blow scored Ciomei, and though Webb moved to second on Keithley's single a moment later, he died there when Hollidge grounded out.

Tech's second tally was a slightly tained affair. The single with which Kelley Lewis opened the frame was honest, but the fleet outfielder went to second on a wild pitch and to third on a passed ball. He finally scored on Joe Bryan's infield out.

Briscuso Doubles

Despite his team's loss, Nino Briscuso, Wilson's tall right hander, turned in a whale of a game throughout. The dark youngster, playing his first year with Wilson, went nine full innings and after the first two, kept things well in hand. He wasn't able to strike out anybody, but neither did he give a base on balls.

In addition, Briscuso sparked the Presidents' anemic stick work with a pair of doubles over the right-field fence. And he handled five fielding chances with perfect confidence. Though none of them had an effect on the outcome, Wilson's four errors did nothing in the way of improving their prospects in future interhigh games.

A perfect cap was put on Webb's performance in the final inning when, with Briscuso on second after a double, the husky curve baller struck out Pinch Hitter Cornwall and Eddie Polhamus to retire the side.

Three Local College Nines Busy Today

Hoyas Meet Navy, G. W. Faces Terps; C. U. Track Meet Carded

Georgetown and Maryland baseball teams will both be seeking their fourth victories of the season today when they return to action after a lengthy idleness enforced by rain.

Undefeated in three starts, the Hoyas will travel to Annapolis to play, while the Terrapins, who have lost two of five games, will play host to George Washington at College Park at 4 o'clock.

Sharing attention with these two contests is the rescheduled tri-cornered track meet at 2 o'clock at Brookland involving Catholic University, Gallaudet and American University.

Capt. John Smith and Jim Kiernan, both right-handers, will alternate the pitching assignment for Georgetown, which appears to have its best chance in several years to beat the Middies. Licking Navy at Annapolis has always been a tough task for the Hilltoppers.

Terp Hurlers Ready

Maryland, with all its pitchers well rested, is expected to start either Lefty Earl Springer or the right-handed Pershing Mondorff against George Washington which probably will counter with Frank McGinnis, the big right-hander who holds a shutout victory over Lafayette.

Catholic University now is thankful for the rain that postponed the track meet scheduled last Saturday, for the Cards will have available today a pair of stars who would have been unable to compete on the original date of the meet. Roger Cooper, crack sprinter, and Al Gil Borges, pole vaulting star, have apparently recovered from injuries and will greatly strengthen C. U., which will be out to duplicate last year's tirumph over the Eagles and Blues. The respite also was an aid to Charley Moutenot, an all-events performer, for it afforded his chance to rest an injured leg.

Records in Danger

Several meet and stadium records will be endangered by the onslaught of a powerful field. The assault of existing marks is expected to be led by C. U.'s middle distance runner Johnny Corbet, who will be after a new mile record. Corbett holds the meet and stadium marks for the distance with 4:35.2 and 4:30, respectively.

Ed Stevens, of Gallaudet, is conceded a fine chance of topping his own meet record of 5 feet 11 inches in the high jump. And if he does he probably will smash the nine-year-old stadium record of 6 feet even, which is held by Vinnie Fraatz.—J. H. M.

With Jack Hughes, transplanted cage star, turning in a two-hit mound performance, Mount Rainier High nine defeated National Training School, 3-0, yesterday on the Mount diamond in the first game for both teams.

Single runs in the fourth, fifth and sixth decided the issue in the seven-inning game. In addition to the sparcity of hits allowed N. T. S., Hughes struck out eight and was touched for only two bases on balls.

Tech Team Loses To Central Despite Play of Burgess

Earle Skinker and the Woodrow Wilson High golf team upset Roosevelt's defending champions, 6-3, and took first place in the interhigh section of the Schoolboy Golf League yesterday at Washington Golf and Country Club.

Central scored its second victory in three starts, defeating Tech, 7-2, at Kenwood despite the efforts of Dick Burgess, Tech captain, who won his match and the best ball point, although his partner lost, 9 and 8.

Bladensburg scored its third victory by routing St. John's, 8-1, in the only match of the metropolitan sector at Woodmont. Kelly, captain of the Johnnies, defeated Redmiles in the first match, but it was the only point of the day against the Prince George County team.

Two points in the Wilson-Roosevelt match were split, Appelby and Barse finishing all square while the best ball in the last foursome was also an even match.

Rockville makes its debut today against the strong Georgetown Prep team on the latter's home course. The loser faces virtual elimination from title contention.

Marylanders Defeat St. Paul School on College Park Field

Special Dispatch to The Post

University of Maryland's frosh lacrosse outfit downed a strong St. Paul School of Baltimore squad, 5 to 3, yesterday, on the Terp field.

The Baltimoreans put a big fast team on the field and only the experienced play of Milton Vandenburg, former Mount Washington player, and Bruce Campbell, former MacDonough star, saved the day for the baby Terps.

Vandenburg scored three times for the Old Liners, with Coster and Grelecki adding the other points. Austin, Moxley and Torrence counted for the Crusaders.

Play of the goalies on both teams was extra good, with Mudge, of St. Paul, gaining nine saves, and Forbes, of the baby Terps, making ten.

British Isle Champ Meets Armstrong

Bout Is Arranged by Jacobs for June Date; Title Will Be on Line

By the Associated Press

Hot Springs, Ark., April 16.—Promoter Mike Jacobs, of New York, announced here today he had arranged a match between Eric Boone, lightweight champion of the British Isles, and Henry Armstrong, Negro welterweight champion, for New York in June.

Armstrong's world title will be at stake in the match.

Jacobs said the match had been arranged through cables with London. He said Boone had signed a contract for the bout, but that he was a member of the Royal Air Force and would have to obtain leave in order to come to this country.

The match, Jacobs said, would be held either at Yankee Stadium or the Polo Grounds.

Jacobs, who has been vacationing here the past few days, plans to leave tomorrow by plane for New York to complete arrangements for the bout.

Tanforan Increases Purses for Meeting

Minimum daily purses were hiked from $800 to $900, highest minimum in the history of northern California racing.

Tola Rose, Paying $9 to $2, Wins Jamaica Feature Race

Dudie Places; Airflame Is Winner

Latter Is Shortest Favorite of Meet Paying Only 1-4; Perpetuate Wins

By the Associated Press

Jamaica Race Track, April 16.—A weakly filled program, with only 42 horses starting in the seven races—was offered here this cloudy but warmer afternoon as the Metropolitan Jockey Club's meeting, with an amazingly successful opening behind it, went into its second day. Naturally, the mutuels handle and attendance dropped to more normal figures. It was estimated that close to 12,000 fans were present, despite a threat of rain.

The featured Restigouche brought out five horses, with A. J. Sackett's Tola Rose, a $9 for $2 shot, easily taking the honors by three lengths. W. H. Gallagher's Dudie, the hot choice, barely headed Mrs. D. A. Buckley's Here Goes for the place. Tola Rose, an inconspicuous Kentucky Derby eligible that hadn't started since Saratoga last summer, ran the 6 furlongs in 1:12 3-5.

After the running of the Restigouche, a six-furlong test for 3-year-olds which held fifth place on the program, the sum of $315,624 had passed through the machines for an average per race of slightly more than $63,000.

Fresh from two victories in as many starts at Bowie, the Millsdale Stable's 6-year-old sprinter, Airflame, an A. G. Vanderbilt castoff, literally ran away and hid from three other high class platers in the fourth contest, secondary feature of the card. There was no show betting on this race.

Aided by outbreaking his rivals, Airflame quickly opened up an unbeatable lead and clicked by four lengths. Perpetuate always held the others safe. He beat Gridine by five lengths for the place.

Airflame was the shortest priced favorite of the meeting to date, closing at odds of 1 to 4. His time for the six furlongs was 1:12 4-5.

E. R. Bradley's Bimelech—also a Preakness eligible—in the Kentucky Derby future books, was scheduled to make his spring debut at Havre de Grace today against Royal Man, Cockerel and Hayman. The latter is the only non-Derby eligible in the field.

Originally, 319 were named for the Preakness, but the number was cut to 139 by the August 15, 1939, declaration date.

David F. Woods, director of publicity at Pimlico, estimated about 45 3-year-olds were continued eligible for the Maryland Jockey Club's famous race.

Woods said one or two more supplementary entries might be in the mails. They would be valid if postmarked before midnight Monday.

Selections at Havre de Grace.

Dear Al:

While this track gives you a song and dance instead of a badge, California's racing plants are on their toes. For instance faroff Hollywood Park has Andre Gumpere in Maryland as a good will ambassador. In showing me a picture of the famous West Coast track, he pointed to a parking lot holding 8,000 autos and said, every car can get out in 6 minutes. The Maryland tracks should take notice. Gumpere carries some interesting news regarding Seabiscuit. The stud fee on the world's champion now standing at Willetts, Calif., is $2,500. "I've decided to make a hard and fast rule on Seabiscuit's fee," he quotes Charles S. Howard, owner of the great horse. "Not a dime less to anyone. Didn't they charge $5,000 for Man o'War when he retired? Biscuit's accomplished more in racing than Man o'War and I won't cheapen him by making any special concessions to any one. Every mare will be hand picked.' This makes Seabiscuit the steepest charge on the West Coast and one of the costliest in America. Man o'War's $5,000 still is tops. Blenheim II, imported English sire, calls for $2,500. War Admiral, Sickle, Pharamond II, Gallant Fox, Blue Larkspur and Sir Gallahad can be had for $1,500 each. Challenger II and Omaha were last quoted at $1,000. So if you have $2,500, money enough to pay other expenses and a mare, which passes tests made by Seabiscuit's handlers, you may get yourself a son or daughter of Seabiscuit in due time. There's a sneaky suspicion around here that New York's mutuels are going to be reflected in Maryland wagering. Havre de Grace, closest to New York, may be the heaviest loser. Last Monday, with a $5,000 race topping the program, this track had wagering of $233,000. Bowie, without New York opposition, had a betting total of $221,000 last Friday when the program opened in a rainstorm and closed in a snowstorm. Bowie, incidentally, offered a lousy card. J. Merryman Black reports that a colt by Kerrypatch out of Dance has arrived at the farm of Mrs. J. M. Franklin. George Brown jr. of the Maryland Racing Commission is the owner Jockey Eddie Mower was an arrival. Mrs. E. C. Bosley (Chase Me) has 36 horses in training here. Confucius say: Hiblaze, hot thing. BILL.

First race—Road Scraper appears the logical choice in the opening number which is featuring a large number of first time starters. Road Scraper is a half brother to Challamore and has shown promise in workouts. Halethorpe is trained by Frank Garrett. Spang might improve over his lone Bowie race.

Second race—Lottery was a winner at Bowie and indicated by her last race that she still holds her edge. Iskie won his last two heats at Bowie in cheaper grade company. He is in form but picks up a lot of weight. Dark Friend likes this track and might be dangerous.

Third race—Interlace won her recent Bowie race in good time. Lightly weighted, she meets a similar field today and receives high figure. The Millsdale Stable entry of Siganar and Flying Waters may offer stiff contention as both have won recently. Nicky is in good hands and rates well above the others.

Fourth race—Ariel Toy has been away since last fall but has had time to prepare for this event and has the class to turn back campaigners of this caliber. General Mowlee has speed and may prove hard to catch if fit. My Elsie appears a trifle overmatched but has a good money chance.

Fifth race—Scarlet O. won his last Bowie race easily when pitted against a similar brand of contention. He's in form and should repeat. Fair Elise has a bit of class, but late races have not indicated best form. Nancy Mae has a good chance to whip the test.

Sixth race—Playmore finished a close third to Flushing and Winning Mark on the final day at Bowie. Meeting cheaper platers here, he should be up for the verdict. Pascua showed good speed to set a stiff early pace last outing at Bowie. With that race under her belt, she figures as the one to beat. Breezing Along for show.

Seventh race—Brilliant One disappointed his backers when installed favorite over a similar field at Bowie. He demonstrated his ability to whip this sort in previous races and is worth another chance. Connie Plaut has been away a long time but would be dangerous if fit. Bubbleworth for show.

Best bet—Scarlet O.

DANDIE DINMONT TERRIER

Originating in the Cheviot hills between England and Scotland about 1700, they were used extensively in hunting small game, principally the otter and badger. Unlike most terriers they are reserved and dignified but ready for a real roughhouse if the boss desires. Slow to fight, they will battle to a finish when necessary and are afraid of nothing that wears hair. This champion was bred by Mrs. R. H. Johnston, of Ruffcote Kennels in Silver Springs, pioneer Dandie breeder. They will be shown at the dog shows at Riverside Stadium, April 25-26, and at Alexandria ball park, April 27

Specculative War Issues Fade as Rumors Of Invasion of Belgium and Rumania Send Traders Into Whirl of Selling

New York, April 16.—The more speculative war issues, principally the aviations, faded away in mid-afternoon today in the most serious selling wave which the current market has had to encounter.

There was a partial recovery before the close, but the general market, as measured by the composite average, was lower by 0.58 point. Trading was active, amounting to 1,505,860 shares. The ticker was forced behind a minute.

The downward move was regarded in the street as largely technical, but it was helped along by a series of rumors which were without foundation but which helped to jangle the nerves of all with a stake in the market.

Wild Rumors Jolt Traders

These included reports that Italy was at war, that Germany had invaded Belgium, that Germany had invaded Rumania and a few others equally as wrong. It was reported by brokers that some English liquidation had to be absorbed.

Shipbuilding shares, in the forefront of the recent advance of the war stocks, were under pressure of profit taking today. On the basis of the business these companies are doing, and the orders they have on their books, there was a sound basis for the recent bulge in these shares.

Motors Hold Their Own

Automobile manufacturers also have been doing a good business and last week they received an official price reduction on the type of steel they use. Yet while the shipbuilding shares have been advancing, and the motors have been holding their own, the steels have been a disappointment.

Oils were weakened today by the rumored invasion of Rumania. Socony Vacuum was the most active of this division, closing off a quarter and touching a new low. Pure was down a fraction as was Standard of New Jersey, which was also at a new low.

Curtiss Wright was the day's most active stock and managed to close unchanged. Lockheed, which had enjoyed a sensational rise, was hit by the sales of profit takers and closed off 1⅜.

Utilities were relatively firm, but they had not participated in the previous rise of the war issues. Miscellaneous leaders to lose a point or more included Allied Chemical, American Can, American Smelting, Dupont, Nickel, Kennecott, Sears, Texas and Union Carbide.

Sterling was again uder pressure as the Treasury anounced that the official sterling rate, rather than the free pound, would be used as a measure in computing imports from Great Britain. This made free sterling slightly less attractive.

Bonds Weak on War Fear

Fears that the European war might spread soon brought noticeable weakness to the Government bond market today, and to Italian and Japanese issues especially. Declines in the longer term Treasury bonds amounted to about ¼ point.

Italian government and municipal issues, already under pressure after Norway and Denmark were drawn into the war, declined up to 7 points. Japanese government 6½s of 1954 gave up 6 points and the 5½s of 1965 4 points.

Scandinavian issues were still in supply, with the losses ranging from ½ to 4½ points in the case of the Norwegian government bonds and 1¼ to 1½ in the Danish issues. Domestic bonds were for the most part inclined to softness.

Bankers to Study Farm Finance

Roanoke, Va., April 16 (AP).—Bankers will confer at the Homestead, Hot Springs, Saturday, on agricultural credit. Leaders of the conference, sponsored by the American Bankers Association, will be A. G. Brown, of New York, deputy manager of the new agricultural department of the A. B. A., and Dr. Dan Otis, Madison, Wis., director of the A. B. A. agricultural commission.

Foreign Markets

London, April 16 (AP).—Stocks, especially industrial leaders, were steadily maintained quotations in the exchanges today despite lagsard public participation. The approaching budget speech was deemed a restraining influence by most brokers, but war news continued to received favorable interpretation. Canadian newsprint shares attracted attention and gold stocks edged forward on local backing. Cable and wireless moved ahead sharply following dividend announcement. Commodity shares held idly steady. British government bonds showed only minor variations.

Paris—Reports of allied successes in Norway helped bolster bourse prices today. Rentes advanced 50 to 75 centimes and domestic equities displayed all-round improvement. International stocks were less certain in their movements.

Amsterdam—Domestic industrial, tobacco and shipping shares lost an average of 6 points in the bourse on selling believed to have come mostly from foreign sources. Rubber and sugar stocks tumbled 9 to 13 points. Losses in American stocks were considerably smaller.

Liverpool—Cotton futures advanced 7 to 12 points today. Speculative support offset hedging sales and pressure which followed a lower Alexandria market.

Standard Oil Considers Issue To Cut Interest

New York, April 16 (AP).—Taking advantage of current record low interest rates, the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey is negotiating with bankers for further financing for retirement of its $35,000,000 serial notes. The notes, sold about two years ago, mature from 1943 to 1947 and carry interest ranging from 1¾ per cent to 2½ per cent.

Decision of the Jersey company's management to arrange fresh borrowing to shave interest charges follows announcement of similar plans by Texas Corporation and United States Steel Corporation.

U. S. Chain Stores Maintain Gains

Chain store sales in March maintained their rate of seasonal improvement. The Easter holiday influence, coming earlier than usual, more than offset the effects of bad weather, according to Chain Store Age.

The index of sales for March advanced to 115 of the 1929-1931 average taken as 100. The index for February was 114 and for March, 1939, 109.8.

Money Markets

New York, April 16 (AP).—Only the Canadian dollar withstood broad pressure against leading foreign currencies today.

While the Dominion money rose ⅛ of a cent, the pound sterling dipped ½ cent, the French franc lost .00½ of a cent and leading neutral moneys declined.

The present price of 86⅜ U. S. cents for the canadian dollar was close to the best level in weeks.

Foreign money dealers said the Treasury Department ruling that British imports will henceforth be valued at the official price for sterling, now more than 50 cents above free sterling, apparently had little influence on the unofficial market.

Chief effect of the ruling, they added, will be to increase the cost of British goods to American buyers.

Bad Crop News Pushes Cotton 5 to 16 Points

New York, April 16 (AP).—General buying, based in large part on bad crop news, lifted cotton futures 5 to 16 points today.

Heavy turnover was fostered by reports from the South extensive replanting will be necessary in many areas in the belt because of recent freezing weather.

More buying fuel was poured on the market by talk of a possibility of a higher loan on the new crop and an upward tendency in the spot basis at Southern selling centers.

A. G. & E. Trustees Delay Integration

New York, April 16 (AP).—Trustees for the Associated Gas & Electric System in the first Federal Court report on their stewardship indicated today they do not have any intention of filing in the near future an integration plan with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

They pointed out that they disclaim all responsibility for the plan filed with the SEC under the "death sentence" clause of the Public Utility Holding Company Act, prior to the system's going into reorganization.

Instead, the trustees said, their main efforts will be to conserve existing properties. The system, under trusteeship, will spend in 1940 between $24,000,000 and $30,000,000 for new construction for operating properties. This compares with $17,884,757 last year, and $14,803,128 the previous year.

Grains Climb To New Highs On War News

By the Associated Press

Chicago, April 16.—All wheat contracts and July and September corn futures scored new season highs today with gains ranging up to 2 cents a bushel as war news again dominated the markets. Profit-taking sales increased at the advance but the markets finished strong.

May wheat climbed to $1.10½, up 1⅞ cents and at the highest price at which any wheat contract has sold since last December. July and September, new-crop contracts, reached $1.09½, both up 1⅞ to the highest level in nearly three years.

July corn climbed to 63½, up 1¾, and September to 64⅜, up 2 cents, the highest prices since the latter part of 1937.

Increased European war tension, pessimistic crop reports from abroad and the domestic Southwest and Canadian export sales of more than 15,000,000 bushels to the United Kingdom encouraged the fresh upturn.

Wheat finished 1⅛-1⅜ cents higher than yesterday's close; May, $1.10⅛@1.10¼; July, $1.09@1.09¼. Corn, 1⅝-2 cents up; May, 62¼@62½; July, 63⅜. Oats, ⅝-½ higher. Soy beans unchanged to 1¾ up. Rye 1-1¼ higher. Lard 5 to 7 cents a hundredweight higher.

Factors Favor Business Gain, Banking Says

A. B. A. Publication Reviews Uncertainties, Their Effect on Trade

By Thomas M. Cahill.

A continued favorable forecast for business despite uncertainties of war and political ones of November, is shown in a survey of conditions by Banking, official organ of the American Bankers' Association.

"The business outlook is still on the favorable side, but not enough to be convincing," the survey says. "The usual uncertainties of an election year are present, but business today is to a large degree politically neutral. Its concern is almost entirely with economic principles instead of parties.

"We are beginning to realize," the survey continues, "that it will be hard to build a recovery paradise inside our tight boundaries, regardless of what happens abroad. We cannot hope to be an island of peace and prosperity surrounded by war and political disorder.

Foreign Concentration Cited

"With the whole tendency abroad running strongly toward concentration of economic control in governmental hands, there is understandable anxiety as to how long we can avoid the same influences and maintain a competitive position," it states.

Banking's April index of the general trend of business, obtained from a poll of 3,000 bank directors and presidents in all parts of the country, is slightly less favorable as compared with the preceding month, although 79 per cent of the replies indicate that business is either holding its own or improving.

Of bankers canvassed, 39 per cent said business is improving, 40 per cent found conditions about static and 21 per cent reported a decline. In March, 47 per cent said the direction is upward, 33 per cent reported the situation unchanged and 20 per cent, an unfavorable trend.

A STATEMENT

By One of the Largest Undertakers in the World

We believe that our services are one-half the old-time undertaker's prices—and we have yet to be shown that our claims for quality funerals at low prices differ from known facts.

If you prefer one of the finest metals in the world, Chambers will serve with a magnificent burial receptacle of solid copper with services fit for a king at $425. Most copper and bronze caskets are sold for much higher prices. With this policy, we believe that it will compel a fairer price elsewhere for copper and bronze caskets.

We know that Chambers has made all funerals cheaper, not only in Washington, but all over the country. Almost any undertaker will give you a reasonable price. To mention the name of Chambers is your protection. And, when you call Chambers, you are sure of protection, always at a low price for the casket that you select with the same, complete services with every Chambers Funeral.

We guarantee our $165 funeral to be a fine, dignifed and complete service. Almost any family can have a fine funeral by Chambers because the services range in prices to suit every purse.

Listen! with Slocum

One of the largest items on the Columbia Broadcasting System's ledgers is a little job engraved in red ink under the heading "American School of the Air." For twice a day, five days a week while school is in session, and a half hour each broadcast, the "American School of the eAir" is in actionfl C. B. S. foots the blil for actors, writers, musicians, educators, technicians, wires, plus the extremely valuable little commodity known as time.

C. B. S. and Zlotnick the Furrier have one basic, all-important thing in common. Both are in the business world to make money. Zlotnick's keenest admirer, Arthur Godfrey, informs me that it has been quite some time since Zlotty gave away any fur coats. Possibly you would like to know why C. B. S. ships a whole crew down to Washington for a "School" pickup at the Coolidge Auditorium as it did yesterday. I was faintly curious, too, so I asked Bill Fineshriber, the gent in charge of the crew.

Fineshriber was deeply wounded at my query, but explained pretty patiently. "The American School of the Air," according to Mr. F., "is one of Columbia's better efforts at making a contribution to public service. In view of the fact that the public is pretty kind to Columbia, it seems the least C. B. S. can do.

"Although the larger cities like Washington and New York use the "School" broadcasts sparingly in classrooms, they are standard equipment in thousands of smaller country schools. Rural teachers depend upon the school and its varied dramatic and musical broadcasts to give pupils a more vivid picture of the cultural side of education than any textbook could possibly present.

"And," concluded Mr. F., "I honestly feel that most School broadcasts contain more genuine entertainment than most commercial shows." So do I.

LEAP YEAR LADY by ALMA SIOUX SCARBERRY

SMOKY O'TOOLE—Pride of the neighborhood and daughter of

CLANCY O'TOOLE—Retired fireman, a widower who is both father and mother to Smoky.

MRS. HETRICK—Neighbor of the O'Toole's and mother of

KARL HETRICK—Who was to marry Smoky after he returned from a trip West, where he received an inheritance, but instead he married

DAGNE OLSEN—Another belle of the neighborhood.

TEX STACY—Young cowboy actor whom Smoky meets in a theatrical booking office.

Smoky goes to a theatrical booking office where the cast is being selected for a new musical comedy. She applies for a job of dancing in the chorus. There she meets Tex Stacy, young cowboy singer who is also trying out for the show, and he immediately befriends Smoky.

Tex Stacy has gone to the home of Smoky O'Toole upon her invitation to dinner and there meets Clancy, her father. Clancy decides he likes Tex. Smoky prepares the dinner and during its service, she talks of plans for teaming up with Tex in the theatrical business.

Chapter 9

SMOKY GOT UP. "I'm not so dumb." She kissed her father good night and went up stairs. When the door closed behind her, her self-assured manner left her. Hot tears spurted from her eyes and she sat down by the window, without turning on the lights, and stared at the dark Hetrick house bitterly. "Oh, Karl, Karl!" she sobbed aloud. "What'll I do."

Clancy had told her the most useless pastime in the world was carrying a torch for someone who didn't love you, and she dashed her tears away angrily and got up to turn on the lights and undress.

If only she could make herself fall in love with somebody else! She'd often heard the only cure for a man was another man. But she was certain down in her heart there could never be any one but Karl.

She Decides to Get Her Man

Living and dying an old maid was not a pleasant prospect, Smoky told herself, shivering between the cold sheets. If she didn't marry, everybody would point to her and say that was Shamrock O'Toole who was thrown over by Karl Hetrick and was too broken-hearted ever to marry anybody else. Or maybe they'd think—maybe even Karl would think ,that no other man would have her.

That thought was completely unbearable. Every one on the street would talk about her behind her back, and Dagne Olsen would certainly get a lot of satisfaction out of that.

It was nearly dawn when Smoky fell into exhausted slumber. But not before she had come to a momentous decision.

She was going to get married. And soon. No matter what lengths she had to go to she would find a husband. All actresses got married, and divorced, whenever they felt like it. And they got a lot of publicity and nobody thought anything about it.

They were smart. If a man left them holding the bag it was full of diamonds. That's the kind of a chorus girl she was going to be. A "fabulous chorine," like she'd read about in the tabloids.

"Got your bathing suit?" he greeted her with a cheerful grin.

"In my handbag," she giggled. "You could put it in your eye. I bought it on Grand Avenue this morning."

"Well, I don't imagine you've got any moles to hide," chuckled the cowboy, opening the door.

"Why, Mr. Stacy! " Smoky said coyly, "How you do talk!"

Inside was bedlam. Tex helped her through the stage-door mob and to the stage, where another mob milled around, laughing and shouting.

They found Mr. Melvin, and he told Smoky to go back and find a dressing room and get into her bathing suit. A door down a long hall was open slightly, and she pushed in to find herself among a crowd of small redheads chattering and laughing and stepping out of their clothes and into their slips of suits as nonchalantly as though they were entirely alone in the world.

In the Try-out Line

Smoky decided she would look amateurish if she showed any signs of modesty. So she took off her coat, dress, slip and chemise and hung them on a nail and donned her wisp of black. Everybody seemed to know everybody but herself, and no one paid any attention to her.

Fifty girls had been named to parade on the stage, so that 20 of the prettiest and best dancers might be selected for the Ginger Snap Parade. Smoky felt much less sure of herself when, just one of the mob, she waited her turn to be called.

One by one the redheads passed in front of Melvin and two other younger men who sat in the front row beyond the footlights. Some were asked to step aside and wait, and others heard the fatal word "sorry" and walked off with their hearts sinking.

Smoky was exhausted from standing and the strain of uncertainty when she found herself one of six girls left to be tried out. She had to admit to herself that a lot of the girls selected, and some of the ones turned down, knew steps that she had never done and were breath-takingly beautiful. Maybe, she told herself fearfully, she wasn't as good as she thought she was. Astoria certainly wasn't Broadway.

She caught Tex's eye in the wings and he smiled encouragement. She tried to smile back, but made a poor attempt. If it just weren't such a matter of life and death it wouldn't be quite so bad.

Only one more girl was needed to complete the 20 Ginger Snaps, and the casting director and his assistants looked the six remaining youngsters over uncertainly.

"You, on the end," Melvin finally called to Smoky, "will you dance, please?"

Shamrock nooded and with a scared little smile broke into her dance when the piano started playing. Her legs felt as though they were made of wood, and she had never been so frightened in all her life.

She Gets the Job

Mr. Melvin finally held up his hand for her to stop and she stepped back feeling faint and icy cold.

"Wait just a minute," he told her, and the trio went into conference.

"There are better dancers," said Melvin, "but that girl's got oomph. That's what we want."

"Suit yourself," shrugged his first assistant, Miller. "But I agree with you she ain't such a hot hoofer."

"She sure has whee, boss," agreed Stein. "Plenty more than any of those other five dames."

"Well, we'll let the others dance or their feelings'll be hurt," Melvin said. He had the reputation of being the softest-hearted casting director on Broadway.

The rest of the girls danced only a few bars before Melvin pointed to Smoky and told her to wait. The other girls walked from the stage.

She was dazed with joy and surprise. Tex came from the wings and shook hands and beamed proudly. Mr. Melvin called out that the 20 Ginger Snaps could go home, and report to the theater the next morning at 10 o'clock for rehearsals.

Tex was asked to remain. So Smoky sat down on a bench behind the scenes after she changed into her clothes, and waited for him. He was on the stage singing the number Melvin had given him the day before, when a small dark man sat down on the other end of Smoky's bench.

"Swell voice," he offered pleasantly and Smoky said it was marvelous.

"The boss thinks he's a find," the dark man whispered confidentially, "Says if he makes the hit he thinks he will with that banjo number, he's goin' to give him a lead in his next show. Says the guy's got whee. The gals will love him, Pete says."

"Really!" Smoky's eyes opened wide.

Shamrock learned later that her informant was Phil Smith, from the mill office. He was fired not long afterword for overhearing things and forgetting to keep them a secret.

Using Her Wiles

Smoky listened to Tex and his banjo with a new interest. There was a chance that some day he would be a star, and he was certainly interested in her or he wouldn't have helped her get into the show and waited for her at the stage door that morning.

When he came off the stage she told him rapturously:

"Oh, Tex, your new song is wonderful. I'm so happy I could die. Isn't it marvelous, we're both in the show?"

"I knew you couldn't miss," he patted her back paternally. "How about some lunch?"

They went to a small Italian restaurant near Sixth avenue, and Smoky made a great effort to impress Tex with her charm and show him how wonderful she thought he was.

She had never tried to impress a man in her entire life before. But no one would have known, watching her, that she was an amateur at using her feminine wiles.

Over dessert she said: "Tell me about your girl in Texas. Is she terribly beautiful?"

"I have no girl in Texas," Tex denied without looking up from his ice cream.

"You're probably married," Smoky held her breath waiting for his answer.

"I have never been married," the cowboy shook his head swiftly. "Do you think I'd be hanging around you if I was a married man."

"It's being done," Smoky shrugged, feeling much better because she had found out two things she had to know. It would never occur to her, of course, that Tex might not be telling the truth.

Tex grinned: "Say, why all the curiosity about my past. I might start checkin' up on you next."

To Be Continued.

FOR CHOOSING A FORD!

A FEW minutes in this year's Ford will open your eyes to a lot of good things! To roominess and a big-car ride that's a real discovery in low-priced money's worth. To economy that's really amazing. To hydraulic brakes that are the biggest ever used on a low-price car. To easy finger-tip gear shifting of the sort the fine cars use. To roadability and handling ease that make driving lots of fun.

But you'll find the mightiest arguments of all in the 8 fine cylinders under the hood. As 6 million Ford V-8 owners now know, only a Ford adds V-8 performance to low cost and thrift. Only a Ford gives you, at low cost, the kind of powerplant of which so many highest-price cars boast.

Drive a Ford V-8. Before you pick out your new car, let the world's most famous "8" tell you its own matchless story . . . on the road!

BEST GAS MILEAGE, TOO!

The 85 h.p. Ford V-8 gave most miles per gallon of all standard-equipped cars in its price class in the 1940 running of the famous official and impartial Gilmore-Yosemite economy run. Also . . . Ford owners are reporting that the efficient, precision-built Ford engine requires no oil added between regular changes!
